OLD WILLS FOUND.

William S. Pelletreau found about two hundred old wills in the storerooms of the Surrogates' Court. The date of the oldest one is 1670 and none of them were drawn later than 1730. Mr. Pelletreau, who is a member of the New York Historical Society, is going to have abstracts of them published in the next volume issued by the society. As far as can be learned none of these wills affect land titles. The reason they were not recorded is in most cases explained by the endorsement made by a clerk: "Fees not paid." The fees that the Governor received was 10 shillings and the clerk 2 pounds 10 shillings, "York currency." A shilling was equal to 12½ cents and a pound $2.50.

DEAL FOR RIVERSIDE DRIVE PROPERTY.—A deal of considerable importance to the Washington Heights section is pending, and will probably be closed within a few days. The property involved is the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and 139th st, a 7-sty apartment house, 100.8x157.6. This house is in a desirable renting section overlooking the Hudson. Across the street is the House of Incurables, on the south is a large building under construction, on the east is located the Rivera, on a plot 50x88x99.11. This property was acquired from the Ludlow Realty Co. on May 20, 1907, vacant, subject to a mortgage of $90,000. A representative of the Hensle Co., when asked whether there was any truth in the report stated that contracts had not been signed, as yet, but undoubtedly the deal would be closed in the near future.

QUICK PROFIT FROM AUCTION PURCHASE.—Charles Schano purchased two lots on May 5 at auction and makes the following affidavit: That I reside at 3 Amethyst st, Borough of Bronx. That on May 5th, 1908, I attended the sale of lots known as the Joel Wolfe Estate, which sale was conducted by Joseph P. Day at the Real Estate Salesroom, 14-16 Vesey st, New York City. That I bought lot No. 115, as shown on the map of the property for $975, and have since resold it for $1,850. At the same time, I also bought lots Nos. 122-123, as shown on the map of the property for $325 each, and have since resold them for $450 each.

BROKER APPRAISES ESTATE.—Arthur F. Taylor, of the real estate firm of Arthur F. Taylor & Co., of Port Chester, N. Y., was appointed recently by the State Comptroller to appraise the estate of the late Edward B. Wesley, of Rye, N. Y. He has just completed his work and filed his report. There were four parcels of realty left in the village of Port Chester valued at $93,000. The appraisement was made as of October, 1906. Mr. Wesley died December, 1906.

DELEGATION ATTENDS HEARING AT ALBANY.—A delegation of the Committee of One Hundred on Land Title Registration will start to-day for Albany to attend the hearing given by Gov. Hughes on the Torrens System bill. Briefs will be submitted showing how this system works in those States where it is operative and the probable result in this State, if it becomes a law. The delegation will include John Pullman, Camillus G. Kidder, Sidney V. Lowell, J. Clarence Davies, Borough President Bird S. Coler and the four members of the commission which drafted the bill now in the Governor's hands. The members of the commission who sent in the majority report are David A. Clarkson, President of the Board of Real Estate Brokers, Prof. Alfred G. Reeves, Deputy Register Thompson of Kings County and Ralph Folks.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Samuel A. Smith moved his office to the Fulton Building on Church st.

Philip Steinman moved his office to the Bennett Building, 99 Nassau st.

The West Side Taxpayers' Association met at 265 West 34th st Friday evening.

Charles H. George & Co., of 41 Park Row, are moving their offices to 5 Beekman st.

James L. Libby and B. H. Weisker, Jr., moved their office to the City Investing Building.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. gave to the West Twenty-sixth St. Co., a building loan of $375,000 on the property on the north side of 26th st, 175 ft. east of 6th av, 100x100.

The J. C. Lyons Building & Operating Co. has arranged to pay its creditors in full by deferred notes, fifty per cent of which is payable in one year and fifty per cent in twenty-four months.

Albert E. Lowe, real estate operator, has removed his offices to the New York Life Insurance Building, 346 Broadway. Mr. Lowe is largely interested in the vicinity of 116th st and Lenox av.

Joseph P. Day will offer at auction May 19, at the Exchange Salesroom, 14-16 Vesey st, 700 Bronx lots at Lohabuer Park. Property adjoins the grounds of the Country Club, fronting on the Eastern Boulevard, Town Dock road.

For the convenience of visitors desiring to inspect Lohbauer Park property, the Union Trolley Co. has agreed to give special service from West Chester village to the terminus of the line on Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday. This holding will be offered for sale by Joseph P. Day on next Tuesday.

Mary P. Satterlee borrowed from the Bowery Savings Bank $130,000 at 4½ per cent. on the property 95 to 97 Liberty st. It would have been impossible a few months ago to place any such amount on bond and mortgage at so low a rate of interest. Unquestionably the mortgage money situation is clearing.

The real estate course in the Evening School of Commerce at the University of the City of New York, which is conducted by Mr. Walter Lindner, is now drawing to a close. During the session thirty lectures have been given and the attendance has been above the average. Mr. Lindner has been assisted in his work by Mr. Lawson Purdy, Mr. Charles Griffith Moses and Mr. Charles H. Israels, the architect, who has lectured on the Building Code and the Tenement House Act.

ENCOURAGING NEWS.

There still appears to be a steady demand for suburban Brooklyn realty if the increasing volume of business in South Flatbush property may be taken as a criterion. In fact, one large firm of operators, Wood, Harmon & Co., state that transactions this season are reaching full headway, and far exceed the volume of sales for the corresponding period in 1907. During the week the operators mentioned report having sold 44 lots in their South Flatbush properties and 98 lots at South Marlboro, a new tract recently opened. In Rugby and Kensington out of 9 houses offered for sale by them a week ago all but one have been disposed of.

It is generally conceded by real estate men that the whole situation, in so far as the district in question is concerned, reveals a decided return of confidence. Moreover, this is further assured by the large number of inquiries for investment property throughout the southerly part of Kings County.

LOOK WELL TO YOUR CELLARS.—An authority in writing on the subject of damp cellars and their prevention argues that dampness is the chief enemy of mankind and that where there is dampness there inevitably must be decay, disease and death. The importance of keeping your cellar dry is therefore apparent. If, through bad management or otherwise, water should find its way to your cellar take immediate steps to remove the cause, if possible. Suitable outlets for drainage should be provided, and, if necessary, a siphon trap may be depressed deep in the concrete flooring to prevent subsurface water from rising above an established level. A dry cellar floor may be obtained by topping with asphaltum and refinishing with Portland cement.

EFFECTIVE PROTECTION.

Owners of improved real estate will find it profitable to protect iron water and waste pipes entering their buildings from the damaging effects of electrolysis. The permeation of the earth in all directions, by electrical currents is a known condition which exists in all cities where electricity is in general use. Electrolysis is particularly effective in its assaults on piping in districts where street railways are operated on a "grounded" system, for the current, having performed its work in passing through the car motors, escapes by way of the wheels, and although it is intended that in returning to the generating plant it shall pass through the metallic rails, it almost invariably finds its way through the earth, and in many instances follows buried iron piping in its course. At whatever point the current leaves the piping electrolytic action takes place, eventually damaging it so that they will not perform their functions. Considerable trouble and inconvenience in this respect may be avoided by the use of specially prepared asbestos paper, in a laminated form, which more or less bars the entrance of sneak or escaping currents.

TELLING RESULTS.

That the United Real Estate Owners' Associations are accomplishing much toward conserving the interests of property owners in New York is evident by the report of its Law and Legislation Committee, which says 2,308 bills were introduced in the Assembly at the last session, and 1,393 in the Senate, of which about one-third pertained to New York City.

The committee examined all these bills, and its chairman, Chas. H. Schnelle, was instructed from time to time to communicate with the various committees of the Legislature to either favor or oppose them, as circumstances required. The good results obtained from the close scrutiny of proposed measures show that the watchfulness of Chairman Schnelle and his associates has not been in vain.

Among the important bills killed through the efforts of that body were the Grady Fire-escape Bill; the Saxe Bill, which required the true consideration at which real estate was sold to be inserted in the deed, and the Licensed Engineers' Bill. The committee also took an active interest in the Grady Tenement House Bill, that recently passed both houses. Their labors in this direction resulted in several favorable modifications.

It is the consensus of opinion among property owners that the United Real Estate Owners' Associations did excellent work during the session, and is entitled to the thanks of property interests, not only in Manhattan but throughout the City of New York.

OBJECT TO PROJECTED GRANDSTAND.

Property owners of Crotona Park North are agitated over the attempt of the Board of Education to build a grandstand in the vicinity of private residences in that locality. It appears that some months ago ground was given the Board of Education for the building of an athletic field at that point, and it is now planned by them to erect a grandstand on the site, about 250 ft. long by 30 ft. in height. It is argued by residents in Crotona Park North that the structure, besides being an eyesore to the locality mentioned, will constitute a nuisance when in actual use. It is likely that an organization will be formed to enter a protest against the carrying out of the plan.

HEARING ON SUBWAY STATIONS.

A hearing was given upon the location of subway stations along the route of the Broadway-Lexington av subway on Wednesday. Those appearing before the Public Service Commission were President A. C. Hottenroth, of the Taxpayers' Alliance; ex-Tax Commissioner James L. Wells and Counselor Herman G. Friedman, of the Legislative Committee of the North Side Board of Trade. The Taxpayers' Alliance will appoint a committee with full power to submit the ideas of the Bronx associations on the subject.

A NEW METHOD OF CALKING PIPES.—Pipe joints are usually calked by first introducing into the sockets hemp yarn, then filling the remaining space with molten lead. When the lead cools it contracts and a space is left between that metal and the wall of the socket, often resulting in the leakage of water, particularly if the pipe happens to rest in a horizontal position. A new and better method consists of introducing into the opening a substitute for the lead called lead-wool, a patented article, made in strands formed of a sufficient number of threads, weighing a pound each. The lead-wool is twisted until it fits the space in the socket and then well calked until it is tightly compressed into a solid mass. It makes an ideal joint, and one that is said to withstand a greater pressure than the ordinary leaded junction.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

Key to abbreviations:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assesment roll of 1907.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

May 8, 9, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Vol. LXXXI. MAY 23, 1908. No. 2096.

AGAIN are the finances of the City of New York in a very serious condition. The ability of the city to borrow money is more restricted at the present time than it has been at any period in the history of New York. The debt margin amounts to only a little over $1,000,000. On July 1 it will be increased by about $40,000,000, but this increase will provide only a temporary relief. Practically the whole of this sum will be required to carry on the important public works which have already been started; and account must be taken of the probability that during the next year the increase in the real estate valuation will not be much more than half what it is during the current year. Apparently severe measures of economy will be necessary for an indefinite period in order to make both ends meet. Every proposed improvement which can be postponed will have to be postponed, and the Board of Estimate will have to be very cautious about committing the city to any large new enterprises. There is no doubt, for instance, that under the circumstances the city cannot afford the money necessary for the Fourth Avenue subway in Brooklyn. That subway should be re-advertised under the new law. If a private company can be found to build and operate it, it should be built at once; but if no such bidder is forthcoming, its construction should be postponed until a constitutional amendment is secured excluding stock issued for subway construction from being counted as part of the net debt of the city. It is evident, however, that measures of economy, while they will relieve the temporary crisis, will not meet the permanent situation. Manifestly the increase in borrowing capacity derived from the annual increase in the assessed valuation of real estate will not be sufficient to provide the city with the money it needs for necessary improvements. Since 1902 New York has spent not only every dollar provided by the increase in the assessed valuation, but more than $100,000,000 besides; and out of all this money a very small proportion was used for transit purposes. Consequently, even if a constitutional amendment is passed placing stock issued for transit purposes in the same class as stock issued to pay for the new acqueduct, the city will still be unable to borrow as much money as it needs. In the long run the assessed valuation of real estate will increase even more rapidly, but so will the needs of the city for expensive improvements. What is to be done? Surely some means should be taken to meet in an adequate way a situation which promises to be permanently critical. This serious problem should receive attention from the Charter Revision Commission.

OPPOSITION seems to be gathering to the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route, as projected by the Public Service Commission. Vice-President Rea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., has joined Mr. John B. McDonald in protesting against the fact that the proposed route does not provide any subway for the lower West Side. The 250,000 passengers who will board and leave the Pennsylvania and Long Island trains at Seventh avenue and Thirty-second street will have to depend for access to the station upon the surface cars or the elevated roads, and, in any event, will be obliged to walk a block or two in order to find any sufficient means of transit; and it is perfectly obvious that this important center of traffic should be connected with the subway system as closely as is the Grand Central Station. A subway, connecting with the upper West Side route at Broadway and Forty-second street, and running down Seventh avenue, could be planned so as to have a station at Seventh avenue and Thirty-second street, and an underground connection could easily be planned with the Pennsylvania and Long Island stations. In arranging for the distribution and collection of these 250,000 or more daily travelers, it is of the utmost importance that the connection with the rapid transit system of the city should be made with every possible convenience and celerity. A delay of several minutes, such as would be necessary in the absence of a Seventh avenue subway, would mean a corresponding loss of business for shops and places of amusement situated all over the city, and it would increase by just so much the cost of transacting business in Manhattan. Of course both Mr. McDonald and Mr. Rea have special interests to serve, when they insist on the necessity of a Seventh avenue subway; but in this instance the special interest of the corporations they represent coincides with the interest and the necessities of the traveling public of New York.

THE great argument in favor of a Broadway subway is, of course, that the line of Broadway is the line of densest traffic. This argument undoubtedly has great force. A subway must eventually be built on Broadway, no less than on Seventh avenue. The projected Broadway-Lexington Avenue route does not, however, use the line of Broadway to the best advantage. It connects lower Broadway with the upper East Side; whereas it would be far more convenient to connect lower Broadway with the upper West Side. At the same time it avoids entirely that very important part of Broadway between Fourteenth and Forty-second streets. The Record and Guide has always claimed (and we see no reason to abandon the claim) that a Broadway subway should be used chiefly for local traffic. All along its line the business population is so dense, and the local centers of traffic so numerous, that a subway with stations every four blocks and no express tracks would provide the public with service most needed. The thoroughfare is not wide enough for more than three tracks, and all those three tracks should be used to make as many points as possible along the line available for discharging and receiving passengers. When the time comes a most useful subway could be constructed up Broadway as far north as Thirty-fourth street. From that point it could turn into Sixth avenue and continue to the Central Park. It could be connected by a subway across Fifty-ninth street with the Blackwell's Island Bridge, and, by means of other cross-town subways, with the express services on the east and west sides. An underground road along the line described above, pierced by as many stations as possible, would develop more traffic per mile than the proposed Broadway-Lexington Avenue route, and would be a far more logical outgrowth of the plan of Manhattan. The time has not come for its construction; but it could be begun with profit as soon as a lower West Side and an upper East Side extension are finished.

THE friends of the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route answer the advocates of a lower West Side subway by the assertion that such a subway will be built in the fulness of time; but this answer is not sufficient. To be sure a lower West Side subway must be built in the course of time, because its construction is demanded by the convenience of the traveling public. The point is, however, that the construction of the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route will postpone a subway, which is immediately necessary in favor of one which is not immediately necessary. South of Forty-second street the projected route parallels the existing subway and merely divides traffic which can be handled by one subway among two subways. It interferes with the construction of a lower West Side subway just because it wastes upon a competing line money which should be spent upon a non-competing line. At any one time only a certain number of subways will pay; and the only way to obtain the early construction of the largest possible addition to the transit system of the borough is to plan subways which interfere and compete as little as possible one with another. A Lexington avenue connection with the existing subway for the upper East Side, and a Seventh avenue connection for the lower West Side, would provide the maximum accommodation for the public at a minimum expense; whereas a Broadway-Lexington Avenue route leaves the lower West Side wholly neglected, and at the same time burdens the whole subway system of Manhattan with unnecessary and unprofitable competition. The Record and Guide believes, moreover, that the plan of extending the existing subway north from Lexington avenue and Forty-second street and south from Seventh avenue and Forty-second street would not forbid the early revival of the old project for a subway on Third avenue and the Bowery. Such a subway would, it is true, compete with the Lexington avenue subway north of Forty-second street, but it would also open an area in which the traffic is very dense and utterly unprovided with sufficient accommodations. Moreover, a four-track Third avenue subway would be of immense benefit to the Bronx. Such a route should be used in order to provide a southern outlet for the system of the New York & New Haven north of the Harlem River. That railroad company is constructing a most elaborate set of roads in the Bronx and Westchester, designed particularly for the purpose of developing the express traffic; but no steps have yet been taken to provide for the transportation of these passengers to the financial district The Third avenue route is best adapted for this purpose, and it should be planned largely for the accommodation of the many thousands of passengers which the New Haven system will collect north of the Harlem River.

THE NEW "TITLE REGISTRATION" ACT.

THIS new law, just signed by the Governor, will by its own terms take effect separately in each county, like "Local Option," as and when so adopted by a majority vote had at a general election, as a constitutional amendment is adopted by the people of the State—the law is therefore a sort of definition and sanction of proposed action left to the will of the people by referendum, and then to be adopted by individual owners as they may wish.

We doubt if many voters are now at all familiar with the proposed changes of law with regard to this question, other than, perhaps, that they are recommended generally as a great and good thing, perhaps a little revolutionary, and in the nature of the kind of thing being pioneered by such progressive, and shall we say "socialistic," commonwealths as New Zealand, Australia, and our own Oklahoma.

That "Title Registration" of more or less similar character has already been adopted in Massachusetts and Illinois, and that our law closely follows the Illinois law, leads us to the consideration first of the views there had as to the objects attained, and the popularity of the respective laws on the subject.

As a preliminary, then, to the general subject which we will continue in later numbers we append a report of the Registrar of Titles of Cook County (Chicago), Ill., as to the purposes and objects attained by the law there.

"The object of the registering of title is to establish it in the owner as against the whole world. This is practically accomplished as soon as the title is registered. After the expiration of two years from the date of registration, no person, whatever may be his claim, may question the validity of the title so registered. In other words, the law allows two years within which persons who may have had an interest, and who were not notified of the application for registration, may establish the validity of their claim. If they fail to do so within that time, they are forever barred. In a proceeding" [for registration] "properly conducted, every person having any possible interest is notified of the pendency of the application; hence the title is practically established as against the whole world so soon as it is registered" [and absolutely after two years]. "It will thus be seen that an owner in obtaining a certificate of title, secures, at a small expense, a thorough examination of his title, a decree confirming it, the protection" [in the interim] "afforded by the indemnity fund, and at the expiration of two years an absolute defense under the statute against any person who may seek to attack his title."

Continuing, he says:

In the administration of the Torrens Law I have observed the following features to be of great practical importance to those who avail themselves of its provisions:

It is the simplest and most economical method of correcting defects and imperfections in and establishing title to real estate. It far excels all other existing court procedure by which this may be accomplished. Even in those cases where defects in the title render a lawyer's services necessary, the cost of a Torrens Registration (seldom exceeding thirty dollars and a small attorney's fee) compares most favorably with the heavy expense attendant upon other court proceedings.

The decree of the court establishing the title has greater finality than in any other proceeding. After two years no possible attack can be made directly or indirectly against it. By this wise provision the law declares that all disputes about the title are at an end, a new leaf has been turned, all past controversies or suspicions have been buried in oblivion and the property owner may rest content in the assurance that no voice out of the past will ever be raised to question his title. After the registration of the title the property owner benefits primarily by the following advantages:

1. In the rapidity with which he may close the sale of his property or make a loan upon it. Such transactions require no waste of time in making abstract continuations or examinations. They require only time enough to execute and file the necessary documents, seldom more than 24 hours, and it can be done if necessary in 30 minutes.

2. In the advice given by the examiners of titles at no expense to the property owner as to the manner of executing instruments when doubt is raised, and in the careful check upon the accuracy of all papers filed. In this way I think it may be said without any exaggeration that 75 per cent. of all errors which arise from day to day under the recording system are absolutely eliminated. To use a familiar illustration, the system locks the doors before the horse is stolen. Under the recording system errors lie dormant sometimes for years, only to give the property owner trouble and expense and oftentimes to involve him in heavy loss. I take great pride in saying that in the nine years of the system's operation, with all the disadvantages due to its newness and the lack of familiarity with it on the part of the public, no one has as yet claimed to have suffered any pecuniary loss. This record speaks more eloquently than anything that can be said about its theoretical advantages.

3. In the great cheapness of the system to the property owner. The average transfer costs three dollars, whether the property be in value $100,000 or $100. All abstract expense is thus eliminated. To the man selling a large subdivision this item of expense amounts oftentimes to hundreds of dollars. It has the advantage that wherever the lots are sold for small prices, the price is very attractive to the purchaser of small means, who knows that the price to him is net; and the owner can well afford to pay the transfer fee to encourage the sales.

4. In the responsibility of the County of Cook for the fidelity and accuracy of all the work done by the Registrar and his subordinates. Under the recent amendments to the law, the county is made responsible. As a practical problem the losses, in my judgment, in the years to come will be insignificant, but as an absolute safeguard and indemnity the responsibility of the County of Cook is far preferable to the guaranty of any private individual or corporation, however responsible.

In closing I would say that the old adage that the test of the pudding is in the eating of it can well be applied to the Torrens Law. Try it and you will discover innumerable advantages, and you will wonder why people are so slow to avail themselves of a system of such incalculable benefit.—Abel Davis, Registrar.

If our proposed similar act shall secure any such objects and savings of expense with regard to security of titles, and cheapness and facility of transfer, we shall do well to follow in their lead.

The provisions for the indemnification of all parties injured by operation of the law, as well as the details of registration under the New York and other acts, will be considered in later sequence.

As above stated the law is as yet until adoption by the several counties purely academic, and, so far as appears to us is rather a crude definition of "good intention" towards the land owner, probably requiring much thought and tinkering, even possibly amendment by a further Legislature before adoption in so large and important a county as that of New York.

We rushed blindly into a Mortgage Tax Law, which, though a good thing in its general purpose, yet caused a lot of uncertainty and required a radical change to make it a generally satisfactory and workable body of law.

Before taking another such step blindly the best thought of all interested in real estate must be availed of, and the Record and Guide will gladly welcome communications and suggestions of amendment for publication in our columns. It is a great pity for the public welfare that a railroad must always first be laid before building comes along, and an act become law before real public interest is awakened, and improvement effected by amendment; both arising from the uncertainty always incident to a "proposed" railroad line or an act before the Legislature becoming a fact. It is a pity, but probably it always will be the case. But nevertheless let us look well before we leap in this case, and be sure that the law is the best it can be made, before binding ourselves to the adoption of a law which is unquestionably as radical a change of the present recording system in many general respects, once adopted by a county, irrespective of individual adoption by individual land owners, as was the present Recording Law when adopted years ago.

FOR PREVENTION OF ACCIDENTS.—Among the most important International Congresses to be held this year in Europe, is the Eighth International Congress for the Prevention of Accidents. Its sessions are held every three years, and are always attended by the most influential governmental officials, publicists, social economists, men of affairs and professors. The reports of the Congress are made by the most eminent world specialists, so that the volume of these proceedings is the record of the world's latest and best advance in accident prevention. Of especial value will be the report of an international committee on the "standardization," so to speak, of accidents, their causes, duration, and results, so that a world standard may be agreed upon as the basis for a comparative study. Membership in this Congress is only $2, which entitles the subscriber to all the reports and the complete proceedings. The membership fee may be sent to Dr. W. H. Tolman, 231 West 39th st, New York, by whom it will be acknowledged and forwarded to Rome.

—The Pennsylvania Road is desirous of a subway in 7th av, especially south of 42d st. Vice-President Rea, in a letter to Comptroller Metz, says a line on the west side of the city is imperatively needed, because the Pennsylvania Railroad and Long Island Railroad will place in the 7th av and 33d st district daily over 200,000 passengers.

—The Fulton Trust Co., 30 Nassau st, is sending to those who make application an interesting booklet on the life of Robert Fulton.

CONSTRUCTION

LESSONS FROM THE PARKER BUILDING.

IN the 15th of January, 1908, the New York Board of Fire Underwriters passed a resolution requesting a committee to obtain a report by Mr. W. C. Robinson, Chief Engineer of the Underwriters' Laboratories (Chicago) of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, on the effect on the Parker Building, 233 Fourth av, New York City, of the fire which occurred therein January 10th, 1908.

In transmitting the report the committee explained that the delay which has occurred in its preparation has been due to the fact that important structural members, which it was essential to recover and examine, were covered by huge piles of debris and were only recently accessible.

Mr. Robinson in some preliminary remarks takes the view that the Parker Building was fairly representative of fireproof buildings occupied for mercantile and light manufacturing purposes in New York City, and is said to have been of even better construction than many later buildings. Its practical destruction, while surprising to the general public, he remarks, furnishes no reason for the discredit of fireproof building construction and taught no lessons to the fire protection engineer which have not been more or less thoroughly understood. The results of this fire, however, served to emphasize the necessity for better design, for the more effective use of the materials employed in fireproofing and also the necessity for efficient inside fire protection in high buildings used for the storage of large quantities of combustible materials.

In some further general remarks, the engineer says:

"The large amount of combustible material in the Parker Building, its excessive area, inadequately protected stair and elevator shafts and lack of facilities for the prompt discovery of fire, furnished conditions which permitted this fire to gain very great headway before the arrival of the fire department. The loss on this building with its contents under such circumstances, directs attention to the probability that under similar conditions of construction, area and occupancy fires may assume proportions beyond the control of a well-equipped fire department, especially as unavoidable delays due to condition of the streets, absence of nearest engines at other fires, etc., are possible at any time."

Mr. Robinson did not undertake to make any special investigation of alleged deficiencies in fire-fighting facilities at this fire, as this did not come within the scope of his commission. He proceeds to give a description of the fire, and concludes this portion of his report with the remark that "in buildings of large area containing considerable quantities of combustible material, the fireproofing should be capable of withstanding temperatures as high as 2,000° Fahr. for several hours."

Other portions of the report follow.

DAMAGE TO COLUMNS.

The cast-iron columns were apparently uninjured except in and surrounding the collapsed areas and at one or two other points. The sixth story section of column 45 failed about 4 ft. 6 ins. below the seventh floor, and the eleventh story sections of columns 33 and 34 failed about 4 ft. below the twelfth floor level. These failures were caused by heat, the columns being deflected and bulged at the points of fracture.

The failure of column 45 (as indicated in plans accompanying the report) caused the collapse of a section approximately 40 by 24 ft. of all floors from roof to basement, located near the rear court. The ninth, tenth and twelfth story sections of this column were broken into two or more pieces in falling.

The failure of columns 33 and 34 caused the collapse of a section of the twelfth floor, roof and roof house approximately 60 ft. long by 30 ft. wide, and an adjoining section of the roof and twelfth floor, approximately 15x20 ft. The falling material mostly lodged in the framing of the eleventh floor, large quantities of the tile arch blocks going through to lower stories and causing the failure of numerous arches by impact.

The ninth story section of column 25 was deflected by heat about 1 in., but did not fail. Slight deflection was also noted in the eleventh story section of column 27. Examination shows that the sixth story section of column 45 was defective both in thickness and material. About 25 to 30% of the lugs on the columns next to the main collapsed portion, namely, Nos. 38, 41, 46 and 51, were more or less broken, the fracture being through one bolt hole in some and both bolt holes in others. The bolts were either sheared or the threads stripped.

COLUMN COVERING.—Interior columns protected by circular porous terra cotta blocks, the shell being 1 in. with ribs of the same thickness and depth at the back. One inch air space between shell and column. Electric conduits were placed against columns, the tile blocks being cut away to accommodate this piping. The outer ends of the brackets were unprotected. Column covering finished with 1 to 1½ ins. of plaster in two coats. Hollow plaster caps at ceilings. Wall columns were protected by 4 ins. of brick work in lower stories and 2 ins. in upper stories, a few columns in east and south walls being protected by expanded metal and plaster on the inside. Steel columns in roof houses unprotected.

DAMAGE.—While the column covering was generally in position, careful investigation shows that it failed to protect the columns at several points, notably in the sixth and eleventh stories, the failures in these stories resulting in the collapse of the large areas heretofore described. The failure in the eleventh story may have been caused by a weakened condition of the covering resulting from a previous fire in this story. In many cases remote from the collapsed portions the column covering was badly split and damaged at the top, notably in the sixth, ninth, eleventh and twelfth stories, and to a lesser extent at other points. The weakened condition was apparently due to the distortion of the metal conduits, the lack of proper bonding on account of these pipes, and to the expansion of the tile itself. About 25% of the total column protection, although mostly in position, was badly damaged by fire. About 20% was damaged to a lesser degree. Due consideration has been given to the fact that considerable column protection was knocked off by falling material after the fire. In many instances the ultimate fire-resisting point had apparently been reached.

FLOOR ARCHES.

CONSTRUCTION.—Flat, side construction, 8-in. semi-porous hollow tile arches were used throughout, the soffit being 1½ ins. below the lower flanges of the floor beams. Over the arches was a loose cinder fill (some sand and some cement) 8½ ins. in thickness (except roof) and practically flush with the top of the 3-in. wood sleepers upon which 1⅛-in. matched pine top flooring was laid. The arch spans were generally 5 ft. in north and south bays excepting one arch in front of passenger elevators, which was 7 ft. The spans were 4 ft. 6 ins. and 6 ft. in the main portions of the floors.

The lightweight 4-cell arch blocks were used with 2-cell blocks next to the keys in the wider arches. The key blocks were generally 3 and 4-cell, broken tile and mortar being used in some cases. Skew backs having lips 1¼ to 1½ ins. in thickness were employed. The shells were ⅝ to ¾ in. in thickness and the webs ⅝ in. except for skew backs, in which the shells and webs were ¾ in. thick. The tie rods extended through the center of the arch blocks. The mortar joints between blocks were ½ to ¾ in. in thickness. The workmanship was apparently above the average.

The architect's application for a building permit provides for a live load capacity of 150 lbs. per sq. ft. It is understood that the allowable live load was afterwards reduced to 120 lbs.

The effective depth of the arches was approximately 6½ ins., as the soffit was 1½ ins. below the bottom flanges of the beams. These shallow arches were not only too weak for the spans, but their live load capacity was considerably reduced by the unusual amount of cinder fill. At the large roof house the dead load alone exceeded the allowable safe live load, the cinder fill at this point being in excess of 30 ins. While subject to some extent to vibration caused by cylinder printing presses, any stresses from this source are not believed to have been important, as the presses were not large or in any considerable number.

DAMAGE.—Approximately 22½% of the total number of floor arches dropped out, sagged or were noticeably cracked during and immediately following the fire, many falling some time after the fire was extinguished. Next to the failure of the columns and resulting collapse of adjoining floor panels, the failure of the arches was the most noticeable feature of the structural damage resulting from this fire. From the information obtainable it is not believed that any of the arches failed previous to the collapse of the columns or for about two hours after the fire started. The arches were not strong enough to withstand the impact of any considerable amount of falling material, and the failure of by far the greater number was from this cause. Heavy safes and presses broke through and fell several stories in a number of instances, although these heavy weights were sometimes retained at the original floor level by the steel framing. On several stories some of the arches were undoubtedly weakened by heat to a point where they would not sustain the dead load. The 7-ft. arch in front of the elevators fell out on ten floors, starting at the tenth. (Vacant story above.) A number of other arches in several of the upper floors also fell, although subject to no live load.

The wood sleepers and top flooring were not broken through in numerous cases where the arches apparently fell subsequent to the fire, although the impact of the falling material was sufficient to cause the successive failure of the arches in several floors directly underneath.

It was very noticeable that by far the greater number of arch failures occurred on the 6-ft. spans, the failure being almost without exception by shear next to the skew backs. The inability of this type of arch to withstand shearing stresses was very apparent.

Comparatively little of the soffit dropped off of the arches which remained in position, but the damage by fire, water and frost will undoubtedly necessitate their removal on all floors. The soffit generally came off in small patches, this damage being most noticeable in the rear of the fifth story, in northeast corner and on each side of the collapsed portion in sixth, in southwest corner and north side of seventh, in the northwest section of eighth, north side of ninth and on the eleventh story.

PARTITIONS.

The partitions enclosing the stair and elevator halls and the corridors were built of 3-in. hollow terra cotta blocks. Wood bucks were used at door openings and wood framing and casings at large side lights next to door openings. Doors provided with thin glass panels and side lights glazed with thin glass. Four in. hollow terra cotta blocks were used for a few corridor and room partitions, notably in upper stories. Some terra cotta partitions reported to have been built on wood top flooring. Electric conduits mounted in hall partitions in some cases. Plaster board nailed to wood studding and resting on wood top flooring used in some stories. Thin matched board and light wood and thin glass partitions frequently used throughout the building. Rooms mostly very large.

DAMAGE.—Hall and corridor partitions presented no obstruction to the progress of the fire on account of the wood doors and large thin glass side lights. Partitions collapsed when wood supports were destroyed. In some cases sections of room partitions, not provided with openings, remained in position but were generally loose, bulged or badly damaged. Plaster board, wood and glass partitions generally totally destroyed.

TEMPERATURES.

Careful examination of the metals and materials in the various stories shows that the maximum temperatures reached in this fire were seldom lower and often higher than those developed in the average fireproof building in the Baltimore and San Francisco conflagrations.

Glass, brass electric fixtures and lighter brass parts on typewriters and machinery, fused freely at many points in most all stories above the fifth. (Temperatures estimated at 1,400 to 1,800° Fahr.) Copper wire was not so generally fused, but incipient fusion (slightly in excess of 1,900° Fahr.) was noted in several places in the seventh, eighth and ninth stories, and a fairly large stranded copper cable was melted by heat from the fire at several points in the rear of the eleventh story.

The highest temperature noted in any story (estimated at slightly in excess of 2,000° Fahr.) was in the northwest corner of the eighth, where the cast-iron frame of a typewriter was fused. This was the only case where any signs of fusion were observed in cast iron, although presses and machines were examined wherever accessible. Brass castings having heavier sections were rarely fused, although steam valves had reached the brittle point in a number of places and brass fixture arms were broken into short sections by their own weight and were melted in several stories. The temperatures were more uniformly higher in the eleventh than in any other story in the building. The south stairs and elevators were subjected to comparatively little heat, but the condition of the steel in the east stair and elevator shafts shows the effect of temperatures quite as high, if not higher, than in any other part of the building.

The temperatures rarely exceeded 1,900°, but were probably in excess of 1,800° for considerable periods in several stories. The amount of quenching by means of outside streams had a material influence on both the severity and duration of the fire in stories below the tenth, but the opportunity for the application of water from nearby buildings was comparatively favorable.

CONCLUSIONS.

Engineer Robinson draws fifteen conclusions from the facts presented in his report. It must be remembered that he represents the extreme views of the insurance companies.

1. In buildings of mercantile, manufacturing or storage occupancy, it is absolutely essential that all vertical openings be thoroughly enclosed in substantial fireproof shafts having standard fire doors at all openings or so arranged that the shaft is without openings directly into the various stories. Unprotected vertical openings through buildings are the greatest factor in the loss of life and property by fire and the proper safeguarding of this hazard demands the most careful attention of all concerned.

2. The height of fireproof buildings of mercantile, manufacturing or storage occupancy should be limited to correspond to the degree of protection the building equipment and the fire department is able to furnish. In other words, if adequate fire protection in any building is not available above a certain height, the building should be limited to such height.

3. Buildings of large unbroken floor areas filled with combustible contents develop the severest fires and constitute one of the most dangerous sources of general conflagration. Floor areas in buildings of this character should be subdivided by substantial brick fire walls sufficient to form a positive barrier to the spread of fire.

4. Fireproof buildings, no matter how well designed and constructed, do not prevent the destruction by fire of contents in any story; and it is essential that high buildings of mercantile, manufacturing or storage occupancy be thoroughly protected by a standard equipment of automatic sprinklers.

5. Exterior openings in buildings should be thoroughly protected against exposing fires. Universal efficient fire protection of exterior openings will practically eliminate the danger of conflagration in cities.

9. Cast-iron columns should not be used in high buildings, as their failure is usually complete, and results in sudden total collapse of the sections supported. Girders and beams cannot be rigidly attached to such columns and defects in the material cannot be easily detected.

10. It is essential that all structural members of fireproof buildings be protected by a sufficient mass of fireproofing to thoroughly insulate them against the heat which would be developed by the rapid burning of all materials permitted in any story of such buildings. It is also essential that all fireproofing be firmly anchored, or otherwise securely held in position, where it is of such a nature or so designed that it will become loose as a result of heat. On account of their great importance structurally, columns should be insulated by at least 4 ins. of fireproofing; and no pipes or conduits should be placed in or back of the fireproofing material. On account of the heavy mass of fireproofing with which girders and floor beams are in contact, a lesser amount of protection can be safely employed at the soffits. Generally this should not be less than 2 ins. for girders and 1½ ins. for floor beams.

13. No wood or other combustible material should be employed in the construction of fireproof partitions and all metal supports or reinforcements should be thoroughly insulated from heat. Fireproof doors and wired glass in standard metal frames should be used at necessary openings in corridor and room partitions. Provision for expansion in the material used and in metal supports entering into the construction of fireproof partitions is essential, particularly where hollow terra cotta blocks are employed. All fireproof partitions should rest on solid incombustible material.

PUTTING AN END TO JERRY PLUMBING.

Building Superintendent Edward Murphy has taken official action to put an end to the practice of certain speculative plumbers of using "lightweight" cast-iron pipe below the standard weight required by the Manhattan plumbing regulations, in the outfitting of buildings in the borough. This pipe is used extensively in all buildings for waste and soil lines, and interior plumbing fitting generally, and when it is below the standard, because of light weight and defective manufacture it is the cause of dissemination of sewer gas in the buildings and a source of serious unsanitary conditions. The attention of the superintendent was drawn to the matter by the investigation made by Daniel V. Mahoney, the expert on sanitary engineering on the department staff, who found that several contractors were using "lightweight material" in plumbing that was being installed in several buildings, taking advantage of the absence of the regular department inspector to smuggle in the "jerry" work. Mr. Mahoney ordered all this defective material removed at once, and upon his report of his discoveries Supt. Murphy called a conference with a committee of the Master Plumbers' Association at the Manhattan Department offices.

The Superintendent reported what he had learned concerning the use of the objectionable piping, and announced that it was the intention of the department to put a stop to the abuse and disregard of the law. He explained that this action was to be taken to protect the interests of property owners and tenants, as well as the master plumbers themselves by suppressing the few unscrupulous men whose business methods were a detriment to the trade. The committee endorsed this stand, and stated that the master plumbers would lend the Superintendent every aid in bringing about the needed elimination of "jerry" plumbing.

Mr. Murphy thanked the committee, and following the conference he issued a new standing order that hereafter no cast-iron piping, or any other plumbing work be done in any building in Manhattan until written notice has first been sent to the department, so that an inspector may be on hand to examine the material as it is delivered, and whenever necessary weigh it to see that it is of standard construction. The department regulations require that each length of pipe shall be stamped with its average weight per linear foot and bear the name of the manufacturer also. Each inspector is now provided with a vertical scale, capable of registering up to 150 pounds, to be used in weighing the pipe. These scales were provided by Borough President Ahearn and are a novel and effective aid in the work of proper pipe testing. They are carried in oblong boxes when not in actual use.

Superintendent Murphy also forwarded to every registered plumber a letter stating the adoption of the new rule as to preliminary written notice to the department, and announcing the decision of the department to hold strictly responsible any who in defiance of the warning attempt hereafter to use the tabooed lightweight piping. Disregard of the Superintendent's order, under the Building Code, is punishable by fine upon conviction, or by the still more serious penalty of revocation of the license to do plumbing work in Greater New York, the latter extreme to be adopted at the discretion of the Superintendent.

The action taken by Mr. Murphy has already been commended by reputable business men in the building trades, as well as by property owners, and he himself is said to feel that with the promised co-operation of the master plumbers he will be able to maintain a successful embargo against the evil of "jerry" plumbers and their tricky ways.

INTERIOR WOODWORK DISCUSSED.

THE committee from the Building Code Commission gave a hearing on the subject of Carpenter-work and Woodwork, at the City Hall, on Wednesday, May 20, Chairman T. L. Hamilton presiding. Remarks were made by Messrs. Waldron Williams, of the firm of Ichabod T. Williams & Sons; Frank T. Avery, representing the interior trim interests; John F. Steeves, of Church E. Gates & Co., lumber merchants; Edwin Outwater, Victor Behr, of the Brotherhood of Painters; D. W. O'Neil, of the Empire Woodworking Co., representing the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association; Charles H. Busher, of the Joint District Council of Carpenters and Joiners. Mr. Avery said:

"If it please the committee I have been requested to come here, representing the interior wood trim manufacturers, and also the Brotherhoods of Carpenters and Painters, whose work is used in connection with that class of material. The first point I wish to speak of is a question of limiting or lessening the height of fireproof buildings, so as to exclude the possibility of the use of wood trim above a certain height.

"It has been suggested that it may be in contemplation to exclude from buildings above a certain height wood trim, even fireproof wood trim, and to require that steel, or metal trim, or metal-covered trim, be used exclusively in buildings above that certain height. Now, aside altogether from the question of the pocketbook of the wood-trim manufacturers, and aside altogether from the question of the very great loss that would be occasioned by that in the vested interests, and to the large number of laboring men and artisans employed by them—the question is whether that would be of any very great benefit to the public.

"It has been said that the fires which take place in the trim of a building in a room which is trimmed are not occasioned by the trim and are not accelerated especially by the trim itself. A fire such as we had in the Home Life Insurance Co.'s building comes from the furniture and all that stuff—the waste paper baskets and all sorts of things in the room itself. The little trim, the base, the window sash, and the trim around the window and the door, and a door or two, are not important in that respect, and the danger of fire would not be very largely lessened by the use of a purely metal trim. I do not think that the Building Code should be so revised as to shut out a large and important industry, unless there be some very pressing and good reason for it.

"The other point that I wish to refer to is the extension of the fire limits. The importance of having fireproof buildings in the business part of the city, such as this part of the city where we now are, and the office buildings, does not apply, and would not appeal to the committee in respect to outlying districts, which must be built up in some measure as they have already been built. Those are the points which I wish to speak about, and those are the only points which I wish to make.

"The committee which I represent, the Committee of the Trim Manufacturers, has embodied their suggestions in a paper which I will hand to your committee.

(Mr. Avery then presented his paper to the committee. It was as follows:)

"At a mass meeting of the trim manufacturers, cabinet makers, union carpenters and painters, held at the Hotel Astor Monday, May 18, the following resolution was adopted as representing the sentiment of the gentlemen present:

"To the Honorable Committee on Revision of Building Code:

"Gentlemen—On behalf of the manufacturers of wood trim, the master carpenters and the union workmen who are engaged in the preparation and installation of interior wood trim in buildings in the City of New York, and representing the sentiment of over seven hundred employers of labor, involving millions of capital, and over nineteen thousand union workingmen employed in the factories and upon the buildings in Greater New York, we desire to respectfully submit to your honorable body their views relative to any reduction of the building heights where wood is used for trim purposes, and to place ourselves and the interests we represent on record as favoring the continuation of the present Building Code, in so far as wood trim is concerned.

"We believe the reduction of the height of fireproof buildings to less than one hundred and fifty (150) feet would be an unjust and unnecessary burden imposed upon the building industry of this city, and that it would work incalculable injury to the building trade.

"If steel trim takes the place of wood, the capital invested in innumerable plants that have been called into existence by the demand for wood trim, will be idle, or be confined to a reduced output, and the workingmen employed in the preparation and installation of wood trim must inevitably be turned out of employment, owing to the fact that the work he has been educated to do will be in a great measure no longer required.

"In short, such a reduction would result in a prostration of the building business, such as we have not witnessed for years, and would mean ruin for a large number of manufacturers, employers of labor, who have given many years of their lives and invested vast sums of money in perfecting plants to meet the demands which have been created by the development of property in the City of New York.

"We further desire to place ourselves on record as being opposed to the reduction of the height of non-fireproof structures to less than seventy-five (75) feet, the limitation now in force. Such a reduction of non-fireproof structures to less than seventy-five (75) feet would in our opinion be unnecessary, inasmuch as the authorities of the fire department state that a six-story structure is absolutely within their control, and therefore nothing could be gained by reducing the limitation to a five-story building. Furthermore, if such a reduction should be enacted, it would stop the construction of tenement houses of this class entirely, for the reason that even under the present Building Code it is difficult to so erect these buildings that any reasonable return for the money invested can be secured, and the added cost, if the non-fireproofed building should be reduced to five (5) stories, would in our estimation absolutely eliminate the construction of this class of buildings.

"In conclusion, we believe that the present limitations are entirely adequate to fully protect property interests, for the amount of wood trim in an average office of a fireproof structure is two doors, two interior windows, and one exterior window, and fifty feet of base; the total amount of lumber being about two hundred and seventy-five (275) feet. This lumber when treated with a fireproof process precludes the possibility of fire extending beyond the room in which it originates. The benefits, if any, therefore, of any change in the use of wood for trim purposes, or in the reduction in the height of buildings, would accrue to the insurance companies alone.

"We further believe that due consideration should be given by your honorable body to the changing of the fire limits in New York City. We are convinced that the same laws of restriction that would be applicable and desirable in the lower congested section of Manhattan Island, ought not to be enforced in the apartment house section of the upper residential part of the city. Neither do we believe that any policy enforcing semi-proof conditions in the extreme northern parts of Manhattan Island, or in the larger portions of the other boroughs would enact for public good.

"Therefore, first, in the interest of our own craft representing about twenty thousand men; second, in the interest of the painters, decorators, and varnishers, representing about ten thousand men; third, in the interest of the small real estate owners throughout Greater New York, and in the interest of the best public policy, we appeal to you gentlemen in making your recommendation not to reduce the height of non-fireproof structures below seventy-five feet, and further, not to reduce to less than one hundred and fifty feet fireproof buildings, nor to eliminate or restrict the use of wood for trim purposes in any buildings as described under the present Building Code."

FROM THE MASTER CARPENTERS.

Mr. Edwin Outwater, builder, 225 5th av, representing the Master Carpenters' Association, said:

"In behalf of the Master Carpenters' Association, I wish to present the following report as to the question of trims. It has not been considered particularly in our association, but I am well satisfied with the sentiment of our association, that it would be on identically the same lines that the two speakers preceding me have outlined.

"We have taken up the question as it stands in the Building Code to-day, allowing a six-story non-fireproof building for manufacturing purposes to be erected. The idea that seems to prevail is to cut it down to a five-story building.

"On behalf of the Master Carpenters' Association, we protest against changing the height of non-fireproof buildings, from seventy-five feet to sixty-five feet in height.

"We believe that to reduce the height of buildings from seventy-five to sixty-five feet, would be an injustice to the property holder of limited means, for the reason that a six-story building will bring him more revenue than a five-story building would do, while the same roof would cover both and the extra cost of the sixth story would be less proportionally than the reduction in rent, and save to the city the tax which it would lose.

"We know that other interests are demanding this change. Why should large manufacturing interests indirectly seek to get an advantage over other industries, and because of their wealth and prestage press the change in the Code; why should the strong and wealthy seek to injure the small holder of land in our community, by compelling him to put up a smaller building on his land, or sell to the man or men of greater wealth?

"Non-fireproof buildings seventy-five feet high can be and are, reached by our fire department, and fires in such buildings are controlled by it, and less damage results to such buildings than to some of the so-called fireproof structures.

"Gentlemen of the Committee:—

"If you limit the height of non-fireproof buildings in this city, in the Borough of Manhattan to sixty-five feet you will simply drive the manufacturing industries that we now have here into some of our neighboring States, which will entail a loss to our city in taxes, and drive those who live in our city elsewhere to live, for they will have to go where their work calls; this means a loss to our tradesmen in the city.

"We hope that you will not allow undue pressure to influence you to make this change. The man who may own one or two lots, the man of moderate means, who cannot afford to put up a steel structure and fireproof building, should not be prevented from improving his property, in what we claim a reasonable way, as it is under the present Building Code, simply for the benefit of National Association interests, which have been set forth at nearly every meeting of the sub-committee of the Building Code Revision Committee. What are we spending so much money for in water supply, both fresh and salt; is it to protect the interests of National Associations only or the public generally, the poor man, or the rich man, the corporation or the individual land owner?

"Gentlemen, we believe that you will consider this matter carefully and conservatively, and will do justly to all concerned, providing us with a Building Code that will enable the citizens of New York to retain its manufacturing and mercantile interests within our city limits, and thus retain the tax-paying industries here, and keep our own citizens employed."

CONCRETE PILES AND TIES.

At a meeting of the New York Railway Club in the Engineering Societies Building on Friday evening, May 15, the paper of the evening was on the subject of Reinforced Concrete Piles and Ties, by Mr. A. C. Chenoweth, of Brooklyn. This lecture was illustrated by stereopticon and was exceedingly interesting. The Chenoweth pile and tie is reinforced in a very novel manner and the methods devised for the practical construction of this pile are unusually clever. Mr. Chenoweth has succeeded in getting these piles into the ground in a number of large works. Notably, the Greenville freight yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, New York Harbor, and in a number of concrete trestles on railroads in the Middle West, as well as on some difficult work near Pittsburgh.

The discussion of Mr. Chenoweth's paper had been arranged beforehand through the invitation of the secretary of the Railway Club to certain men prominent in the concrete industry in this city. They spoke as follows: Mr. H. C. Turner, president of the Turner Construction Company, showed about forty lantern slides descriptive of representative reinforced concrete building construction in the Metropolitan territory. In discussing these slides, Mr. Turner emphasized the fireproofness, vibration-proofness and economy of this building material. Particularly interesting were the Robert Gair Company, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, and the Bush Terminal Company buildings. These are all monumental in character and represent the highest development in reinforced concrete construction.

Mr. Ross F. Tucker, consulting engineer, followed Mr. Turner with an energetic discussion of reinforced concrete from the fireproof point of view. Mr. Tucker referred briefly to the Baltimore fire, and, more particularly, to the San Francisco disaster; in both of which instances reinforced concrete covered itself with glory. In San Francisco, particularly, are there instances citable where reinforced concrete buildings withstood both fire and earthquake in perfect shape. Mr. Tucker emphasized the fact that terra cotta tile for fireproof purposes, if properly built, is a good material, but as generally constructed at the present time it is most unreliable. This was shown especially well in the Parker Building fire.

Mr. Earnest L. Ransome, of the Ransome Concrete Machinery Company of this city and Plainfield, N. J., who may be regarded as the pioneer of the reinforced concrete industry of this country, when asked to discuss the topic of the evening, referred chiefly to the fire in the Pacific Coast Borax plant at Bayonne some years ago. This refinery is of reinforced concrete construction, and, owing to the breakage of a feed pipe, all floors of the building were flooded with hot oil, which promptly took fire. The resulting conflagration was sufficiently fierce to melt cast iron and to fuse copper, and yet the building itself was practically uninjured. Mr. Ransome cited this in confirmation of Mr. Tucker's remarks.

The discussion of the evening was closed by Mr. Frank B. Gilbreth, general contractor, who endorsed Mr. Chenoweth's statements about the economy and excellence of reinforced concrete piles as evidenced by his own experience with piles of similar character. Mr. Gilbreth then went on to relate some of the instances in his extensive experience where reinforced concrete had proved itself to be the best and most economical building material as yet devised. Mr. Gilbreth referred to the extensive work in reinforced concrete construction which is being carried on in Los Angeles and San Francisco, and stated that its was his opinion that it was only a question of a few years when reinforced concrete would be practically supreme in this country.

STEEL CONSTRUCTION AS I KNOW IT.

By LEROY S. BUFFINGTON.

(Concluded.)

Messrs. Dickerson, Brown, Raegener & Binney, New York City, attorneys in patent cases, furnished a report of 36 pages on the validity of the patent, gathered from United States and European patent offices to Stern & Rushmore, attorneys and counsellors, New York City. This report is conclusive of the validity of the patent, and is remarkable for the great number of examiners in the various patent offices and the attorneys connected therewith.

Mr. Walter Clyde Jones, of Chicago and New York, attorney in patent cases, is my counsel, who examined all papers and buildings pertaining to the patent.

THE HOME LIFE INSURANCE BUILDING.

I have personally, and with others, examined many buildings in the United States and various parts of Europe that have been pointed out to me as being like my patent, but I have found none of them with the masonry supported on shelves fastened to the braced skeleton of metal. A building in Chicago known as the Home Life Insurance Building has been particularly mentioned. The Sanitary Engineer of December 10, 1885, pages 32 and 33, contains a description and illustration of this building by the architect himself, and the idea he had when he built it was as the heading indicates: "The Construction of a Heavy Fireproof Building on Compressible Soil." Those who are interested to know exactly how it is built should read it. This building was originally nine stories high with basement. Two more stories were added in the 90's, after my patent was issued.

A square cast-iron column was built in each of the FRONT BRICK PIERS. The piers are five feet four inches thick at the street level. As the building must settle, care was taken to make the construction ELASTIC; as bolts do not accurately fit the holes, a clamp was introduced to pull the beams together. The usual masonry, calculated to carry say five tons per square foot, would make the WALLS OBJECTIONABLY THICK, so selected hard-burnt brick were used that would carry from eight to ten tons per square foot. The best hoop iron 3 inches wide and 3-16 of an inch in thickness and 3 to 4 feet long was used to bind the WALLS TOGETHER. The foundation was built of rubble and dimension stone in alternate layers,—THE PARTY AND OTHER WALLS OF SOLID BRICK; the building settled 2¼ inches.

As will be seen, this building is just the ordinary kind with a square cast-iron column built in the street piers, the brick surrounding this cast-iron column was built independently from the footing to the top. It has neither braced skeleton nor shelf.

I will now quote from my patent, claims 1, 5, 13 and 14:

1. A building having a continuous skeleton of metal, a covering of veneer, and a non-conducting packing between the skeleton and veneer, for the purpose set forth.

5. In iron building construction, the combination, with a framing composed of laminated posts suitably connected by braces and girts, of an exterior covering of non-conducting material, and a stone or other veneering exterior thereto and supported on shelves secured to the framing, substantially as set forth.

13. The combination, with the posts and girts, of the angle plates connecting them and forming supports for the veneer shelves.

14. The combination, with the posts and their braces, of the plates forming the shelf supports, the shelves, the veneer, and the anchor rods, substantially as set forth.

The foregoing is the simple story, as I know it, for the past quarter of a century, and the part I have taken as the inventor of the skeleton of steel construction. Every word is taken from undisputable records, the patent office, the newspapers, the periodicals, the architectural, engineering and scientific journals of 1888 especially.

I most sincerely commend this history to men who think practically and scientifically upon matters of this nature. I often think of the rapidity with which things pass by and disappear—both the things which are and the things which are produced. For substance is like a river in a continuous flow, and the activities of things are in constant change, and the causes work in infinite varieties; and there is nothing that stands still.

SIX-THOUSAND-STORY BUILDING.

New York, Oct., 1907.—If all the skyscrapers in New York were piled one on top of the other, a building of more than 6,000 stories would rear itself toward heaven.

The building department has just finished counting the lofty buildings in the city; 540 of them have been erected since 1890.

Including the Metropolitan Life Building, which is not finished, the census of high buildings is:

One of the 50 stories; one of 41; two of 26; three of 25; two of 23; four of 22; nine of 20; two of 19; nine of 18; two of 17; nineteen of 16; nineteen of 15; eighteen of 14; thirteen of 13; 169 of 12; 101 of 11; 164 of 10.

Five hundred and forty buildings since 1890! Could anything be more prophetical of my claim as the inventor of the skeleton of steel? Very sincerely,

LEROY S. BUFFINGTON, Architect.

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT.

CURRENT PRICES.

BRICK.—The current use of brick seems to be only about fifty per cent. of the outgo at the corresponding time last year. The supply is extremely large, and prices are sympathetically in favor of the buyer. It is difficult to quote prices this rain-stunted week, so soft are they. In all respects the market is taking the natural course, and the manufacturers the consequence, and the builders the benefit.

In a word, Hudson River brick is being sacrificed, at prices less than cost, by manufacturers who are so situated that they must release their product. There are many who have shipped no material at all this year, not even when the market was paying $5.50 to $5.75 for good cargoes. Over one hundred million bricks are in the makers' hands, which, of course, means, under the present slight demand, a heavy surplus. Hards have sold for as little as $4.50 per M. by the cargo, but one cannot say whether the shipper will ever be willing to repeat the operation.

Manufacturers have no hesitancy in admitting that the market is without form or comeliness, and that prices are the lowest in years. They prefer to have this generally known, rather than that builders and investors should overlook the opportunity to build at low cost. There are some who are working under long term contracts, others who have set their prices, less than which they will not sell; and a number who are letting cargoes go for what they can get. Under such circumstances quotations on Hudson Rivers continue nominal.

Monday of this week was general resumption day for the works. Fewer hands are employed than heretofore, and some few yards will not manufacture at all this season.

CEMENT.—Eighty members of the Brooklyn Engineers' Club and as many others were guests of Thomas A. Edison last Saturday, the occasion being an inspection of the Edison Portland Cement Works at Stewartsville. To the visitors it was a day of many surprises. Every part of the great works is operated automatically. Mr. Edison took a keen delight in being one of the party, among whom were: Dr. Irving W. Fray, professor of chemistry in the Brooklyn Polytechnical Institute; Alfred D. Flinn and David D. Jackson, chemists in the Department of Water Supply of New York; Clarence D. Pollock, asistant engineer of the New York Department of Highways; George L. Rice, consulting engineer of the New York Public Service Commission, and George C. Whipple, president of the Brooklyn Engineers' Club and consulting engineer of that borough.

Luncheon was served on the train, and just before the visitors were permitted to leave the cars each was presented with a dustproof cap and coat. In the clouds of flying cement these garments proved acceptable. The quarry, which is located about a mile west of the reduction works, was the first place visited. Here three 90-ton steam shovels were in operation loading cement rock on cars. Returning to the plant, the visitors were divided into groups of ten, and each party was taken in charge by a guide. Every building was inspected, the engineers starting with the crusher house, where every hour 250 tons of stone is reduced to pieces not much larger than a pea. The giant rollers in this crusher house were invented by Mr. Edison, and it is claimed that this is the largest revolving crushing device in the world. Blocks of rock often weighing eight tons are placed in the receiving jaw at the top of the building to be reduced to small pieces of stone within a few minutes.

Probably the greatest interest was taken by the visitors in the kiln room, where intense heat is employed to reduce the pulverized rock or "chalk" to a clinker. In this room are ten of the largest rotary kilns in existence.

When the engineers had "blown themselves" with compressed air in order to remove the mantle of cement dust, refreshments were served in the laboratory, and the homeward journey was started at 5 o'clock.

Locally, cement feels the imminence of improved business, without actual realization, though the intervals between large orders seem shorter. A considerable amount of work is in sight, in the shape of excavating operations that will be taking cement soon. Money stringency has caused an accumulation of work in the shape of plans filed, figured and ready for the issuance of contracts, but held up by the shortness of money. The lending institutions continue to say "in a little while" to the majority of applicants. That money is gradually working its way around through some channels is evident from the works commenced. When the real break comes there will be busy times. Quotations are unchanged.

The U. S. Steel Corporation began operations this week at its new cement plant on the Monongahela River, between the Homestead and Duquesne steel mills. The plant is reported to have a capacity of 3,000,000 bbls. a year, and to represent an investment of $1,000,000. The corporation will convert its slag piles into cement. The slag in the past has been so much waste. Gas from the Duquesne and Homestead furnaces will be used to run the cement plant. It is estimated that the United States Steel Corporation uses 2,000,000 bbls. of cement a year.

IRON, STEEL, ETC.—The prospect of large orders in a short time have produced a better feeling among the foundries. Numerous contracts are pending for structural steel, but no new contracts are out. The bids are in for 400 tons for the new buildings of the Union Theological Seminary. The Municipal Building will take 7,000 tons or more, but the order will not be given for some time yet. The extension to the Hotel Astor, requiring 4,000 tons, has been temporarily withdrawn. Snare & Triest, general contractors for the South Ferry piers, have not yet placed the order for steel. J. B. & J. M. Cornell have the contract for the steel construction, 500 tons, for a loft building at 99-101 5th av.

During the week the Superintendent of Buildings, Edward S. Murphy, took measures to suppress the practice of some plumbing firms of installing short-weight iron pipe. At a conference held at headquarters with representatives of the Master Plumbers' Association, he was assured of their co-operation.

After the meeting of independent steel manufacturers with the representatives of the U. S. Steel Corporation on Thursday, the following statement was issued: "At the meeting of representatives of the principal manufacturers of steel in this country, the opinion was expressed by each one present that the prices of steel are reasonable and should not be reduced; that reduced prices, would not increase purchases and that most of their customers do not expect, or desire, any change. The opinion was unanimous that the meetings should be discontinued for the summer months unless the chairman should deem it advisable to call a meeting at any time for reasons which now do not appear."

Tin plate manufacturers report a heavy call for nearly all grades. Mills are running to capacity on rush orders, due to the approach of the canning season. Galvanized plates are also in good request, but black plates are still a little slow. Business in sheet zinc continues of small proportions. Consumers are taking nothing beyond actual requirements for immediate use.

LUMBER.—The lumber and woodworking interests were represented strongly at the hearing before the Building Code Revision Commission this week. The Lumber Dealers' Association, the Master Carpenters, the Manufacturing Woodworkers, the Interior Decorators, and the corresponding societies of journeymen, all made representations, or will hereafter submit briefs, against unnecessary and undue restriction of wood trim in buildings, or of the area within which frame buildings may be erected. The code which last year's commission reported specified no wood in buildings over one hundred feet in height, and the underwriters' representatives at a recent hearing (before another committee of the Building Code Commission) urged a prohibition against frame building anywhere in the greater city.

The consequences to carpenters and lumber merchants from either course would be disastrous. There are twenty thousand carpenters and joiners, and eight hundred employing firms, not counting the lumber firms, which have rights that cannot be ruthlessly swept away. It was pointed out at this week's meeting, especially by Mr. O'Neil, of the Empire Woodworking Co., that the small amount of ornamental wood trim now allowed in fireproof buildings was not an element of danger. Mr. O'Neil's firm had the distinction of erecting the first building in this city to have fireproof wood trim. This was the Dun Building, at Broadway and Duane st. He defied anyone to kindle a fire from woodwork in that building.

The particular question before the committee was that of woodwork only. The fire limits and the matter of height and area of buildings have the consideration of other committees. All of these subjects affect the lumber and woodworking interests, and the public feeling is so strongly against undue restrictions, especially of frame buildings in the outlying boroughs, that it is not generally believed there will be changes of a harmful nature to the trade.

The question of woodwork involves fireproof wood, but this was only indirectly referred to at the meeting. The Building Trades Employers' Association long ago registered a protest against the compulsory provision for fireproof wood in the existing code. The lumber trade expresses no opinion on this subject, but in general holds that the small amount of wood trim now used in fireproof buildings is not to be considered a fire hazard.

About 3,500,000 poles over 20 ft. long are annually used in this country for stringing wires. About three-fifths of the poles are cedar and one-fourth chestnut. The Government records show that the average price per pole for all kinds of timber in the United States is $2.65. Round poles bring an average of $2.63 and sawed poles $4.22 each. The higher cost of the sawed product is due chiefly to the additional labor and material necessary in their manufacture.

Mr. R. R. Chapman, president of the Long Island Lumber Co. of Long Island City, says that business in his line is still quiet, as might be expected, though the tunnel constructions have raised quite a demand, which is very welcome. A large number of plans have been figured all over Queens, and the contracts are ready to give out, but it is the same old story—the banks will not lend the money just now.

Henry Morgan, superintendent of the Long Island City Department of the Atlantic Coast Lumber Co., reports good prospects for later in the season. His is a wholesale concern and supplies retail yards throughout this part of the country. "We are doing within twenty-five per cent. of the volume of business of last year," declared Mr. Morgan, "and we expect the usual midsummer run, in expectation of which we are running all our mills at full capacity. Our men cut more that 750,000 feet a day."

The quotations given in this list are the wholesale prices to the retail trade on well manufactured and graded stock, according to the inspection rules at present obtaining. It is not practicable to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable, because terms of sale and other factors influence prices.

STONE.—Norcross Bros. expect to commence hauling the granite for the Pennsylvania terminal about the first of June. The stone is all cut at their works at Milford. The contract amounts to 400,000 cubic feet, the largest ever put into a building in this city.

Bids have been submitted for the limestone and granite for the Union Theological Seminary buildings, and an award is expected next week.

The walls of the Metropolitan tower are reaching the thirtieth story. About 175,000 cubic feet of Tuckahoe marble has been set, and 75,000 more is to come. The work has proceeded in the smoothest manner, though the setting has required extra care because of the size of the steel members around which the masonry is being laid.

The handling of the material has been exceedingly expeditious. Night work has been necessary at the quarries. Part of the stone has been cut in the shops there and part at Port Morris. The extensive facilities of the contractors, the Waverly Marble Co., has enabled them to have the blocks always ready for the setters at the building. The street has been kept free of accumulations of material in a remarkable degree, considering the size of the work. Mr. O'Reilly, when congratulated on the good work that was being done, replied, "Wait till we have finished."

The status of the stone trades shows improvement in spots. Much work has been figured, but contracts come slowly.

BUILDING NOTES.

Mr. Harriman's prosperity talk put him in the "Dreadnaught" class of financiers.

Money is flowing back into the irrigating ditches of metropolitan business. It will soon be in yours.

City's debt limit is only $1,443,724, says Controller Metz. Yet, somehow they'll manage to get Brooklyn Fourth av subway started.

Inside of three weeks the plant for the disposal of sewage at the Westchester County Almshouse will be in operation, and the Nepperhan River will be relieved of the refuse that has polluted it for years.

BEFORE entering into a contract for foundations involving expensive shoring, sheet piling, pumping, excavation and masonry, let us show you how we can eliminate these factors.

L. K. Comstock & Co., electrical contractors, formerly at No. 114 Liberty st, have recently moved to the Hudson and Manhattan Terminal Building, No. 50 Church st, where they have taken a large suite of offices on the 15th floor.

O'Boyle Bros. & Hopkins, electrical contractors, on account of increase in business have moved into new offices at 553 Columbus av, Manhattan. They are ready to estimate on any electrical work, large or small, and guarantee satisfaction.

The Turner Construction Co., 11 Broadway, Manhattan, has opened a branch office in the Builders' Exchange Building, Buffalo, N. Y. This office will handle the company's Western business and will be under the direction of Mr. James L. Bruff.

The new Bellevue Hospital buildings being erected at 1st av, 28th to 29th sts, are fully equipped with Cavanagh's patent scaffolding. This scaffolding has been used for the past four years on most of the large buildings erected in New York, without an accident of any kind.

Plans have been approved by the Commissioner of Correction for the new county penitentiary to be erected on Riker's Island as prepared by Messrs. Trowbridge & Livingston, 5th av, Manhattan. The building is to cost $4,000,000. The award in competition was made to the architects about a year ago.

Local architects are awaiting with much interest the result of the competition for the new prison near Fort Montgomery, N. Y. Although over 300 applications were made for programs it is understood that only about 25 estimates were submitted. The competitors include New York, Boston, Buffalo and Chicago concerns.

At a meeting of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese held at New Brunswick tentative steps were taken toward the erection of a fine cathedral for the Diocese of New Jersey. Bishop Scarborough is the head of the diocese. The edifice will be either at Trenton or Princeton, and the estimated cost at least $1,000,000.

The validity of the Steinway tunnel franchise under which the Belmont tunnel from 42d st, New York, to Long Island City was constructed, was practically upheld by a decision from the Court of Appeals. A bill has been passed by the Legislature authorizing the city to buy the tunnel. The bill is now before the Governor, but he has given no indication as to what action he will take on it.

Mr. Eli Benedict, architect, who has conducted classes in architectural drawing and in plan reading and estimating at the night school of the 23d St. Young Men's Christian Association during the season, will continue the Architectural Drawing Class during the summer, beginning June 1, in his drafting room at No. 1947 Broadway, cor. 65th st, on Monday and Thursday evenings at 7.30 to 9.30 o'clock.

White and Almost White Floors.

In hospitals, hotels and even office buildings where it is desirable to have floors with the appearance of great cleanness, a pure white fireproof floor can be obtained by the use of 1 part Berkshire "Snow White" Cement, 2 parts marble screenings or white sand. Apply this as a top coat before the base has reached its final set.

A floor of a very light gray color, almost white, can be obtained by using a mixture of 1 part "Snow White" Cement, 1 part of ordinary Portland Cement, and 3 to 4 parts white marble screenings all passing through ⅛-inch mesh, or 3 to 4 parts white sand.

Another specification giving a very light effect, which was used in laying the 13 acres of floors in the City Investing Building, New York City, Francis H. Kimball, architect, is 1 part Berkshire "Snow White" Cement, 1 part Vulcanite Portland Cement, 2 parts marble dust, and 1 part light colored grit, all of which will pass through a ⅛-inch mesh. The remainder of the specification should be the same as for sidewalks, particular care being given to keeping the surface continuously wet for as long a time as economy will permit.

The successful use of Berkshire "Snow White" Portland Cement as a paint to be applied to concrete surfaces where considerable moisture occurs, and also to cast iron, has been clearly demonstrated in the snow white tube of the Hudson Tunnel. Over 1,000 barrels have been used for this purpose. There is no cold water paint which gives permanent satisfaction on surfaces where moisture is continuously coming through. Berkshire White Portland Cement lives on water, as do all Portland cements. Therefore, it is particularly adapted to painting tunnels, basements or other wall surfaces which are liable to moisture, and where a snow white effect is desired.

For painting surfaces of concrete work, wash the surface with dilute muriatic acid, rinse with water and see that the concrete is thoroughly wet before application. Mix 2 parts Berkshire "Snow White" Portland Cement, and 1 part marble dust, add sufficient water to bring to the consistency of very thick cream, plaster on a thin coat with a trowel. After final set sprinkle with clean water once or twice each day for a week. The Vulcanite Portland Cement Company is the sole selling agent for the Berkshire Snow White Cement.

Four Months of Building.

Official building reports from forty-seven leading cities of the country for the month of April, 1908, received by the American Contractor, show a marked falling off in the value of building as compared with the corresponding month of last year. Yet, notwithstanding the loss, which amounted to nearly one-third, the operations reported are still large when contrasted with those of only a few years ago.

Statistics for the first four months of the year, from the same cities, give these figures:

THE WEEK.

THERE were several sales of importance consummated in that section south of 59th st. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad sold to the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. the building used by them for their office prior to the removal to West st. This is a 9-sty structure, 79.7x56.8xirregular. The purchasers are the owners of the adjoining property. The Chatham National Bank bought the leasehold on the northeast corner of Broadway and John st from the estate of Austin Corbin. This property belongs to the Dutch Reformed Church. The lease was recently renewed for 20 years at a rental of $30,000 per annum.

The demand for dwellings is still good. There were a number disposed of. Brokers report that there is a scarcity of private houses well situated. The owners are not willing to sell except at high prices. West End av came in for a couple of propertics sold. The 4-sty dwelling No. 330 was purchased by Mrs. Lillian M. Becker, who lives in No. 328 adjoining. This house has a frontage of 18 ft. and a depth of 100 ft. A. F. Holly is reported to be the purchaser of 345 West End av, a 4-sty dwelling. The price was said to have been $36,000. Hawarden Hall, a 6-sty apartment on 5th av and 129th st, changed hands. This building occupies a plot 100x110. The purchase price reported is $300,000.

There were a couple of good sized deals put through on Washington Heights. An operating company purchased two lots at the junction of Broadway and St. Nicholas av, 26.3 north of 169th st. The southwest corner of Cathedral Parkway and Amsterdam av was also sold. This lot is in a desirable location, being diagonally opposite the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Despite the fact that there was a large sale of Bronx property at auction this week, and another large sale is advertised for next week, there was considerable activity in this zone. A number of sales by the realty company who offered some property last week at auction, and also some speculators that purchased property at this sale have disposed of it at a profit.

Among the mortgages recorded was one for $1,000,000 given by the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Co. to the United States Trust Co. as trustees. This mortgage covers the square block on which the Metropolitan Opera House stands, also all and every other estate, right, title and interest to all property which the mortgagor now owns or holds, or may hereafter acquire, also all scenery, costumes and theatrical properties now owned by the company. The only parcel exempt is 209 and 211 West 40th st. This loan runs for 10 years and bears interest at the rate of 4½%. It is a gold bond mortgage and tax exempt. There was a mortgage on this property for the same amount, which has been satisfied, bearing interest at 5%.

The North Ward Realty Co. borrowed from the Title Guarantee & Trust Co. $200 000 for ten years at 5%, from May 16, on the property 45 to 49 John st, on the northwest corner of Dutch st, taking in Nos. 3 and 5 on that thoroughfare. This property is a 12-sty mercantile building on leasehold property, the fee of which is vested in the Reformed Dutch Church of America. The size of the plot is 113.10x74.10xirregular, and aggregates about 8,300 sq. ft. About 99% of this building is under lease, one of the principal tenants being the United States Leather Co.

Charles F. Noyes Co. states that leases aggregating one million dollars have been made in the building and that its rental success has been phenomenal. This building is the first of five large structures which will he erected in the immediate vicinity within the next few years. Not a small factor in the upbuilding of this vicinity is the approaching completion of the McAdoo Tunnel system, with its terminal and subway connections at Broadway and John st.

The prevailing rate of mortgage money at the present time in Manhattan is 5%, while in the Bronx 5½% is obtained. There appears to be plenty of lenders, and when an active market comes, undoubtedly there will be plenty of money to supply its needs.

THE AUCTION MARKET

THE way the market acted this week exceeded the hopes of the most optimistic. The voluntary sale of 700 lots in the Bronx, following several other sales of a similar character, was a big surprise to those who follow this branch of the realty field. Bidding was not only brisk, but at times spirited. Those properties, however, that were put up at forced sale did not fare as well. The majority of them were either withdrawn, or went to the plaintiffs in the various actions. As has been stated several times, the chief trouble is with the mortgage market. Bidders fear that they will have difficulty in placing their loans, and are not willing to take a chance. On the other hand, there are a great number of people who have a small amount of money to invest, say a few hundred dollars, who are willing to purchase realty in outlying districts and wait for a speculative rise. Almost the entire success of the latter class of sales depends on the amount allowed to remain on bond and mortgage.

The sale of the Throgg's Neck property, known as Lohbauer Park, was the principal offering of the week. This holding was sold at the stand of Joseph P. Day beginning last Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. On this day 257 lots were disposed of, bringing $177,035. The highest price paid for a lot was on the corner of Layton and Waterbury avs. It has a frontage on Pelham Bay and was purchased for $3,000. Those lots on Eastern Boulevard, between Baisley and Waterbury avs, sold at prices ranging from $675 to $1,175, while lots on Waterbury av, between Kearney and Fairfax avs, with a frontage on the Country Club, were knocked down from $450 to $725. Lots on the same avenue, a block to the east, brought between $400 and $670. A frame dwelling with two lots on the west side of Ellsworth av, 100 ft. north of Fairmount av, was knocked down for $1,950 to George W. Beal. The block bounded by Town Dock road, Fairmount, Valentine and Vincent avs, brought $15,525. A total of $20,675 was realized for the block bounded by Fairmount, Dean, Layton and Clarence avs.

On the second day of the sale 310 lots were disposed of out of a total of 443 remaining unsold. The amount realized was $226,835. The grand total for the two days' session is 567 lots sold for $303,870, an average of about $538 a lot. Late in the afternoon Mr. Day stated that the sale would be postponed until to-day at one o'clock, and would be held on the ground, rain or shine. The block front on the Town Dock road, between Fairfax and Ellsworth avs, brought $260 apiece, except the corners, which were sold for $400 and $370, respectively. Fairmount av lots between these same avenues on the north side were knocked down at $310 and $350 each and $525 for the corner. Inside lots on Vincent av, between Town Dock road and Fairmount av, brought $475 and $525 each.

DENIES REPORTED PURCHASE.

The report has recently been going the rounds that the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Co. purchased 45 to 49 Vesey st and 205 and 207 Fulton st as a site for an arcade building. It was also reported that an agreement was made with the Trinity Mission Society by which the railroad company could buy or lease 209 Fulton st.

William G. McAdoo, president of the railroad company, said to a representative of the Record and Guide: "There is no truth in the report. Every piece of land that changes hands in this vicinity, for some reason or other, is credited to us. We have not purchased nor have we been negotiating for the land in question."

LAW DEPARTMENT

EARNED A COMMISSION.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

A placed a parcel of suburban land, not improved, and gave me in writing the full particulars, viz.: size of land, price, mortgages, etc., and promised me a certain amount of commission providing I sell the property for him or get him a partner that would take half of his interest. After getting him a partner, B, according to his price and conditions, and B being ready and willing to make a contract, he finds out that the amount of the mortgage is smaller than A stated, thereby requiring more cash, and causing the deal to be called off. Am I entitled to my commission?

Answer.—If you fulfilled all your part of the contract, and it so appears from your statement, the breakdown is not a ground for depriving you of your right to a commission. A misstatement of facts by the principal cannot prejudice the broker.

REPAIRS AND ALTERATIONS.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

I leased a tenement for five years, and three and one-half years have passed. Among other covenants tenant agrees as follows: "And the tenant further covenants that he will comply with all the requirements of the boards, authorities, commissioners and departments of the city and State of New York, and of the Board of Fire Underwriters of the City of New York." The Tenement Department ordered twenty windows put in the house. Can I compel tenant and his sureties to pay for the window alteration? The tenant's sureties covenant to make his rent and covenants good without being called on.

Answer.—This query brings up a debated point which has been in the Court of Appeals for years, on varying facts, and which still is left with many points open. We think the better opinion to be that such covenants relate to "maintenance and repair," as required by department regulation, rather than to "radical changes or improvements." (See late case City of New York vs. United States Trust Co., 116 App. Div. 349 and references.)

CLUB IN TERMINAL BUILDING.

The Railroad Club of New York, which occupies the top floor in the Cortlandt st building of the Hudson Terminal Co., has opened its doors. The membership is limited to 500 resident members, which include all those who live within 50 miles of New York and do business here, and 500 non-resident members. The list of resident members is nearly full, some 475 names having been enrolled on the books. This is esentially a luncheon club, and is open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Everything has been provided for the comfort and convenience of the members. The decorations are rich and in good taste. They were executed by the Hayden Co.

On leaving the elevator at the 21st floor you step into a spacious foyer, with a reading and lounging room at one end. There is a large open fireplace which promises to make this spot a favorite place for members wishing to read the papers and magazines, or write letters. In addition to this room there is the main dining-room which will accommodate about 400 diners, a grill room and smoking rooms. There are ten private dining-rooms which connect and can be thrown open in the event of a banquet being given.

On the floor above is a ladies' dining-room, besides two smaller rooms set apart for luncheons at which ladies are present. A special feature has been made of the roof garden, from which an unexcelled view of the river can be obtained. A terrace on the roof of the main building has been arranged for a lounging place during the hot weather, but should it be deemed advisable, this can readily be turned into a place where meals can be served.

E. H. Gary is the president; F. D. Underwood, vice-president; C. W. King, secretary and treasurer. The house committee includes W. G. McAdoo, chairman; W. G. Oakman, W. H. Marshall, F. B. Jennings and W. G. Bresler. J. H. Thorpe, who was connected with the Lawyers' Club for 19 years, has been appointed superintendent.

NEW TERMINAL OPENED.

The new subway terminal station for surface cars going over the Williamsburgh Bridge was formally opened by Mayor McClellan on Tuesday, May 19.

The Mayor, Bridge Commissioner Stevenson and a large party of city officials, escorted by mounted policemen, crossed the bridge in automobiles. On the Long Island side the parlor car Columbia was in readiness, and the trip back to Manhattan was made over the new rails to the new terminal in Delancey st, near Suffolk and Norfolk sts.

The trip ended at one of the island stations. Altogether there are eight of these landings. There are signs in plain view, so passengers will have no trouble in picking out the right trolley car.

SEVENTH AVENUE DEVELOPMENTS.

NEW PAVEMENT LAID, PARKWAY BUILT AND MANY HIGH-CLASS APARTMENTS COMPLETED WHICH ARE WELL TENANTED.

There has been a decided uplift in values on 7th av above 110th st. New pavement has just been laid and a parkway has been built in the middle of the street, similar to the one on Broadway above 59th st. This avenue is the main artery north of the park and daily a stream of carriages may be seen on this thoroughfare. It is the "5th av" north of the park.

The property on the southeast corner of 111th st, 100.11x150, vacant, was purchased by the Apartment Construction Co. on June 13, 1907, a building loan for $275,000 was obtained and two 6-sty apartments were erected. This property was sold to the Greene Court Building Co., subject to a mortgage for $275,000. A subsequent mortgage for $40,000 was put on the property. The parcel on the northeast corner of 113th st changed hands for an amount reported to have been $230,000. There is a 6-sty apartment on the lot and it was assessed at $225,000. This sale took place December 28, 1907.

HIGH-CLASS HOUSES BUILT.

These properties are just examples of what transpired during the last twelve months. Any one who has not been in this district for a couple of years would feel lost. The appearance of the avenue has entirely changed. With the exception of the block on the west side between 114th and 115th sts all the property, as far north as 116th st, has been improved with high-class structures.

On the east side between 112th and 113th sts there are two handsome buildings, the Versailles and the Fountainbleau, each occupying a plot 100x100. On the northeast cor. of 113th st is the Chantilly, another 6-sty building, 100x100, and adjoining on the north are two 7-sty houses with a frontage of 50 ft. each.

On the west side the southwest corner of 111th st is improved with the Elise, a 6-sty building, 100x150, and from this street to 114th st every lot is built upon with apartments that are not only artistic, but roomy and comfortable.

GOOD RENTING DEMAND.

The renting condition of this part of Manhattan is splendid. Tenants are willing to give a little more rent on this thoroughfare, as it is restricted against trucking. It therefore makes an extremely desirable residential section. Another reason for its popularity is the fact of its being so accessible. One block to the east is the subway and one block to the west is the elevated railroad. Apartments in elevator houses rent from $12 to $18 a room, while the non-elevator houses command between $10 and $12 a room.

"A few years ago when the rents were being raised throughout the city," said A. V. Amy, of A. V. Amy & Co., "some uneasiness was expressed on the part of owners of apartments in this section. People were moving out and going elsewhere. Apartments, however, did not remain long vacant. Almost so soon as one family moved out another was ready to step in and fill the vacancy. The result of this is that builders were encouraged to improve property on this avenue with high-class houses instead of cheaper tenements."

BUSINESS ON LENOX AV.

Lenox av between these streets is the business thoroughfare. While there are several handsome apartments, still in the main they are of a cheaper grade than on 7th av. The block front between 111th and 112th sts is occupied by five 7-sty apartments; 112th to 113th sts by four 5-sty houses; 113th to 114th sts by the old Balmoral Hotel. This latter property has been untenanted for some years. This holding is on a plot 201.10x125 and is a 5-sty structure. It was put up at voluntary auction last April, but was bid in by Jacob Mendelssohn for $300,000. Undoubtedly this house will be torn down and another erected, which will do much towards improving the neighborhood.

The Bernheimer Building is on the northwest corner of 116th st and together with two 6-sty flats occupies the entire block front. The other houses on this side of the way are in the main 5-sty flats with stores. The rental obtained from stores on this side of the avenue averages about $100 a front foot, while apartments in elevator houses bring from $9 to $11 a room. The rents in non-elevator apartments are between $8 and $10.

INCREASES HOLDINGS.

Ex-Mayor Charles A. Schieren, of Brooklyn, purchased the building at the northwest corner of Beekman and Cliff sts, 128.5x134.9, from the J. L. Mott Iron Works for $10,000 over a mortgage of $150,000. The present sellers purchased this property in 1884 and about two years ago it was leased to the J. E. Linde Paper Co. for 21 years.

Mr. Schieren owns the Schieren Building, a 10-sty fireproof building on the southwest corner of Ferry and Cliff sts, a block to the north of the building just transferred. This latter building occupies a plot, 34.10x136.3. Between these two properties is Chapel Court, a 10-sty fireproof mercantile structure, 69x126, owned by Loring Andrews, of 16 East 38th st, who purchased the plot, together with some adjoining property, on Jan. 11, 1869, for $150,000.

GOVERNOR SIGNS TORRENS BILL.

Gov. Hughes signed the Torrens Bill, establishing this system of land registration in this State. This bill was introduced by Assemblyman Green, of Kings County, based on the report sent in by the commission appointed by the Governor to investigate this method of registering titles.

In signing the bill Gov. Hughes said: "A commission was appointed last year to examine the matter, and after most careful consideration of the whole subject, including the experience of other States and of foreign countries, the majority of the commission recommended this legislation. Objections were presented in a careful minority report. After this thorough examination, and with the opposing views clearly presented, the Legislature has adopted the recommendations of the commission.

"I believe that this measure represents an important movement in the direction of facilitating land transfers, and that it should become a law. The merits of the objections can best be tested, and indeed can satisfactorily be tested only by experience. If we are ever to escape the complications, delays and expense incident to present methods a beginning must be made, and the painstaking and intelligent efforts which have culminated in the passage of this bill should not be frustrated."

POPULARITY OF BUNGALOWS.

The bungalow has become so popular that a large number of bungalows are being erected in suburban sections near New York. This popularity is not only due to the greater comfort it affords but because they can be constructed at a cost that any one moderately fixed financially can own one. There should be no stairs in a bungalow; all rooms should be on a level, just as in a large apartment.

Oakdale has frequently been spoken of as an aristocratic, seclusive section. These terms should not be applied in a popular sense—they should rather give place to such adjectives which define a community of a spirit and interest and a local pride in one's environment. In this respect the character or tone of Oakdale life is unique among other suburban sections, and gives assurance that its high character as a residential section can never be destroyed.

Bungalow sites on the West Shore road and Great South Bay, within ten minutes' walk from the Oakdale depot, will be sold at public sale on Wednesday, June 10, at 11 o'clock, under the direction of Bryan L. Kennelly, auctioneer, on very easy terms, 60% of the purchase price being allowed on mortgage for three years at the low rate of 4% interest.

A CONTRACT SHOULD GUARD AGAINST CONTINGENCIES.

A decision of much interest to speculators in real property has been handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Second Department.

The action was brought to recover damages for a breach of contract to convey real estate, and the findings of the lower court have been confirmed. The sum involved was $46,780, and the property figuring in the suit is the widely known Van Dyke farm, in Flatlands, being a portion of the premises conveyed by Wm. C. Stoothoff and others to Nicholas Van Dyke, May 5, 1836.

The case was entitled "Annie M. Marsh, respondent, against James Johnston and William H. Voorhees, appellants."

The defendant Johnston had contracted with one Van Dyke for the purchase of a 33-acre farm in Kings County, at an agreed price of $2,000 per acre. This contract was dated on the 27th day of September, 1904, and by its terms the title was to be closed on the 1st day of October, 1905, with an option to Johnston to have the time of delivery of the conveyance extended one year upon the payment of $1,000 in addition to the $1,200, which was paid upon the delivery of the contract. This additional $1,000 was paid and an extension of this contract was duly executed by Van Dyke, so that the actual time of delivery, as fixed by the contract, was October 1st, 1906.

On the 3rd day of February, 1906, Johnston entered into a contract with Annie M. Marsh, the plaintiff, by the terms of which he undertook to sell the premises in question to her at an agreed price of $4,400 per acre, title to be closed on the 7th day of May, 1906. This agreement provided that the plaintiff might extend the time of taking title for one month, on the payment of an additional $5,000; and this was subsequently done, so that the time when it was the duty of the defendant Johnston to deliver title was on the 7th day of June, 1906.

When the time for Johnston to make his delivery came, Van Dyke refused to transfer the property to Johnston, or to his nominee, and this resulted in Johnston defaulting. The plaintiff brought this action to recover the amount of money paid upon the contract, the incidental expenses, and the value of her bargain. The jury had awarded her $46,781, and it did not appear to the Appellate Division to be seriously questioned it is better to sit at your desk and get it from the REAL ESTATE DIRECTORY than to have the janitor send you to the agent.

REMEMBER

WHEN YOU WANT REAL Real Estate Information

The Real Estate Directory service for 1908 will contain:

I. Stated considerations, beginning with January 1st, 1908, when given in the Record and Guide, indicated, in the geographical classification.
II. Full description of all tenements, flats and apartment houses, giving number of apartments, rooms and improvements.
III. Classification by street numbers, obviating the reference to a map.
IV. Alphabetical classification, giving list of property held by each owner.
V. Weekly reports of conveyances.
VI. Weekly reports of property left by will.
VII. Channel through which mortgage money comes.
VIII. The automatic Checking Index, which does away with the labor of posting transfers.
IX. Verified Addresses. All the addresses of the 1908 Directory will be personally verified.
X. A complete and up to date card service. The best thing we have to offer.

The following letters attest the great value of the Real Estate Directory:

CHARLES F. NOYES COMPANY.

Mr. Ronald C. Lee, General Manager, Realty Records Company, 11-15 East 24th Street, City.

Dear Sir—During the past ten years we have immediately subscribed for every real estate map, system and card scheme that has come on the market. In fact we have taken every office device that has been presented if there was a chance of bettering our channels of information or assisting us in our efforts.

In our judgment, with the exception of the Real Estate maps, the "Real Estate Directory service" is the most useful adjunct in a real estate office. It is the best system that has been devised during our experience. We consider it as a necessity.

Our continued subscription from the time you issued the first copy is the best recommendation that we can give.

Yours very truly,
CHARLES F. NOYES COMPANY.

JAMES KYLE & SONS.

The Realty Records Co., 11 East 24th St., City.

Dear Sirs—When we run across a good thing we are always glad to recommend it, and we take pleasure in saying that the service of the Real Estate Directory has been most helpful to us in our business, and we believe every real estate office should take advantage of the opportunities you offer. The saving of time means the saving of money, and your service certainly accomplishes this.

With best wishes for your future success, we are, Yours very truly,
JAMES KYLE & SONS.

BERT G. FAULHABER & CO. (Inc.)
May 15, 1908.

Realty Records Company, 11 East 24th Street, New York City.

Dear Sirs—In reply to your favor of the 12th inst., would say, that we have been a subscriber of the Real Estate Directory for several years, and have found it to be of considerable advantage to us in our business. In fact, an up-to-date real estate office could not afford to be without it. Yours very truly,
BERT G. FAULHABER & CO.,
B. G. Faulhaber, President.

F. R. WOOD & CO.

The Realty Records Co., 11 East 24th Street, City.

Gentlemen—We beg to state that we have been suscribers to the Real Estate Directory service since it was first issued, and have found it very useful, and shall continue same in our office as long as the present policy is continued.

Your recent books have been very much improved over your first issue, and we believe you will continue to make improvements year by year. We can heartily recommend the book to anyone in our line of business.

Yours very truly,
F. R. WOOD & CO.

FREDERICK ZITTEL.

The Realty Records Company, 11-15 East 24th St., City.

Gentlemen—Respecting the new features that you propose to introduce in the Real Estate Directory, we believe the information will be much appreciated by the subscribers. We have always been very well pleased with the service that you have given us and its accuracy has been but seldom at fault.

Very truly,
FRED'K ZITTEL.

CHAMBERS & VEILLER.
New York, May 12, 1908.

Mr. Ronald Lee, Mgr., Realty Records Co., 11 East 24th St., City.

Dear Sir—After having your records in our office for the past three years, I wish to write and tell you how much it has simplified the detail work of a brokerage office.

Previous to the existence of your company, when we were dependent upon another system for the records of the owners, we were forced to waste a great deal of time in trying to find the right person.

Your system is a great deal better and is a great deal simpler. Of course, we all realize that mistakes are inevitable, but I find that this year your records have improved over last year.

Wishing you continued success and improvement, I am,

Very truly yours,
FRANK D. VEILLER.

CHARLES S. KOHLER.

The Realty Records Co., 11-15 East 24th Street, New York City.

Gentlemen—I have used the Real Estate Directory service since its first issue and have found it of great benefit and assistance in my business.

I notice from time to time considerable improvement in its accuracy and cheerfully recommend it to anyone carrying on a real estate brokerage business.

I remain,

Respectfully,
CHAS. S. KOHLER.

McVICKAR, GAILLARD REALTY COMPANY.
May 11, 1908.

The Realty Records Company, 11-15 East 24th Street, New York City.

Dear Mr. Lee—As subscribers to your systematized real estate information service in all its branches, it is a pleasure to say that we find the heretofore exacting and arduous task of gathering accurate information greatly simplified, and that the factor of error and actual labor are reduced to a minimum. We agree that you provide a progressive plan of efficient records with which to hunt business.

Wishing you success in your work, we are, Yours very truly,
McVICKAR, GAILLARD REALTY CO.
By Charles S. Cosgrove.

HEIL & STERN.

Realty Records Co., Mr. Ronald C. Lee, Gen. Mgr., 11 East 24th St., City.

Gentlemen—We have used your Real Estate Directory service since it was started, and beg to say that in the short time that it has been in existence we certainly think you have accomplished very excellent results. We can only add that its present standard makes it of great assistance to us, a great time-saver, and we could hardly get along without it.

With best wishes for your future success, we remain,

Yours very truly,
HEIL & STERN.

EDMUND C. PREISS.

Mr. Ronald C. Lee, Manager Realty Records Co., New York.

Dear Sir—That the different publications of your company are of the greatest value to all real estate men is a fact well known. The older generation in the business, the men who started before Information Bureaus existed and who had to spend so much of their valuable time on unproductive labor can only acknowledge that your publications have become indispensable to them as they are to the younger. The prices charged are well worth to be considered in a very fair proportion to the information given and the "up-to-date" services rendered. You have my best thanks and also best wishes. Very truly yours,
EDMUND C. PREISS.

EQUITABLE REALTY COMPANY.
May 14, 1908.

The Realty Records Company, 11 East 24th St., Manhattan.

Dear Sirs—We take pleasure in recommending the Real Estate Directory service in its various departments as absolutely indispensable to the conduct of an efficient real estate office.

We have been subscribers to your Bureau since its inception and could not do without it. The cost is trifling compared with the actual return your service produces.

Yours very truly,
E. ALLENDORF,
Vice-President.

LAURENCE M. D. McGUIRE.
May 16, 1908.

The Realty Records Co., Ronald C. Lee, Gen. Mgr., 11 East 24th St., City.

My Dear Sir—I have found the Real Estate Directory service most satisfactory. It is my belief that the new features which you propose to add to the service will be of material assistance to real estate brokers and greatly increase the benefits to be derived from your thoroughly good service.

I believe real estate brokers and others interested in real estate, should co-operate with you and lend every assistance in your good work.

Very truly,

REAL ESTATE VALUES IN MANHATTAN.

"Real Estate Values in Manhattan" is the title of a little book published by the Evening Post. All the transfers recorded in Manhattan between January, 1904, and April, 1908, in which the consideration is stated, appear in this little volume. These sales include voluntary, estate and partition auction; sales by executors and trustees; sales by and to corporations and estates; contracts to buy and sell; and other transactions in which considerations are stated. The name of the purchaser and the month and year in which the sale took place is also recorded. This little book will be found useful not only to real estate brokers but also to property owners. It is gotten up in convenient form, and the price is nominal.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

F. Dornberger Realty Co. moved its offices to 1232 Lexington av.

O. G. Connfelt, formerly of the firm of Connfelt & Stickney, is now associated with Geo. R. Read & Co.

A building loan of $80,000 was secured by Lorenz Weiher from William R. Rose on the property, 99.9x100.11, on the north side of 105th st, 275.2 ft. west of Amsterdam av.

City Chamberlain James J. Martin wrote a letter to Borough President Coler in which he states that there is $10,000,000 available for subways, instead of $1,443,734, as figured by the Comptroller.

Charles F. Noyes Co. negotiated a $200,000 mortgage bond issue for the North Ward Realty Co. covering the "Frankel Building," a 12-sty building, 45-49 John st, corner of Dutch. The bond issue is for 10 years at 5%, and the Title Guarantee & Trust Company is the trustee for the bondholders.

The following real estate men were recently elected to membership of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange: Stewart Hartshorn, of Short Hills; Frank A. Stumm, of Arcola; Robert T. Neely, of Burrows, Neely & Co., New York; C. S. Story, of Hawthorne; George E. Sedgwick and Edmund Rushmore, both of New York.

John P. Kirwin moved his offices to 138 West 42d st, two doors east of the Knickerbocker Hotel. Mr. Kirwin has long been identified with the Times sq section. For thirteen years he was located on the block between 43d and 44th sts, in the building known as the Barrington. The tenants were forced to move from this building, as it is going to be immediately converted into a store, office and studio building.

The May business meeting of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association took place on Friday, May 22, at Corrigan Hall, Broadway and 157th st. The matter of the extension of Riverside Drive, from 155th st to the Hudson Memorial Bridge, was taken up. Committees were appointed and the policy of the association on this matter was decided. This association strongly favors making the entire westerly portion of the drive into a park.

ASSESSMENT FOR RIVERSIDE DRIVE.

EXTENSION OF AREA DEMANDED.

A largely attended meeting was held on the 20th inst. before Commissioners of Assessment and Award, at the Gerken Building, under the auspices of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, the chairman of whose special committee, Mr. William B. Selden, presented the arguments advanced by the association in its effort to induce the commissioners to increase the tentative area of assessment for the one-half of the cost of this great public work, which by legislative action was ordered to be placed upon property "incidentally benefited." The hearing room was completely overcrowded, and many interested persons found themselves unable to even approach the door, and were obliged to leave without taking part in the proceedings. That great interest in the matter has been aroused was shown by the important amount of property interests represented.

Among those attending were Mr. John D. Beals, president of the association; the Rev. Milo H. Gates, the Rev. John Mackay, and several other leading ministers of different denominations from upper Manhattan. There were also present: Alderman M. J. Mulcahy, Alderman Frederick Meyer, Messrs. Clarence Dorsett, Robert Hoguet, Cornelius Trink, W. Seeligsberg, Daniel F. Mahoney, Hon. John Whalen, Collin H. Woodward, Robert D. Kohn and other leading residents and property owners, representatives of estates and builders.

Mr. Selden and Mr. Beals, for the association, urged that without any question of favors, the property owners in the tentative area, which extends only south as far as 72d st, and as far east as 8th av, were entitled, in simple justice, to a widening of the burden of cost to include other parts of the city, but since the act appeared to preclude an area of assessment exceeding the Borough of Manhattan, the association demanded that the area be made to include the entire borough.

They pointed out that, in this action, the commissioners could incur no reflections as to their prolonging their duties, because the conditions are exceptional, and the amount involved is large, and the injustice which would be done under existing proposition would be widespread.

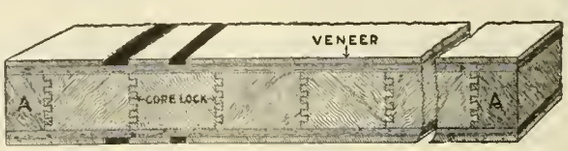
The association has already presented statistics secured from the persons using that portion of Riverside Drive which is already completed, and have shown that only one per cent. of the automobiles using the driveway come from the section proposed to be assessed, and that no more than 1½ per cent. of the pedestrians upon the driveway are residents in the section abutting upon the drive.

This information was remarkably confirmed by Mr. Bernard Loth, who spoke as a large property owner, and as president of the Fort Washington Hill Association, representing many millions of dollars of property along the line of the future extension of the drive. Mr. Loth stated that he had secured statistics from a number of the police who had been requested to inquire of visitors on Riverside Drive as to the residential locality, and he finds that out of a large number of answers less than three per cent. reside in the vicinity of the drive. The majority of vehicles came from other portions of the city, and a considerable proportion came from other parts of the country.

The Rev. Milo H. Gates stated that by inquiry among the members of his congregation, he had ascertained that the burden of assessment among smaller property owners would be very severely felt.

Mr. Minturn Post Collins, who had been invited to speak for the Dyckman Taxpayers' Association, made an earnest plea for relief on behalf of that section.

The secretary of the association, Mr. Reginald Pelham Bolton, presented a large number of letters that had been received, protesting against the present proposed area of assessment, and these are filed with the association.



Mr. Beals, in his concluding remarks, urged upon the representatives of the Corporation Counsel that in this matter they should not oppose the widening of the area, which could not injuriously affect the city, and could only impose some delay and some expense by re-advertising and mapping in the larger area. This course was, however, justifiable by the circumstances, and in view of the precedent which would otherwise be set for future extensions and improvements of the driveway, it would be to the city's interest that the matter of the equitable adjustment of the cost of the present section should be properly decided.

The Board of Estimate decided yesterday that a public hearing be given on June 19 on the project of changing the line of Riverside drive, between West 155th st and Dyckman st; laying out an extension of Riverside drive to the Hudson Memorial Bridge; and laying out a park adjoining the drive through its entire length.

This change of line will remove the sharp angles in the drive north of 155th st, and will provide a connection with the Hudson Memorial Bridge. It is proposed to build a viaduct over the Dyckman valley about 1,650 ft. long at an elevation of about 160 ft. The cost of the land to be acquired will aggregate about $1,800,000, and the park about $5,760,000.

UNAFFECTED BY CLIMATIC CHANGES.

Among the many annoyances with which the average property owner contends is the warping and twisting of doors due to climatic changes. This condition usually manifests itself at first by a slight swelling of the stiles and panels and sooner or later results in rendering them an unsightly part of the building. When it is considered that in most instances the material entering into the construction of doors is cut up into all sizes and shapes and put together without any reference to the character of the wood, the result is obvious. Instead of doors being an unsightly part of the building they should lend tone and dignity to it.

CROSS SECTION OF COMPOUND INLAID DOOR.

Recently, however, a compound door has been put upon the market which is attracting no little attention, and may be said to be meeting requirements in the indicated direction. As will be seen by the accompanying cut it has a corelock center and double veneered on each side. It is claimed that compound doors wear exceptionally well, because of their cross-bonded construction, and since the core is encased in an airtight compartment shrinkage and swelling is so little as to be a negligible quantity. An important feature in the make up of a door of this character is that there are no joints to pull apart. The entire door is glued together and dried out in one solid mass. The prices compare favorably with other veneered doors.

Additional Stairway Necessary.

Taxpayers in East 161st st who have occasion to board elevated trains at 3d av are loud in their complaints over the insufficiency of one stairway at the lower end of the platform, and to further their requirements a petition has been drawn up which will be presented to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company when sufficient signatures are obtained. The matter will doubtless be brought to the attention of the Public Service Commission.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

Key to abbreviations:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to their having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1907.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

May 15, 16, 18, 19, 20 and 21.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of Judgments the names alphabetically arranged and which are first on each line are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) Signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unkuown. Judgments entered during the week and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column, but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

The Judgments filed against corporations, etc., will be found at the end of the list.

Fort Slocum, N. Y.—Sealed proposals will be received June 10 for construction, plumbing, steam heating and electric wiring of one administration building and one drill hall and gymnasium. Address Constructing Q. M.

Fort Hancock, N. J.—Sealed proposals for construction, plumbing, heating, electric wiring and fixtures of gymnasium and bowling alley at this post will be received May 29. Address M. N. Falls, Capt., Constructing Q. M.

West Point, N. Y.—Sealed proposals will be received June 4 for erection of one set of double civilians' quarters at West Point, N. Y. Forms for proposals furnished upon application. Address Quartermaster, West Point, N. Y.

Office of the Supervising Architect, Washington, D. C.—Sealed proposals will be received June 4 for the installation of an interior conduit and wiring system for vacuum tube lighting in the basement of the U. S. Court-House and Postoffice Building, N. Y. James Knox Taylor, Supervising Architect.

Sealed proposals will be received at the Office of the Light-House Engineer, Tompkinsville, N. Y., June 4, for material and labor of all kinds necessary for the construction and delivery of the Southwest Ledge Light-House, New London Harbor, Conn.

A circular proposal will soon be issued by the Isthmian Canal Commission calling for bids for furnishing 1,052 steel angle bars of various sizes, 100 steel "I" beams, size 15-in., length 18 ft. 6 ins., weight per foot 60 lbs.; 50 steel channel bars, 60 bars double refined square iron, 10 bars double refined flat iron, and 3 bars double refined iron flats, 10 ft. to 12 ft.; 750 bars of merchant bar iron, 700 bars of flat machine steel for general shop use, 10 bars 1¾ in. by 2 in. flat machine steel, 30 bars of hexagon machine steel. The machinery steel is to be hot rolled and open hearth. The bars to be of a grade suitable for bolts, shafts, piston rods, etc.

There will soon be needed by the Isthmian Canal Commission a quantity of repair parts for 40-ton flat cars and a circular proposal will be issued calling for bids for 200 right hand truck columns, 200 left hand truck columns, 800 draft sill caps, 3,000 extension side brackets, 1,000 brake shaft step brackets and 600 brake shaft supports. For repairs to 95-ton shovels there will be needed 100 Panama shanks and 400 Panama tips in accordance with drawings submitted from the isthmus. Also a quantity of manganese steel castings, consisting of 252 pinions, 60 racks, being repairs to boom machinery and 65 latch keepers, repairs to dippers, also a quantity of swing and propelling chains of various lengths for repairs to Marion shovels.

Vol. LXXXI. MAY 30, 1908. No. 2098.

THE more cheerful attitude of Wall Street towards the business situation is beginning to have a good effect generally. The credit of the several railroad companies, which have needed to raise money, has strengthened, and they have provided, not only for immediate necessities, but even for a resumption of certain suspended improvements. Mills are beginning to resume all over the country, and business men in all departments of trade are beginning to regard the future with more confidence. No doubt a good many months must elapse before this better feeling has its full effect, but in case no disaster overtakes the crops, there is every reason to suppose that the summer will witness a slow but sure process of recovery. It is such a process of recovery which the business of the country needs. Any sudden and violent revival of business would necessarily be temporary in its nature and unwholesome in its effects. In writing and talking about the existing depression, both the newspapers and many business men too often forget that some such depression was necessary for the permanent industrial well-being of the country. Business had become disorganized by the effects of too much prosperity. A period of quiet was necessary in order that economies might be effected, operating and manufacturing expenses diminished, the efficiency of labor increased, and blind capital accumulated. A sudden revival of prosperity would interfere with the proper achievement of all of these essential tasks, whereas a gradual resumption of business activity extending over a couple of years would permit the necessary re-organizatiou to be accomplished and would lay the foundation for a longer subsequent period of business activity.

THE veto by Governor Hughes of the amendments to the Rapid Transit Act contained in the Robinson bill kills any expectation of the early construction of Manhattan subways. Even if private corporations could be induced to assume an operating contract for the term provided for in the existing law, the city cannot possibly appropriate any money for the purpose unless some drastic means are adopted of increasing the assessed valuation of real estate. The veto consequently means a long delay in the beginning of any new subway construction, and Governor Hughes has assumed a severe responsibility in refusing his assent to the Robinson amendment. Neither are the reasons whereby he defends his action any sufficient excuse therefor. Those reasons can be grouped under two heads. In the first place, he does not believe that private capital could be induced even by the offer of a fifty-year franchise to come immediately to the rescue of the city. This, however, is only his opinion, and it does not seem probable that he is right. At the end of four years of operation the existing subway will be earning $10,000,000 gross, $5,500,000 net, and carrying 200,000,000 passengers a year. Surely after such a showing it looks as if capitalists who would not risk their money in an enterprise which promised just as well would have lost their sense of a "good thing." It is true that the fixed charges on the cost of construction would be larger for a new subway than it is for the one now existing, both because a higher interest rate would have to be paid on the bonds, and because the cost of construction per mile would be larger. But on the other hand, as the report of Mr. Bion J. Arnold shows, a new subway could be made capable of carrying a much denser traffic —a traffic so dense as more than to counterbalance the higher fixed charges. In any event, however, the attempt to secure the immediate cooperation of private capital was worth while and could have done no harm in case it failed. Just here, however, comes in the Governor's second reason. "The city," said Governor Hughes, "should not lose control over its highways for rapid transit purposes for such a period. Any one who reflects upon what the city was fifty years ago, and upon what it is likely to become in the course of the next fifty years must realize this." The Record and Guide believes this second reason to be much more valid than the first. In fact, just in so far as it is valid, it absolutely kills the force of his contention that private capital would not be tempted by a fifty-year franchise. A franchise which is too valuable to alienate for so long a term would also be too valuable not to be snapped up by a private corporation, and the really practical question is whether the city would lose more by a long delay in the construction of an improved transit system than it would by the surrender of the franchise for a longer term. We believe that the loss of time, the discomfort and the burden upon the business efficiency of the city due to an indefinite delay in rapid transit construction will cost the city more than it will gain because of the shorter term for which the franchises will be surrendered.

WHETHER Mr. Hughes was or was not justified in his veto it is a fact that the attempt to secure the cooperation of private capital in subway construction has failed, and that, furthermore, this failure must be considered final. Even if New York elects a new Governor next fall, it will scarcely be worth while to renew the attempt, because relief from another source will then be near at hand. The Legislature has passed a concurrent resolution for an amendment to the Constitution, providing that indebtedness incurred for rapid transit improvements shall not, under specified conditions, be considered in estimating the debt limit, and the efforts of everybody interested in rapid transit should now be concentrated upon the passage of a similar resolution at the next session of the Legislature, and its popular approval one year from the coming fall. The worst impediment to an adequate system of underground rapid transit will then have disappeared; and it will be possible to plan a subway system like the one in Paris, which will be really comprehensive and which can be constructed gradually, but without any serious delays or interruptions. Moreover, the public opinion of the city must understand the consequence of constructing an improved transit system under the terms of the existing law. It means, probably, that the city will be obliged to bear the expense of not only constructing the new subways, but also of providing a certain amount of equipment. No doubt at the end of another two years the credit of the Interborough Co. may be so restored and the obvious advantage even of a short lease may have become so great, that it will be ready to equip extensions to the present subway in return for a lease of twenty years with one renewal of fifteen years, but after the failure of a year ago to secure bidders under the legal terms, it would be foolish to count upon such a contingency. As long as it will offer only a short lease, the city must be prepared to put up more money in order to secure a tenant for its subways. It must even be prepared, if necessary, to provide all the equipment, or to operate the subway by its own employes. It is now definitely committed to a policy of municipal construction and short leases, and it must pursue such a policy in a consistent and thorough-going way. It will suffer grave losses because of its having been obliged to persist in this policy after it had failed to be immediately successful; and the one way of partially remunerating itself for these losses will be to obtain every advantage it can from a subway system leased only for a short term. In constructing subways and leasing for a period of at the outside only thirty-five years it will be creating for itself an asset of enormous future value. The next two years should be passed in carefully considering the routes which ought to be included in a comprehensive subway system, their order of construction, and the probable assistance which can be obtained from private capital.

ANOTHER LANDMARK DOOMED.—The old-fashioned 4-sty brownstone dwelling 105 4th av is going to be altered beyond recognition. This house is situated 23.5 feet north of 28th st and is going to be converted into an office building, with a store on the ground floor and bachelor apartments upstairs. This property is centrally located, there being a subway station almost directly in front of the door, and an elevated railroad station on 3d av and 28th st.

A LAND COURT ADVISED.

TO DEAL EXCLUSIVELY WITH LAND TITLE REGISTRATION.

PURSUANT to our line of introduction of the new law, as begun in the last number, in which the Illinois statute was discussed and its merits set forth by the Registrar of Titles of Cook County (Chicago), we give place this week to the Land Court of Massachusetts, and a letter from its Recorder and remarks germane to the subject.

After this little outlook from the point of view of our predecessors in land title (Torrens) registration, we shall be in better shape to turn our thoughts inward in later issues to our own new law, with a preliminary word as to Torrens title registration in general.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Land Court, Recorder's office, Boston, Mass, May 25.—To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

"Answering your letter of May 23, I beg to say that I am sending you, under another cover, copy of our Land Court book and also copy of address made by Judge Davis before your State Bar Association recently. I also enclose herewith copy of statement I had occasion to give out about the first of the year.

"I fear you will be unable to make a practical success of a registration law in your State until a special court is established to deal exclusively with the work. In the beginning the necessity does not appear so clearly as after considerable land has been registered, as is now the case in this State. Matters are liable to arise any day which must be acted on at once, or the system would fail in the important particular of causing too much delay in special matters arising in dealings with registered land after the original decree.

"We have already passed on two such matters this morning which, if they had been relegated to the formalities of filing, entering, marking for trial and being formally heard in a trial court, would have caused great inconvenience and very probably have lost a trade in one case.

"C. E. SMITH."

STATEMENT BY RECORDER SMITH.

"It is evident that the so-called 'Torrens System,' as enacted into law and administered in Massachusetts, greatly facilitates, and makes safe and convenient, transactions in real estate. The reason is obvious, because under the law an owner's duplicate certificate of title is conclusive evidence in all State courts. No claim can be made against a piece of registered land unless it is a registered claim and entered on the original and duplicate certificates on the page headed 'Memoranda of Encumbrances,' etc. In any deed or mortgage transaction, therefore, all that is necessary is for the deed or mortgage to be carried to the registry with the owner's dpulicate certificate, the original and the owner's certificates looked at to see that the entries correspond, and then the papers registered. A deed or mortgage transaction can thus be reasonably consummated on the same date the parties come to terms.

"On the registered files of the four registries of the metropolitan district can now be found many mortgages to savings banks, trustees and trust companies, as well as to individuals; and occasionally instances arise where banks loaning large amounts have required the title to the property loaned on to be registered before paying the money over. Such well-known concerns as the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, the New England Structural Company, the General Electric Company, the United Shoe Machinery Company, and the Old Colony Street Railway Company have had, or are having, valuable properties registered. The law is also being made use of with special advantage by real estate owners who are putting on the market tracts of land cut up into house lots. They find it to be an inducement in selling single lots to people of small means to advertise and represent that no cost of examination of title is required, as the land is registered and that a certificate of title can be obtained for $2.50 as the only expense. Two other kinds of cases are afforded relief that was not available before the establishment of the Land Court, viz.: cases where the title is good as a matter of fact and law, though defective of record; and cases involving the construction of wills where the Probate Court will decline jurisdiction on the ground that the determination of the question is not necessary for the purposes of settlement of the estate.

"By successive steps of legislation since the passage of the original registration act of 1898, the Land Court has become the court of exclusive and original jurisdiction for all real actions in the State, and a great majority of these actions are now brought in the form of a registration petition.

"Up to about the 1st of January, 1908, 2,004 petitions for registration of land have been filed in the Land Court from 176 of the 353 towns and cities of the Commonwealth. The assessed values of these properties at the time of filing the petitions amounts to $19,663,309.44. In the four largest registries of the State, 4,266 certificates of title have been issued and 8,378 documents registered. As operations have begun in seventeen of the twenty-one registries of the State, it is stimated that about 4,500 certificates, all together, have been issued."

FOUNDATIONS AND WALLS.

Mr. T. Kennard Thomson, consulting engineer, 50 Church st, who has had an exceptionally large personal experience with New York foundations, at a hearing on Foundations and Walls before a committee of the Building Code Commission, Mr. Paul Starrett, presiding, objected to the idea of allowing a load of four tons per square foot on the quicksand of lower New York, for while he considered that such a load would be absolutely safe for a bridge or isolated building founded on coarse sand, where the sand would be confined in such a way that it could not escape, neither of these conditions would obtain in lower New York where the sand is not coarse, but very fine, often with particles of clay.

He did not consider that more than two tons per square foot should be allowed, and that even this would not be entirely safe, first, because it would certainly permit of more or less settlement which might or might not be detrimental to the new building. One large building last year settled some three or four inches more on the north side than on the south—during construction—the floor being leveled up with ashes, etc., before completion. But such settlement was nearly always injurious to the adjoining property, as it nearly always drags one side of the old building down with it, cracking the walls, ceiling, etc.

Mr. Thomson further said:

"The second danger is much greater—the risk of undermining—for there is no telling where tunnels of some sort will not run in or under New York, and wherever they go there will be a danger of starting a leak which will draw the material from under the old building, for this sand is so fine that it will run wherever water does. Where it thus escapes, a cavity is formed which increases in size until a sudden 'cave-in' is observed from above.

"Wooden piles should never be used in New York City except for a low building, for, of course, they must always be entirely under water in order to prevent rot, and the water level is liable to be lowered considerably in New York. For instance, in many parts of lower New York the original water level stood some six feet above high tide, so there is nothing to prevent future undertakings from tapping and lowering the water even below this level. In fact he knew of one case where the water has already been lowered nearly thirty feet, leaving the entire piles high and dry, and they are wooden piles at that."

No other remarks were offered and the hearing was adjourned. In private conversation afterwards, in regard to foundations and walls, the general opinion was expressed that the present code provisions for foundations and walls are all right in most respects.

The existing code specifies the following loads to the superficial foot, namely: Soft clay, one ton per sq. ft.; ordinary clay and sand together in layers wet and springy, two tons per sq. ft.; loam, clay or fine sand, firm and dry, three tons per sq. ft.; very firm, coarse sand, stiff gravel or hard clay, four tons per sq. ft., or as otherwise determined by the Superintendent of Buildings.

SAFETY EXPOSITION TO BE PERMANENT.

Three gold medals and the diplomas of the American Museum of Safety Devices were awarded at a luncheon meeting at the Engineers' Club Monday. Charles Kirchhoff, chairman of the Committee of Direction, presided. Dr. W. H. Tolman, Director of the Museum, stated that the Exposition was a working model for a permanent museum, and that some of the more important exhibits had been donated to it. There are ten such museums in Europe. To push this work, an educational committee, under the chairmanship of Bishop Potter, has been organized; another valued member is His Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons. Dr. Tolman announced that the gold medal offered by the Scientific American for the most meritorious invention in transportation at the exposition was awarded to the Rich Marine Fire Detecting and Extinguishing System, with an honorable mention to the Welin Quadrant Davit Co., and to the Simmen Automatic Railway Signal Co. The jurors were Professor F. R. Hutton, chairman; H. H. Westinghouse, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Samuel Sheldon, George Gilmour, John Hays Hammond, and Stuyvesant Fish.

For the best invention in Mines and Mining, the gold medal offered by the Travelers' Insurance Co., of Hartford, went to the Draeger Oxygen Apparatus Co., according to the decision of W. R. Ingalls, Charles Kirchhoff and Professor Henry S. Munroe, the jury.

For motor vehicles, either on land or on the water, Francis H. Richards, the inventor, offered a gold medal, which was given to the Non-Explosive Safety Naphtha Container Co. (McNutt Patents), with honorable mention to the Rutherford Wheel Co. The jury were Dr. S. S. Wheeler, Caspar Whitney and A. G. Batchelder.

The Exposition at the rooms of the museum, 231 West 39th street, closed Wednesday of this week. It has attracted technical men, railway officials, architects, and industrialists, all of whom have expressed their satisfaction at its high character and the hope that the movement for a permanent museum may be successful.

CONSTRUCTION

MODEL FIREPROOF FACTORY BUILDING.

THE new building shown herewith for the J. F. Blanchard Co., with New York offices in the Fuller Building, will contain 150,000 sq. ft. of floor space and will be ready for occupancy Oct. 1, 1908. The project is now under way on Borden av, Long Island City, four blocks from 34th st ferry, near the new Blackwell's Island Bridge to Manhattan, and Vernon av bridge to Brooklyn. The station of the Steinway tunnel is within three hundred feet of the property.

The building is absolutely fireproof, not a piece of wood entering into its construction. It is being erected by the George A. Fuller Co., whose reputation for first-class construction is known throughout the world. A notable feature is the distance between columns, each floor being divided into four unobstructed spaces thirty-five ft. wide by one hundred and eighty ft. long, a condition not to be found in any other factory building in Greater New York. There are four different stair exits, enclosed in separate fireproof towers, cut off from the main building by fireproof doors. There is also ample provision of fire-escapes. The insurance rate on the building named by the New York Fire Insurance Exchange is a trifle over eleven cts. on each one hundred dollars, this being, it is said, the lowest insurance rate on a factory building to be obtained in Greater New York.

The building is lighted on four sides and has the maximum amount of glass area allowed by the Building Department. The total floor space is 150,000 ft. Electric elevators connect with shipping platforms on the railroad track, which adjoins the building. Portions of the factory will be leased to tenants by the Blanchard Co.

Milliken Bros. are doing the steel work; the Concrete Steel Co. the floors; the Foundation Co. the concrete piles, and Geo. M. O'Connor the plumbing, while the Blanchard Co. is installing automatically closing fire windows on all sides of the building.

SEVEN HUNDRED FEET ALOFT.

ABOUT six stories more and the steel skeleton of the Metropolitan tower will have its full altitude of seven hundred feet. One of these days a flag will fly from the pinnacle. Seventy-five hundred tons of columns, girders and beams have been raised and fabricated into this framework without a slip or accident of any sort. There is an unofficial report that somebody will get a present if the task of the steel erectors is finished without dropping something.

The masons have covered the steel form with marble to a height of thirty stories. They have raised and set one hundred and seventy-five thousand feet of stone, and have about seventy-five thousand feet more to set. At the same time forty thousand barrels of cement and vast quantities of other fireproofing material are being amalgamated into the construction, and all done without obstructing the street with heaps of material.

The arrival of the steel shapes and marble blocks has been timed like a train schedule. Up in Westchester County, at Tuckahoe, men have been working partly into the night getting out the rough blocks by electric light. The cutting has been done partly at the Tuckahoe shops and partly at the Port Morris shops.

NEW BLANCHARD BUILDING, LONG ISLAND CITY.

Geo. A. Fuller Co., Builder. Paul C. Hunter, Architect.

When a building rises to a height of twenty stories without having cost a life, structural ironworkers think they have been exceptionally fortunate, but here is one nearly seven hundred feet up on which none of the crew has been hurt.

A MULTIPLICATION PROCESS.

The work is now in its most interesting stage. Being visible miles away, thousands daily note its upward rise. It is wonderful to them, but to the actual builders it is merely a case of multiplication. It means only heavier steel members for the fabricators, and a little higher up for the agile fellows who handle them.

Mere height does not appeal to the bridge or wall builder as it does to the up-turned faces in the park, else they would not be up there. That man on the highest girder has only himself to blame if he falls, but to those just below he is a menace, as by chance he might drop something. A few hundred feet more or less makes no difference to the nerves of the trained riveter.

He has a philosophy all his own. What he most fears is the hot rivet and heavy hammer or something else fatal that may fall from above. Should he begin to worry about the height, and brood about danger, his work would be ended. For his own good and the safety of his partners he should quit the proposition.

It is said a bridge builder will lose his nerve sooner when he doubts the dependableness of his particular companion than for any other reason. Ordinarily, he is unconscious of the space beneath him, and his attention is on his work. All the men now employed by Post & McCord, the steel contractors, have gone up with the structure from the bottom.

About the only unusual problems for the steel contractors were the large drums required on the engine to take care of the enormous length of cable required in making the heavier hoists near the top of the building, the special care which had to be taken to prevent the bushing on the sheaves from burning out in the long hoists, and the precautions, on account of the wind to guy the derrick booms, and, in some cases, the pieces that were being erected.

WIND PRESSURE.

The problem of weight and wind pressure was probably the most engaging for the engineers. A pressure of thirty pounds per square foot will blow an empty freight car off the track. All buildings over one hundred feet high are designed to resist a horizontal pressure of thirty pounds for every square foot of exposed surface, measured from ground to roof line. In buildings under a hundred feet high little or no attention is paid to the matter.

Gales rarely blow with equal intensity on every part of large surfaces. Even when the newspapers report a hurricane of eighty miles an hour, engineers have no uneasiness for the stability of their buildings. A fifty-mile blow, which is a rarity, corresponds to a pressure of only 12½ pounds a square foot. The Metropolitan tower, with its great weight of 43,613 tons, is calculated to easily resist a pressure of five times greater.

The weight of the structural steel in the tower alone will be 7,500 tons. The normal weight on the corner columns will be 7,500,000 pounds. The additional load due to wind pressure is calculated at 2,900,000 pounds, or a total load of 10,400,000 pounds. The weight of the corner column sections is in some instances 29 tons each, and in others 25 and 22 tons respectively.

An enormous amount of material is going into the construction of the building. Forty thousand barrels of cement into the tower alone; 9,000 cubic yards of concrete in the tower alone. There is more white marble in the exterior facing of this building than in any other the world over. In several other respects the statistics of the giant construction are record-breakers, and all are interesting.

CONFLICT BETWEEN TILE AND BRICK.

ENLARGED USE OF TILE—LATEST SUGGESTIONS FOR SETTING.

TILE, of the various sorts, is coming into a larger use with each passing year. Only about twenty per cent. of the tile setters of the city are idle at the present time, when many trades have fifty per cent. of their men idle. In San Francisco many buildings of reinforced concrete construction are being faced with tile.

One of these is the Pacific Building, one of the largest in the city, having ground dimensions of 250x165. Secretary Tomkins, of the Consolidated Board of Business Agents for the New York building trades, has received photographs of the building from the secretary of the San Francisco Tile-Layers Union. The whole building is of reinforced concrete, except that externally the walls are faced with tile. So much tile is being used in San Francisco that the bricklayers' unions made a demand for all the tile work in concrete buildings, saying that if this concession were not granted they would not set terra cotta partition blocks. The tile layers thereupon offered to set the partitions, and have done so in a number of cases.

In the construction of the power house at 40th and 41st sts and the East River, there was a conflict between the tile-layers and the brick-layers which had to be decided by a committee of the Arbitration Board. Blocks over a certain size were given to the brick masons to set. With the new competition from tile, on one hand, and concrete on the other, the brick masons are guarding their position more carefully.

LATEST SUGGESTIONS FOR TILE-SETTING.

In view, then, of the growth of the industry, one picks up a booklet that is being sent out by the Eastern representative of the Mosaic Tile Company (New York) with more than ordinary interest.

It is the official compilation by the manufacturers of the United States of suggestions for setting tile, for both floors and walls. Foundations are first considered, then floors, and the statement is made that tile should always be laid upon concrete, and this not to be composed in any part of cinders.

Where steel beams and hollow tile arches are used, frequently very little space is left for preparing a proper foundation for setting tile, as the rough coating is usually put in by the hollow tile contractor to protect his work, but this covering should always conform to the requirements for a solid tile foundation. Should this not be the case, the tile contractor should remove sufficient of the covering to allow him to put down a foundation that will insure a satisfactory tile floor. (Cinders, lime, mortar or inferior material must never be used.)

The tops of iron beams should be from three to four inches below the finished floor line, to prevent floors when finished showing lines of the beams.

FOR HEARTHS.

The foundation for hearths should be placed upon a brick arch, if possible, to insure perfect fire protection, and then covered with concrete in the same manner as directed for tile floors. If placed upon a sub-foundation of wood, the concreting should be at least six inches thick.

FOR WALLS.

When tiles are to be laid on old brick walls the plaster must be all removed and the mortar not be pointed. When tiles are to be placed on studding, the studding should be well braced by filling in between the studding with brick set in mortar to the height of tile work; or brick work may be omitted and extra studding put in and thoroughly bridged, so as to have as little spring as possible, and this studding then covered with sheet metal lathing. (Tile must never be placed on wood lath or on old plaster.) The brick walls must be well wet with water and then covered with a rough coating of cement mortar, composed of one part Portland cement and two parts clean sharp sand. When tiles are placed on metal lathing, hair should be mixed with the cement mortar to make it adhere more closely to the lath. The cement mortar should be ½ inch thick, or sufficient to make an even and true surface to within one inch of the intended finished surface of the tile, when the ½ inch thick is used, which will allow a space of ½ inch for the cement mortar, composed as above for rough coating the

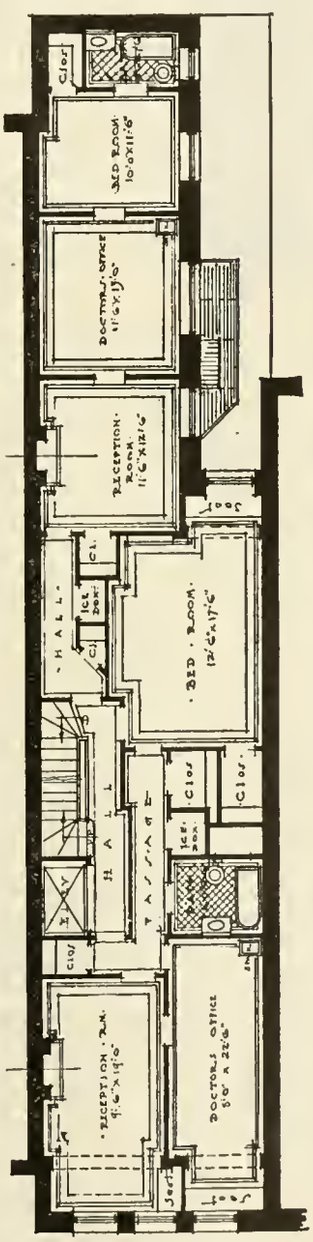
THE ARCHITECT
WHAT HE HAS DONE RECENTLY AND WHY HE DID IT.



TRANSFORMING A FIFTH AVENUE HOUSE.

During the coming summer one of the residences which at present forms a part of the marble block extending on 5th av, from 57th to 58th sts, will be transformed into a modern bachelor apartment building, with store and loft in first and second floors respectively. The building will have seven stories above the street, beside a roof house, and will cover the lot with the exception of a court of sufficient size to secure ample light for all apartments.

The front will be of white marble to the main cornice at the seventh floor level, above which there will be a mansard roof faced with light green slate. The whole, while forming a distinctive feature in the block, harmonizes in material and general character with the buildings on either side.

5th, 6th and 7th Floor Plan.
Bachelor Apartments.

3d and 4th Floor Plan.
Doctors' Apartments.

A special feature of the building are the apartments on the third and fourth floors, which are designed for the use of physicians, and contain reception room, office, bedroom and bathroom. All apartments are also provided with refrigerator and connection for a small portable gas stove.

The architects, Messrs. Walker & Hazzard, of 437 5th av, Manhattan, have endeavored to make this building complete and perfect in all its appointments, and the measure of their success in this respect may be judged from the fact that three apartments have been rented prior to the beginning of building operations. Particular interest is attached to this operation from the fact that the block in which it occurs has been since its erection by the late Mason Jones, some thirty years ago, one of the most noteworthy architectural features of 5th av, and is the centre of a district chosen by many of the wealthiest New Yorkers for their homes; the residences of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt and C. P. Huntington occupying adjacent corners, and those of Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs and the Iselin and Guggenheim houses adjoin on the north. The Jones Construction Co., 1 Union sq, has received the general contract for the work. The Otis Co. will install an elevator. Tucker, Speyer & Co. are the agents.

THE MAN ON THE STREET.

MY friend Bud wrote the other day that he would kill me if I ever told the building world what a crack-a-jack he is. Go easy, my boy. This killing is bad business, especially when the intended victim is a sawed-off. But then it's been going on for a long time. It began rather early in the game of building superintendence.

Years ago I superintended putting in a hydraulic elevator. The owner ran short of funds near completion, and when the final inspection was made the machinery did not work. Investigation showed some old hose in the surge tank and that it had been put there by the negro engineer in the employ of the owner. I applied some rather strong Homeric language to him, and he picked up a short iron bar and started for me, intent on changing the geography of my anatomy.

I couldn't run away, for we were in the basement, and I thought the jig was up. As I was breathing a silent prayer and he was passing the door of a dark storeroom, a ham-like fist shot out, and catching the negro on the point of the jaw, put him to sleep. The hand belonged to Pat, the laborer, who somehow approved of the architect's existence.

Pat smoked and I didn't, and he used to come in for stray cigars with which unscrupulous sub-contractors insisted on bribing me to sell my eternal soul. The ambulance surgeon took an hour to resuscitate the coon, Pat remaining to see that no further trouble occurred. So Bud, Pax vobiscum, but if you come up here to do the killing, I'll get my steel erecting boys after your scalp in self-defense. Life saving corps to the front and centre.

Now and then you run up against a man who without any or much technical training shows marked ability as an executive in lines in which the technicist is all important. Such a man is Merriman, vice-president of a prominent construction company. He is a man of commercial training, intensely high tension, nervous force and a pusher from 'way back. He carried through one of the most difficult building operations for a large department store constructed in sections with a minimum interruption to business and in record-breaking time.

The architect of this structure appreciated this man's courage, skill and ability in his position, for I know a time when he took considerable trouble, unsolicited, to go out of his way to see that any appreciative word he might say reached the right man. Merriman loves the water and tones up his nervous system sailing on the merry surface of the waves. The Man on the Street wishes he saw him oftener, but he now is in the West, and not in New York.

There is a little place in the Marquette Building where we first met and now there my spirit flies apace to see him. Don't get bug-house, Bill.

Up, up, we go silently, smoothly, in safety, for these are not make-shift hod-hoists, but in the sure conduct of the elevator guides. A stop now and then for workmen going higher—but only for a brief space—and we are soon far above all heights possible with other buildings to date.

We are not quite up yet, and there are ladders to climb,—only the matter of a few stories, however, and out to where there are many men and much material, moving and quiescent. Everything is in place, or going to be soon, for there is a concentrated action here. The big derrick may be motionless for a little while, but soon the cable is swiftly slipping through the blocks, the pulleys of which revolve always with the motion.

The big fellow raises the load with small effort. The man on the edge signals. The steel in transit swings in. It is now on the floor. Joe is at hand, resplendent in a new suit of brown working clothes. He is helping to look after things up there. I ask a "knock down;" off come both our gloves, and his big voice and hand bid greeting. His blue eye too gives a keen but welcome look. He makes the Man on the Street feel at ease in this domain of the upper world, without a spoken word thereon, for we understand each other. He is a man of fine features, in the prime of his manhood, and you feel that you have met someone worth knowing.

To look around you is to travel far and wide, as in an airship if such things were; yet your moving is optical and mental. You will all see this sight in time if you care to. Down again to the street, ever conducted with every safeguard. Hurry! Harry, the active, is there; "Ed," the dauntless, and "little Mike" (quite a husky though), and they are busy getting more stuff up. Your greetings are on the fly, for these men don't stop. There is too much to do. If they stopped to chin, they would not be the efficient men they are. Big Mike, the foreman, knows this all, and he is the man who made the Man on the Street realize that "Pygmies perched on Alps are pygmies still," but they can get bigger if they try. Take the elevator, physical and mental. The line forms on this side.

At times I have seen a good deal of a prominent manufacturer of a high grade steel product. Known him all my life in fact, as far back as I can remember. He is now past three score and ten, but in spite of severe physical infirmities, is very active in business. He makes a big bunch of money, but has never lost his humanity or kindness of heart. His unheralded charities are legion. He employs many men, has a model plant and almost as perfect a mechanical and selling force as can be organized under modern conditions.

He does not kill himself with unnecessary details, but maps out every move well in advance of actual need of action. He has many branches, each located in a good-sized city and covers a wide range of territory from ocean to ocean as it is, and from Hudson Bay to far down in South America. His company sells also extensively in foreign ports. All this he has accomplished in a generation by his steady persistency and acumen.

Asked how he keeps his men up to their high standard, he replied: "Well! I sugar them as they deserve." Old employes are not thrown on the scrap heap, but their duties are lightened as age creeps on. His young office men are chosen from deserving poor boys. He is very democratic, preserves his dignity, is accessible to all, gives both sides a fair hearing in controversies and permeates the entire business with his personality. Were there many more like him we would not have these periodical business depressions; but have patience brethren.

Yesterday I told the member of the traffic squad stationed in front of the Bartholdi that he must be nervous-prostration proof. He smiled. He had just taken an elderly female by the waist and whirled her from hasty death from two passing trolley cars, which she seemed intent on stopping with her corpse. His agile "Waltz-me-around-again-Willy" act may have saved the mother of some great constructor, but I asked no questions.

You often pass a building and see a man strutting along the sidewalk bridge with a switch, a broom handle and sometimes a cudgel. It is a badge of authority generally self assumed. Passers-by on the public highway outside the building line are sometimes warned in language rude to "Gwan now!"

The other day before Bill had reduced his spleen, he stopped to see some men setting a derrick in the excavation of a building erecting in 24th st. West, for those people of good will toward men, the Masons. Suddenly his technical reverie was interrupted by a heavy tread and a rough command commenting on his undesirable citizenship if he did not remove. It came from a rough specimen of a red muzzle with a mixed-ale voice and a stubbly chin. Bill "fixed him" with eagle-eye and explained in a gentle voice his rights as a taxpayer in being there. Nothing doing. Expostulations at the time-keeper's cubby-hole made it even more complicated by horrid rudeness from within, and Bill was up against it.

Diplomatic relations were suspended and have not been resumed. Meanwhile note that our neighbor "the man at the gate" across the way carries no big stick, is courteous and helpful to all, so far as Bill has seen, and behaves himself like a man and a brother to the unfortunates out of work. Molasses catches more flies than vinegar "if it's the straight-goods kind."

Photography and pictorial representation are wonderful things when backed with imagination and an ability to see a picture large in the mind's eye.

A Sunday or so ago, picking up a paper and lo! one was on the top of the Metropolitan Life tower with the steel boys. Down below was the square and the buildings on Broadway. The city's panorama stretched away to the river's edge. Men were fitting-in beams, sledging one to a connection, hanging in a bos'n's chair, painting a corner column, and even sliding down a rope. Almost could be heard the sound of constructive activity and the city's hum. Who says printers' ink cannot be alive?

CONFLICT BETWEEN TILE AND BRICK.

walls. The face of the cement foundation should be roughly scratched, and allowed to harden for at least one day before commencing to lay the tile. If any lime is mixed with the cement mortar for setting the tiles, it should never exceed 10 per cent., and great care must be used to have the lime well slacked, and made free from all lumps by running through a coarse sieve, in order to guard against "heaving" or "swelling," and thus loosening or "lifting" the tiles.

The foundation for both floor and wall tiling should be thoroughly brushed, to remove all dust and small particles adhering to it, and then well wet before putting on the cement mortar. To insure a perfect bond it is best to coat the foundation by brushing over it pure cement mixed in water.

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT.

The Trade in Lumber.

Throughout the United States during the first nine months of the year 1907 business in lumber continued in large volume, the diminished business in some centres being more than compensated for in others. During this period price lists were well maintained. Irregularities which developed last fall became more pronounced during the winter and early spring. Values have not been so favorable for builders in a number of years as they are at the present time. The cut of lumber by species in 1906 is shown in the annexed diagram, embodying the latest returns from Government sources. Yellow pine is far in the lead, furnishing 31.1 per cent. of the total amount. Douglas fir comes second, with 13.2 per cent.; white pine third, with 12.2 per cent.; hemlock fourth, with 9.4 per cent., and oak fifth, with 7.5 per cent. Spruce and western pine furnish 4.4 per cent. and 3.7 per cent., respectively. These seven kinds of timber furnish over four-fifths of the total, and no other kind reaches one billion feet of lumber annually. Under lumber is included sawed railroad cross-ties.

The reports of the lumber cut by States show that Washington leads, with 11.5 per cent.; Louisiana is second, with 7.4 per cent.; Wisconsin third, with 6.2 per cent.; and Michigan fourth, with 5.6 per cent. The fifteen States which cut over one billion feet each in 1906, supplied nearly three-fourths of the total production.

In the year 1880 nine States produced 52.8 per cent. of the total amount, and in 1906, 51.5 per cent., practically equal proportions, but the changes which have taken place in the output of individual States are very striking. Michigan, for instance, cut 23 per cent. of the total in 1880 and but 5.6 per cent. in 1906; Louisiana cut 0.7 per cent. of the total in 1880 and 7.4 per cent. in 1906; Washington furnished but 0.9 per cent. of the lumber production of 1880 and 11.5 per cent. of that of 1906.

Last year the softwood cut was over four times the hardwood cut. There has been a very decided change in the ratio of hardwoods to softwoods in recent years. In 1899 the hardwoods furnished nearly 25 per cent. of the total, against less than 19.5 per cent. in 1906. This has been caused by a greatly increased cut of certain softwoods, together with a strong decrease in leading hardwoods.

ESTIMATE FOR 1907.

The cut has more than doubled since 1880, and it is probably safe to say that, could wholly complete statistics be obtained, at least forty billion feet would be shown for the record of 1907.

Large Elevator Builders.

Kaestner & Co., Chicago, are a firm who have become a strong factor in the elevator market, in the building and installation of all types of elevator machinery for many important buildings.

With ample financial resources and a wide experience in high class mechanics covering the last thirty years, this firm has developed a full line of electrical elevators, including traction, double worm and spur geared, also vertical, horizontal and plunger types of hydraulic elevators.

Kaestner & Co. have carried the development of power-saving and safety devices to most satisfactory results. Their electrically controlled machines show wide ranges of speed with perfect control in starting and stopping. In a recent demonstration it was noted that the instant reverse of the switch in a car traveling at 300 feet a minute resulted only in a smooth stop and a natural reverse without jar.

AUTOMATIC PUSH-BUTTON ELEVATOR-CONTROL MACHINE AND SWITCH-BOARD.

The illustration shows their automatic push-button control machine and switchboard for direct or alternating current. This machine has been installed in private residences, hospitals, apartment buildings and clubs where an operator was not desired. With this apparatus, it is possible for any person to operate the car with perfect safety.

The elevator is controlled from the car by a series of push-buttons, the operation of the car to any desired landing being controlled by a button indicating that landing. At each landing, outside the enclosure near the door, is a push-button, which upon pressing will bring the elevator to the specified landing, provided the car is not in operation; or that the door of the landing where the car may be is closed. Locking devices are provided for each door, which absolutely prevent the opening of any door, unless the platform of the car is level with the floor on that landing. It is absolutely necessary that every door of the elevator inclosure be closed in order to operate elevator. A safety stop-button is provided in car, whereby a party in the car can stop the elevator at will.

Those interested in the installation of high class elevator machinery will be interested in receiving estimates and specifications from Kaestner & Co., Chicago.

MARKET FOR LOCKS.—There is a good chance for American locks in Germany. The locks in use there are mostly of the double-turn variety, two revolutions of the key being necessary to send the bolt home. The keys are heavy and unwieldy. This applies especially to the house-door key, which is considerably heavier than the others. A large percentage of the people live in flats. The outside door is locked at a certain hour in the evening and the house key must be carried if one remains out after hours. If some firm could demonstrate the advantages of the American spring lock, with its small flat key, it is reasonably certain that an excellent market could be made.

—The U. S. Senate passed the Government liability bill, which provides for compensation for employes injured while in the Government service.

PRICES CURRENT.

BRICK.—Conditions in the wholesale market are as last reported. Brick are selling for very low prices. Some manufacturers are laying up their boats, finding no market. The outgo into channels of consumption has been larger this week than last, but the average weekly business as noted by the president of the Manufacturers' Association, Mr. W. K. Hammond, is only about 50 per cent. of what it was at this corresponding time last year. Quotations continue nominal.

What is believed to be the first shipment of firebrick from this country to Europe was made when the Massillon (Ohio) Stone & Fire Brick Company shipped over the Pennsylvania Railroad a carload of its products to the Rheinahr Glasfabrik Manufacturing Company, of Sinzig, Germany. The brick will go from Massillon to Boston, where it will be loaded on a steamer for Belgium. At Belgium it will be transferred to a train and transported to its destination. The fireproof blocks are to be used in the furnaces of the company to which they are consigned. The carload weighed 40,000 pounds. The material for the furnaces, it is said, has always been made in Europe heretofore. The purchase of this carload will, it is thought, create a foreign market for this sort of American products.

Fire brick has had a large gain in production in recent years. Next to common brick it is the product of largest value. The gain in production in 1906 over the previous year exceeded 11.5 per cent. Paving brick gained 17 per cent in amount produced. The undoubted merit of vitrified brick, when properly laid, as a paving material, is becoming realized more and more, partly on account of the educational campaign that has been carried on by the makers of the product. This variety of brick is also being used more and more in building.

The front brick industry in New York shares the consequences of the prevailing dullness, but on the whole, taking an average of years, the industry continues to prosper. The output in 1906 was valued at three-quarters of a million more than in 1905. This seems to indicate that fine buildings of increasing number are being erected of brick. Fancy or ornamental (shape) brick continues to decline. The product is being displaced by other forms of ornamentation, probably by terra cotta. The decrease in 1906 was quite marked—29.53 per cent. Enamel brick is one that shows large relative increase—from $636,279 in 1905 to $773,104 in 1906, or 21.50 per cent. The increased use of this product will probably soon bring the value of the domestic enameled brick up to the million-dollar mark.

Sewer pipe is one of the growing branches of the clay-working industries, and the total value of the product now exceeds eleven million dollars annually. The total gain of brick and tile products in 1906 was $7,813,544, or 6.42 per cent, and the total gain for brick and tile and pottery was $11,335,534, or 7.57 per cent.

CEMENT.—Probably there will not be, during the first year at least, a very large surplus from the new slag cement mill of the U. S. Steel Corporation near Homestead. The corporation itself can use two million barrels annually, and the maximum capacity of the cement mill is three million, which is not likely to be reached during the first year.

Slag, or puzzolan cement, has been in the market for a number of years. The cementing materials used under this name are made by mixing powdered slack lime with either a volcanic ash or a blast furnace slag. The product is, therefore, a mechanical mixture of two ingredients, as the mixture is not burned at any stage of the process, but is finely ground. The resulting powder will set under water.

Puzzolan cements are in color usually light bluish, and of lower specific gravity and less tensile strength than Portland cement. There are about a dozen plants making cement of this kind—two in Alabama, one in Kentucky, one in Illinois, two in Ohio, two in Pennsylvania, and one plant each in Maryland, New Jersey and New York. The entire quantity manufactured in the year 1906 was less than half a million barrels, which is an indication that the industry is of slow growth.

A merger of Western cement interests has been effected whereby the Cement Scurities Company, Denver, Colo., has taken over the Portland Cement Company, Denver, Colo.; Union Portland Cement Company, Ogden, Utah; Three Forks Portland Cement Company, Triden, Mont., and Southwestern Portland Cement Company, El Paso, Tex. The officers of the Cement Securities Company are Charles Boettcher, president; Whitney Newton, M. D. Thatcher and Joseph F. Smith, vice-presidents; James Pingree, secretary and treasurer; G. W. Bartholomew, assistant secretary.

Locally, the cement interests are marking time and waiting for the "send-off" that is certain to come. A large amount of big work is in sight, and when it will be available depends on several things, though to a less extent on the condition of the money market than at any previous time this season.

Mr. Roswell Tompkins, secretary of the Consolidated Board of Business Agents for the New York building trades, expressed the situation epigrammatically this week when he said, "They are all at the post together." He added: "Everything was closed out last fall, and now all must begin again, and they will be calling for men and materials all at the same time."

Mr. Tompkins intimated that the consequence will be decidedly interesting to observe. He considers that there has been a decided improvement in the monetary situation, and that money is actually loose again. But when owners having plans ready are asked why they do not begin operations they answer, "Oh, there is no hurry; wait until we see what the political certainties are."

Mr. Tompkins thinks that the political reason is the strongest influence in the market at present, and that a change may be expected for the better just as soon as the nominations are made.

IRON, STEEL, ETC.—The active buying of foundry iron in the East has been suddenly and sharply checked by the advance in prices by the Sloss-Sheffield Company and the firmer attitude assumed by other Alabama furnaces.

Fabricated prices still indicate that plain structural steel material is being shaded.

There is a decidedly firmer tone for all descriptions of hardware. Demand has been improving slowly but steadily, with the advance of the season. More business is developing in the West than in this vicinity, but it will be but a short time when the larger buyers will be in the market. Manufacturers expect a good demand for builders' hardware throughout the country.

The filing of plans for the east section of the N. Y. Central terminal building indicates the imminence of that work. It will require a large tonnage, as it is to be 366 feet in length, on Depew pl, 72 ft. in depth and 9 stories in height, with two stories underground. The estimated cost is $400,000. It will have a facade of brick and limestone, classic in design, with great bays of glass and iron set between tall pilasters and finished with an ornamental cornice and balustrade and a peaked dome. The lower of the subway floors will be for the use of the local trains and the upper for the express service. The main floor will be an immense encourse.

The Board of Estimate has authorized a bond issue of $2,700,000 for the new municipal building, particularly to pay for the substructure. It is expected that the work will be resumed in July.

The Hinkle Iron Co. has received the contract for about 1,100 tons of steel for the 3-sty garage of the New York Taxicab Company, to be erected on the south side of 57th st, 275 feet west of 11th av, on lot 225x145. About 500 tons will consist of rolled steel beams 30 inches deep, to be made by the Bethlehem Steel Co., as a substitute for plate girders. This will be the first building in New York in which these new sections will be used. Heretofore the largest rolled steel beam sections have been 24 inches deep.

The General Fire Proofing Company, Youngstown, O., has the contract to furnish the steel for the structural work and the reinforced work on the proposed $650,000 car barns to be erected by the New York City Railway Company in New York City. The building will be made as nearly as possible absolutely fireproof. The first floor will be built of structural steel fireproofed with stone concrete, and above the first floor the building will be reinforced concrete. The window casings, doors, furnishings, etc., will be steel fabricated, including steel lockers for motormen, conductors, etc. The structure will be 600x1,000 feet, four stories high. John T. Brady Co. is the general contractor.

LUMBER.—Builders are noting that price-cutting has extended to the retail trade in lumber. The volume of business averages only about fifty per cent. of last year's. Hardwoods seem to have the strongest position in the list. There is a good deal of repair and alteration work that is calling for hardwood.

Mr. C. W. Wilson, of C. W. Wilson & Co., foot of Dean st, Brooklyn, who specialize in yellow pine, strongly condemns the cut-throat methods which, he says, have been employed during the past year by some lumber firms. At the height of the activity last year quotations were subject to sudden changes, which made it difficult to figure a job. The condition of the market at the present time was not healthy, he said.

Mr. John Breen, of William Breen's Sons, foot of Greenpoint av, reports a fair amount of business during the last two months, and he is looking for a gradual increase in orders.

Retail dealers on the Jersey shore and vicinity had a very satisfactory year in 1907. Mr. S. T. Zabriskie, head of the Anderson Lumber Co., of Passaic, considers that a building boom in the nearby portion of New Jersey is a foregone conclusion.

The latest review of hardwood prices and conditions from the secretary of the Hardwood Manufacturers' Association of the United States contains few changes of moment. In the mountain districts, it says, few mills are running, practically none on full time. In the river sections, where the production has been the largest, arrangements have been made to deadpile the stock that is being produced this year, as it is appreciated that the market will not take the output.

At a meeting of West Virginia spruce manufacturers the sense of the meeting was that the price should be maintained.

In the local trade, on general lines, reports are to the effect that the desire of both wholesalers and retailers to do business is productive of such an active competition that profits are being sacrificed. The first consideration for many is to keep going. The range of quotations is therefore wide, not to say uncertain.

The quotations given in this list are the wholesale prices to the retail trade on well manufactured and graded stock, according to the inspection rules at present obtaining. It is not practicable to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable, because terms of sale and other factors influence prices.

PAINTS AND OILS.—There are 22,000 so-called painters in New York, of whom only 9,000 are organized, and of these only 40 per cent. are employed at their trade. Advertisements for help are appearing more freely, but the wages offered are much below the union scale of $4 a day.

The possibility of cheap labor and materials has inspired a large amount of redecorating and repainting. Many city painters are finding good work in the suburbs of Westchester and Long Island.

There is a fairly good demand for linseed oil. A continued satisfactory jobbing movement in varnishes of leading descriptions is also reported.

WINDOW GLASS.—Business is so small as not to be considered as real trading by either manufacturers or jobbers. Window glass has not been in so weak a state for years. Several factories have closed, and more will do so. Stocks are so large that it is being said there is enough to supply the trade for the rest of the year. Prices to jobbers are purely nominal, and there are instances when mills are willing to accept any figure in order to realize.

Material From Fifth Ave. Hotel.

The Rheinfrank House Wrecking Company, 620 East 14th st, which started the demolition of the Madison Square Theatre several weeks ago to clear the site of the proposed 5th av office building, has finished with the western section of the old Fifth Avenue Hotel. The work will proceed despite the fact that the stores on the first floor front are still occupied. The time of wrecking has been so fixed that the contractors will be ready to complete the last part of their contract as soon as the stores are vacated.

Some valuable and rare articles will be secured from the interior finish of the hotel and will be kept on view for sale at the yards of the Rheinfrank company on East 14th st. These include choice bathroom outfits, handsome mantels, desirable windows and doors, costly chandeliers, fine flooring, and the like. As the fittings of the Fifth Avenue Hotel were held to be among the best in the city, a good chance is offered to get something good at a low price.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Brooklyn's Three Million Dollar Hotel.

Plans by Robert T. Lyons, 31 Union sq, Manhattan, have been completed for the new hotel which the Consolidated Mortgage Company, Suite E, 4 and 5 Produce Exchange Building, is soon to construct on the Plaza at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, the cost of which it is said will be in excess of $3,000,000. It is stated that in style and beauty the proposed edifice will compare favorably with the leading Manhattan hotels. It will contain 1,200 guest rooms, twelve and one-half stories, constructed of reinforced concrete, faced with white glazed terra cotta and white glazed brick, surmounted by a copper roof. In the centre will be a circular marble rotunda, with fountains, gardens, statues, palms, etc. There will be a large roof garden, restaurant, billiard and pool rooms, bowling alleys, turkish baths, cold storage and ice plant, private plant for light and heat, kitchen plant, ball room and second floor parlors in white and gold. There will also be suites of 2, 3 and 4 rooms arranged for housekeeping. Eight plunger elevators will be installed. Excavating will probably be started by July, and it is expected that the building will be completed and ready for occupancy by September of next year. The amount to be expended for the land is $300,000, and for the building $2,700,000. The owners will have the general contract. The company is composed of A. H. Muller, president; N. A. Macbride, vice-president; C. J. Zimmerman, treasurer and secretary. The company also owns the Hampton apartments, situated at No. 9 Prospect Park West.

Successful Figures for Brooklyn's Subway.

Subject to the approval of the Board of Estimate, the contracts have been awarded for building the 4th av (Brooklyn) subway, Section No. 1 excepted. Approval will mean that the Board of Estimate has sufficient money for the work, and this point is a matter of doubt. The contracts were awarded to the lowest bidder, for each section, as follows:

Contract No. 2, extending from Willoughby st to Ashland pl, William Bradley, railroad work, $3,436,019; pipe galleries, $58,695; total, $3,494,714.

Contract No. 3, extending from Ashland pl, to Sackett st, William Bradley, railroad work, $3,392,091.50; pipe galleries, $208,135; total, $3,600,226.50.

Contract No. 4, extending from Sackett st to 10th st, E. E. Smith Contracting Company, railroad work, $2,283,553.30; pipe galleries, $206,672; total, $2,490,205.30.

Contract No. 5, extending from 10th st to 27th st, the Tide Water Building Company and Thomas E. Bryson, railroad work, $1,945,640.50; pipe galleries, $251,076; total, $2,196,716.50.

Contract No. 6, extending from 27th st to 43d st, E. E. Smith Contracting Company, railroad work, $2,808,982.80; pipe galleries, $173,665; total, $2,982,647.80.

It was said at the office of the commission that further consideration was necessary on Contract No. 1, extending from Nassau st to Willoughby st. The lowest bidders for this section are James P. Graham and Rogers & Haggerty.

Particulars of New Wall St. Building.

WALL ST.—The Island Realty Company, No. 111 Broadway, of which Richard Babbage is president, proposes to erect a new building at No. 69 Wall st, running through the block to Nos. 89-91 Beaver st. Although it has been announced in the daily papers that this building will be twenty stories high, this information is not authentic, as the number of stories has not been decided upon, and no architect has been selected. Two architects whose names have been prominently identified with former work for the Island Realty Company and its subsidiaries have been mentioned in connection with the plans, but as the leases on this building will not expire until next May, it is probable that no immediate action will be taken. From present indications it is possible that the contracts will be awarded on a percentage basis, to a contractor already practically selected.

Summer Residence at Sea Cliff.

SEA CLIFF, L. I.—Herbert M. Baer, architect, No. 542 5th av, Manhattan, has been commissioned by Mr. L. Zimmermann, senior member of the well-known firm of Zimmermann & Forshay, bankers, to prepare plans for his summer residence at Sea Cliff, L. I. The house will be of stucco, 40x62 ft. in size, and will be supplied with all possible modern conveniences. The site is on a slope of the hill overlooking the bay, and will be laid out in broad terraces.

Bannister & Schell Win Competition.

BRONX.—The competition recently engaged in by a number of architects for the new Chelsea Methodist Episcopal Church, to be erected at the northwest corner of 178th st and Fort Washington av, Bronx, pastor of which is Rev. A. Gay, has been settled, and Architects Bannister & Schell, of No. 69 Wall st, have been commissioned to prepare plans, the approximate cost to be $100,000.

Turner Co. Get Contract at Jacksonville, Fla.

The Turner Construction Co., No. 11 Broadway, Manhattan, has received the contract for the construction of a reinforced concrete warehouse for the J. G. Christopher Co. at Bay and Liberty sts, Jacksonville, Fla. This building will be 2 stories high, 105x105 ft. with 50 ft. arch spans. This is the second large contract received from this company.

Howell, 3d av and 149th st, has on the boards plans for one 6-sty tenement, all improvements, to be erected on the north side of 143d st, 250 ft. west of Brook av, for James C. and Honora M. Corbett, owners; residence, southwest corner 162d st and Melrose av, Bronx, to cost $23,000.

MANHATTAN.—Sommerfeld & Steckler, 19 Union sq, have prepared plans for a 6-sty flat building to be erected at the southeast corner of Broadway and 160th st, to cost $150,000. The Crystal Realty same owner will erect a similar building same owners will build a similar building at the northeast corner of Broadway and 160th st, to cost $125,000. (See issue April 25, 1908.)

Banks.

TOMS RIVER, N. J.—Architect Leon Cubberly, 1 Madison av, Manhattan, is preparing plans for a bank building to be built at Toms River, N. J. Brick, semi-fireproof, 30x48, and will contain a post office on the first floor. The owners are the Ocean County Trust Co., of Toms River, president of which is G. E. Holman.

Churches.

MANHATTAN.—Architect H. Norkheim, of the Bronx, is preparing plans for a new synagogue to be erected in Van Nest. The name of the owner will be given to the public later.

BROOKLYN.—Architects, Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, 170 5th av, Manhattan, are taking estimates on the church to be erected on the east side of 2d av, from 73d to 74th sts, Brooklyn. Chairman of the building committee is Rev. Bishop Falkner, N. Y. C.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—Figures will soon be taken on a new edifice which the Mt. Pleasant Reformed Church, Rev. A. B. Herman, of Schenectady, N. Y., pastor, intends to build on Christler av, Schenectady, N. Y. Plans as prepared by A. G. Lindley Co., of Schenectady, call for a brick and limestone building, 70x100, which will seat 300, to cost about $30,000.

LYME, CONN.—The old Congregational church, in Lyme, one of the oldest in the country, which was destroyed by fire July last, is to be rebuilt. Subscriptions have been raised amounting to $50,000, and it is understood that work will begin at once. The design of the old church structure, which was one of the finest examples of pure Colonial architecture, will be followed closely.

Court Houses.

WAMPSVILLE, N. Y.—Bids will be received at the office of E. Leland Hunt, attorney, Oneida, N. Y., until June 11 for the erection of a court house and jail at Wampsville.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The County Commissioners have voted to purchase the Sargent property at Church and Elm sts as the site for the new court house. No plans have yet been drawn, or architect selected.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Bids will be received until June 10 by Alex. J. Clements, secretary, for furnishing material for the interior work of the new court house and power house building and equipment. Plans and specifications may be secured from Hugh Roberts, architect, 1 Exchange pl, upon a deposit of $500.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—A meeting of the committee in charge of the erection of a new county court house was held in the office of the county commissioners. The committee consists of County Commissioners Walter and Geddes, Speaker John Q. Tilson of the Legislature, and Senator D. A. Blakeslee. At the next county meeting, to be held soon, money for the new court house and land will very likely be appropriated.

Dwellings.

BROOKLYN HILLS, L. I.—On Elm st, just west of Grant av, Brooklyn Hills, Grace M. Cullingford is to build a 2-sty frame dwelling to cost $4,000.

UNION COURSE, L. I.—At Union Course Philip Schneider will build three 2-sty frame dwellings on 2d st, west of Suydam av, at a cost of $7,500.

SEA GATE, L. I.—Architect M. W. Morris, 82 Wall st, Manhattan, is taking figures on a residence to be built at Sea Gate, L. I., for O. A. Jones, of the same place. Plans call for a building of terra cotta blocks and stucco work, 2½-stys, to cost $18,000.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Architect Albert Gottlieb, 156 5th av, Manhattan, has awarded to the David H. Clark Co., of New Haven, the contract to erect a fine residence on Whitney av, New Haven, for Rudolph Steinert. No sub-contracts have yet been awarded.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J.—I. Semels, Newark, N. J., has commissioned Frank Grad to draw plans of a 3-sty frame dwelling to be erected at 182-184 Glenwood av, Bloomfield. It will contain apartments of five and six rooms, for six families, and measure 30x66 ft. The estimated cost is $9,000.

GREENWICH, CONN.—Contract for the addition to the residence of C. M. Chester, to be erected at Greenwich, Conn., was awarded to Augan & Hadden, Greenwich, Conn. Plans prepared by Architects Ewing & Chappell, 345 5th av, Manhattan, include general interior remodeling and a small addition.

RICHMOND HILL, L. I.—At an estimated cost of $27,500 Louis Gotthelf, of Jamaica av, will erect a number of buildings on that street. At the northeast corner of Welling st he will erect a 3-sty store and dwelling, costing $7,500, and on the north side of the avenue, 250 ft. west of Welling st, he proposes to erect four 3-sty brick dwellings, which will cost $20,000.

Factories and Warehouses.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y.—The Beechnut Packing Company will build an extensive addition to their plant.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—The Ryder Patent Yarn Co. has secured a site at Niagara Falls on which it is proposed erecting a mill costing about $325,000.

WATERVLIET, N. Y.—It is now a certainty that the Delaware & Hudson Co. will erect its shops at Watervliet. Positive plans have not been made public.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Architect J. T. Rowland, Jr., Exchange pl, Jersey City, is taking figures on an addition to the American Type Foundry Co. factory at Communipaw Port, Jersey City. This addition will be 2-stys high, 49x87.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Hill & Stout, 1123 Broadway, Manhattan, are still taking figures on the factory which is to be built on Essex st, Jersey City, by the Causse Mfg. & Importing Co. Face brick and marble trimmings, fireproof, 6-stys, 68x73.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—General contract for the factory, which the American Tobacco Co., 57th st and 1st av, Manhattan, is to build at New Brunswick, N. J., was awarded this week to the Russell-Robinson Co., 109 Frelinghuysen av, Newark, N. J.

OSWEGO, N. Y.—The Oswego Tool Co. is laying plans for the building of a new factory on the site of the old Findlay machine shop building which the company purchased some time ago. The company will erect a 3-sty brick building. It is thought that the work of construction will begin by next fall.

ENDICOTT, N. Y.—Ground was broken May 21 for a new factory north of the Erie Railroad tracks. A concrete building, 100x50 ft., will be erected for the manufacture of carpenters' and builders' supplies. The new concern is under the management of E. House. The name of the company has not yet been given out.

Halls and Clubs.

PASSAIC, N. J.—In Wall st, Passaic, N. J., James Cray, 1 Wall st, will build a club house from plans by Architect John F. Kelly, Post Office Building, Passaic, N. J.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—Kalurah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., to which many Elmira Shriners belong, has decided to erect a large convention hall for its own use. An immense kitchen will be attached.

NEWARK, N. J.—Architect Albert Phillips, 70 Park pl, Newark, is making plans for a new parish house for the North Reformed Church, Rev. Jas. I. Vance, pastor, to be erected at Broad st, near Bridge. Club rooms, gymnasium; cost about $15,000.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—The committee in charge of the Y. W. C. A. building at Jamestown, N. Y., Chm. of which is Miss Mortie Broadhead, hope to be able to start work soon on this building, and Architects Gaggin & Gaggin, Syracuse, N. Y., have prepared plans for a 3-sty building, 50x 100 ft. Plans will be ready for contractors early in June.

Hospitals and Asylums.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—No contracts have yet been awarded for the Marine Hospital on Main st, Buffalo. The low bidder, as announced during the week was the Durolithic Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—It is expected that plans for proposed changes to the Bridgeport Hospital will be completed and put out for figures soon. A large amount of steel work will be required. Joseph W. Northrop is the architect.

COBLESKILL, N. Y.—Bids will be received until June 8 by Wm. J. Holmes, of Richmondville, Chmn. Bldg. Com., Bd. Superv., at Cobleskill, for erecting a 2-sty brick and terra cotta building for the almshouse to replace structure destroyed by fire. The cost is not to exceed $28,000. Oren Finch, State and Jay sts, Schenectady, is the architect.

Libraries.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y.—E. L. Tilton, of 32 Broadway, Manhattan, is making preliminary plans for an addition to the Mt. Vernon Library, president of which is W. P. Brinkeroff.

Office and Loft Buildings.

MANHATTAN.—The owners of No. 128 White st have decided to erect an addition of 12 stories, 40x80, and have commissioned Architect B. Hustace Simonson, 234 5th av, to prepare plans, which will be completed in a few days.

MANHATTAN.—Plans are ready for the 6-sty loft building, 50x100 ft., which Hugh Getty, 359 West 26th st, is about to erect on the west side of Hudson st. 26 ft. north of Hubert st, at a cost of $75,000. Henri Fouchaux, 105 Hudson st, architect.

MANHATTAN.—Contract for the department store to be built at the southwest corner of 43d st and 8th av for McPartland & O'Flaherty, 629 8th av, has not been let yet. C. A. Jackson, of 16 East 23d st, is the architect. Estimated cost, $40,000.

MANHATTAN.—No contracts have yet been awarded for the 12-sty loft building, 50x82 ft., which Messrs. Schwartz & Gross, 347 5th av, have planned to be erected at Nos. 15-17 East 16th st, to cost $240,000. Kurzrock & Hein, 55 West 16th st, are the owners. The construction will be fireproof, with Guy B. Waite system of fireproof floor arches, steam heating, electric lights, and all up-to-date improvements.

Power Houses.

CALDWELL, N. J.—The Board of Freeholders at Newark have recommended an appropriation of $10,000 for a new electric plant at the Caldwell Penitentiary.

MANHATTAN.—The United Electric Light & Power Co., No. 1170 Broadway, Manhattan, are to make changes on their sub-power station at 519-521 West 146th st. This will include interior changes and the rearrangement of some machinery. The owners are taking estimates at present on this.

Schools and Colleges.

LORRAINE, N. J.—At a special school meeting the people voted the sum of $1,000 for the purchase of land and grading for a new school at Lorraine, and the sum of $5,750 for building and furnishing the school. Address Principal Riegle, Chestnut street, Lorraine.

TROY, N. Y.—Repairs of an extensive nature will be made to all the city schools during the coming summer vacation. Several architects will be consulted to ascertain the cost of the improvements.—A movement is on foot to erect a new school building in place of School No. 1.

HUNTINGTON, L. I.—Plans have been accepted by the School Board for the new building to be erected at Huntington, L. I., from plans by Adden & Parker, Boston, Mass. Brick and steel, fireproof, to accommodate about 500 pupils. The contract for the construction will be let about July 1.

CLIFTON, N. J.—Contracts for the mason and carpenter work on the Botany School, to be built at Clifton, N. J., have been awarded, the former to Holster & Martin, Passaic, N. J., and the latter to P. S. Van Kirk, Fulton st, Paterson, N. J. Wm. T. Fanning, of Paterson, is the architect. Brick and terra cotta, 2-stys, 30x60 ft.

Theatres.

LE ROY, N. Y.—Wm. Dowdle, of Le Roy, has purchased the Free Methodist Church property on lower Myrtle street, and states that he will form a stock company and erect an opera house on the site.

AUBURN, N. Y.—Plans for a new $100,000 opera house, to be erected in the Osborne House block, are said to have been prepared; seating capacity, 1,500. Such a plan has been in contemplation for some time. It is probable that the new theatre will be leased for a period to the Theatrical Syndicate.

Bids Opened.

Bids were opened by the Board of Education, Monday, May 25: No. 1. For installing electric equipment in P. S. 100, Manhattan. T. Frederick Jackson, Inc., $16,600 (low bid). Other bidders were: L. K. Comstock & Co., Commercial Construction Co., Peet & Powers, Griffin & Co., Reis & O'Donovan, Inc., Cowden & DeYoung, E. J. Duggan, Brown & McClure. No. 2. For sliding doors, repairs at P. S. 10, Bronx. William H. Wright & Son, Inc., $2,728 (low bid). Other bidders were: Charles Cochar, Duncan Stewart, John H. Goetschuis, William H. Quinn, Samuel Weiss, W. M. Fleischman, Neptune B. Smyth, Joseph Balaban, J. P. Hansen. No. 3. For new fireproof main stairs at P. S. 51 and 84, Manhattan. P. S. 51, $3,270; P. S. 84, $3,199, Eagle Iron Works (low bidders).

Contracts Awarded.

MANHATTAN.—Andrew A. Smith, 69 East 91st st, has obtained the contract for improvements to the stores and offices southeast corner of Madison av and 86th st, owned by Duff & Conger, on premises. James R. Turner, 67 West 131st st, architect.

MANHATTAN.—Charles A. Goldman, 6 Liberty pl, has received the contract for interior changes to the 3 and 4-sty front and rear tenements No. 145 West 24th st for the United States Trust Co., 45 Wall st, from plans by W. J. Conway, 400 Union st, Brooklyn.

MANHATTAN.—Contracts for alterations to the Nurses' Home on West Houston st, from plans prepared by Architect J. H. Freedlander, 244 5th av, have been awarded to C. Vanoli, 479 Broadway, for masonry, and to the United Carpenter and Building Co., 84 Carmine st, for carpentry.

GENEVA, N. Y.—General contract for the City Hall to be erected at Geneva, N. Y., has been awarded to Swallow & Howes, 500 5th av, Manhattan. Architects for this are A. C. Bash and Duncan Candler. Plans prepared by them call for a 3-sty building, with extension, which is to be used for an assembly hall.

MANHATTAN.—William Young Co., 550 West 41st st, has received the general contract for remodeling the interior of two 5-sty loft buildings Nos. 19-21 Cliff st for the Wyllys Co., 100 William st, to cost in the neighborhood of $25,000. Messrs. Howells & Stokes, 100 William st, are the architects. The Wyllys Co. is composed of I. N. Phelps Stokes, No. 118 East 22d st, and James W. McCulloch, 100 William st.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Contracts have been let by the trustees of Princeton University for the erection of a biology and geology building on the college grounds. The J. W. Bishop Co., of Rhode Island, has received the contract for the erection of the building at a cost of $325,150, and Gillis & Geoghegan, of 537 West Broadway, Manhattan, will install the heating plant for $33,500. The plans were drawn by Parish & Schroeder, 5 West 31st street, Manhattan. Operations are to be completed September 15, 1909.

Government Work.

Washington, D. C.—Sealed proposals will be received June 4 for the installation of an interior conduit and wiring system for vacuum tube lighting in the basement of the U. S. Court House and Post Office Building, New York. James Knox Taylor, Supervising Architect.

Summer again. Blessed be!

Architect J. C. Cocker has moved his office to the second floor of No. 2010 5th av, near 125th st.

The John A. Roebling's Sons Co., 117 Liberty st, Manhattan, will replace at once at Trenton, N. J., buildings recently burned.

Messrs. Thompson & Frohling, architects, No. 114 East 28th st, Manhattan, announce that they have taken into their firm Mr. Harold F. Saxelbye.

William P. Boardman, builder of the old New York & Harlem Ry., now operated as the Fourth Av. Ry., of Manhattan, died on May 20, at his home in Deshet, South Dak.

New excavations are being started every day, and as the buildings rise the trades will successively join in, till the roundelay of good times is in full and merry swing.

The offices of the American Spiral Pipe Works have been removed from 39 Cortlandt st to larger quarters in the Hudson Terminal Building, No. 30 Church st. Mr. F. B. Sanborn is in charge.

Joseph A. McAnerney, E. E., formerly of the firm of Peet, McAnerney & Powers, electrical contractors, has opened an office in the Hudson Terminal Building, 30 Church st, as an electrical engineer.

At the last meeting of the Brooklyn Engineers' Club, James W. Nelson, manager of the firm of Richard Dudgeon, of New York, read a paper on "Hydraulic Machinery," which was illustrated by the stereopticon.

At a recent annual meeting of the Institution of Civil Engineers of Great Britain, Mr. Wm. Barclay Parsons, of Manhattan, M. Am. Soc. C. E., was awarded a Telford gold medal for a paper contributed to its interests.

The automobile has been a friend to the suburban house site. An uncounted number of city families are looking as much for the spot where they can have a house for the "choo-choo" wagon as a house to themselves.

Commercial paper of the highest grade is absorbed as soon as offered, and discount rates range from 3½ to 4 per cent. for short maturities, and 4 and 4½ per cent. for regular dates. Local institutions have been eager purchasers of six months' bills.

Francis H. Kimball, the architect of the Trinity, U. S. Realty and City Investing buildings, has decided on a country home after long residence in the city. Mr. Kimball is drawing plans for a dwelling he expects to erect for himself on a half-acre plot at Jamaica Estates. A number of our skyscraper architects have houses in the country.

The Board of Water Supply decided yesterday to throw out all the bids received for the construction of the Wallkill siphon and to advertise the work again, or possibly change the plans and do the work itself. The lowest bidder was the English firm of S. Pearson & Sons, which asked $3,304,909; the next was McArthur Brothers, who bid $4,352,163.

Mr. Eli Benedict, architect, who has conducted classes in architectural drawing and in plan-reading and estimating at the night school of the 23d St. Young Men's Christian Association during the past season, will continue the architectural drawing class during the summer, beginning June 1, in his drafting-room at No. 1947 Broadway, corner 65th st, on Monday and Thursday evenings, 7.30 to 9.30 p. m.

Some front brick figures given out by the Sayre & Fisher Co., 261 Broadway, represent prominent buildings recently erected in part with their front brick. The German-American Insurance Building, Maiden lane and Liberty st, 250,000 porcelain white brick; City Investing Building, 650,000 porcelain white brick; Hendrik Hudson apartments, Riverside Drive and 110th st, 650,000 Roman size gray brick; Second National Bank, 5th av and 28th st, standard size gray brick; Academy of Music, Lafayette av and Ashland pl, Brooklyn, 125,000 Norman size white brick, rough finish.

David Cohen, clerk, 1770 Madison av, formerly a builder, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $380,510, contracted mostly in 1899, and no assets. Of the liabilities, $251,306 were secured by mortgages on real estate situated in 113th st, near 1st av; 107th st, corner 2d av; 174th st, corner 3d av, and 3d av, near 171st st, formerly owned by him. Among the secured creditors are Alex. P. Ketchum, $59,000; Title Guarantee & Trust Company, $30,000; estate of Josephine L. Peyton, $43,500; estate of P. Kennedy, $22,500; Samuel Green, $16,500, and Morris Lornst, $6,000. Among the unsecured creditors are the State Bank, Brownsville branch, $25,000; Isaac Block, $20,000, suit for damages for negligence; Samuel D. Tomback, $16,683, and Brady & Hauptman, $11,700.

Metal Forms for Concrete Walls.

A good many inventive minds besides Edison's seem to be working on the problem of how to mold cement buildings cheaply and quickly. William Deane Ham, a Southern man, after spending several years in experimenting has devised and patented a system of metal forms for building a monolithic concrete hollow wall which has been employed in the construction of several buildings.

Mr. Ham's method has been adopted by the Monolithic Hollow Wall Co., of this city. Two separate concrete walls, erected simultaneously, are tied together every fifteen inches both vertically and horizontally with iron or copper ties. These ties are anchored or held in place by nails driven through holes previously punched. After the completion of the wall the ends of the metal ties extending beyond the exterior and interior surfaces are cut off by a thin, sharp chisel to a depth of a half inch or more inside the concrete. This leaves very little defacement and can easily be filled or pointed up. Where a rubbed finish or pneumatic hammer finish is used no mark is visible.

The forms are made of galvanized steel, thus ensuring the necessary smooth surface, and are made in various lengths up to 60 inches and about ⅛ inch in thickness. They are perforated with small holes an inch apart. These holes accomplish several ends. They allow air bubbles to escape while tamping, although too small to allow concrete to pass through them. They are used in tacking on mortar beads and for attaching tile and terra cotta ornamentation to be embedded in the concrete. They can also be used in securing the forms where it is found advisable to lap the edges at any place.

To secure the much admired pebble finish for exterior surfaces or a tile finish for the interior of the building, Mr. Ham uses a quick setting paste for attaching the surface material to the steel sheets (using sheets with large perforations). After the concrete has set sufficiently water is applied through the perforations previously described, with the result that the paste dissolves and the forms can be released.

The forms are held accurately in position during the pouring of the concrete by a saddle spacer. On the removal of the forms the concrete is smooth with the exception of slight points of pin-head size and a light mark at the joints of the forms. These are removed by a light rubbing with carborundum blocks or a steel brush.

SHOWING THE INSURANCE MEN.

THE brick, stone, steel and lumber interests should note that the concrete men are engaged in a vigorous campaign of education through the press and from the platform. They are getting the attention of the investing public for their new methods and becoming strong competitors in the building field.

At the regular meeting of the Insurance Society in the rooms of the Underwriters' Club on Tuesday evening, May 26th, Mr. J. P. H. Perry, of the Turner Construction Company, delivered a stereopticon lecture on "Modern Methods of Concrete Construction." In the course of his address Mr. Perry touched upon the following points:

"The average insurance man has a rather prejudiced idea in regard to concrete. He has been told that it will collapse, that it is liable to crumble under fire, and that as a first-class building proposition it is unreliable. These views render him like the famous members of the 'Show Me Club' of Missouri as far as reinforced concrete is concerned. It is an easy thing, however, to comply with this spirit of the insurance world and show them positively that reinforced concrete as a fireproof material is practically without equal at the present time.

"In fact, all things considered, it is probably the best all-round building material yet devised by man. Such conflagrations as those in Baltimore and San Francisco and numerous smaller fires, such as those in the Huyler Candy Factory in Manhattan, the Pacific Coast Borax Company's Bayonne plant, and that in the works of the Dayton Motor Car Company in Dayton, Ohio, have demonstrated pretty conclusively the ability of reinforced concrete to come through fires of sufficient intensity and prolongation to fuse copper and melt brass without material injury to the building proper.

AN UNUSUAL TEST.

"Particularly interesting along this line is the fire last mentioned, namely, that in Dayton, Ohio. The Dayton Motor Car Company erected an addition to their plant of reinforced concrete throughout, six stories high, and about 100 ft. square. This new building adjoins a 5-sty brick and mill construction factory. And so recent, at the time of the fire, was the completion of the concrete addition that automatic fire doors had not been installed to protect the openings between the old brick building and the new concrete building. The sprinkler system in the concrete addition had not been connected up with the water supply.

"A fire started on the fourth floor of the concrete building in the upholstery and finishing department of the automobile factory. The local fire department upon its arrival at the fire decided at once that the concrete building was thoroughly capable of protecting itself, and consequently they devoted their entire attention to saving the adjoining brick building. The fire in the concrete building raged for several hours and was of sufficient intensity to melt some of the sprinkler pipes and to completely gut the floor. Meanwhile it had spread through the unprotected openings into the brick building, and in spite of the efforts of the local department this first-class brick and mill construction factory was practically ruined. The roof and three floors fell in and the walls were badly cracked.

"This comparison between brick and first-class mill construction and reinforced concrete under disadvantageous circumstances is perhaps as good evidence of the ability of reinforced concrete to protect the owner against serious loss from fire that has yet appeared.

THE ROGERS & PYATT FIRE.

"As to the speed of erection possible with reinforced concrete, no better example can be cited than the Rogers & Pyatt factory, at No. 34 Fletcher st, Manhattan. This is a 10-sty reinforced concrete factory, approximately 70x60 ft. in plan, which was completed, ready for occupancy, in three and one-half months, and whose roof was put on in 47 working days after the foundations were completed. Considering that Fletcher st is a very narrow alley, yet having sufficient traffic to prohibit the storing of any building materials on the sidewalks, this speed of ten stories in forty-seven days certainly permits of favorable comparison with any form of building material.

"The Bush Terminal Buildings at 36th st, South Brooklyn, each of them 600 ft. long by 75 ft. wide, six stories and base-ment in height, also bear evidence as to the quickness with which reinforced concrete may be erected. Model Factory No. 3 was built in sixty-three working days after the pile foundations were completed. Considering that this mammoth structure has approximately seven acres of floor space under one roof, the putting on of the roof in sixty-three days is worthy of note in connection with any statements to the effect that concrete is a slow material to build.

"As to the economy of reinforced concrete, it is only necessary to state that compared to any first-class fireproof method of construction, such, for instance, as structural steel thoroughly protected by fireproof material, reinforced concrete is about 10 to 15 per cent cheaper in cost, and on the whole, probably more satisfactory from a load carrying, vibration reducing and waterproof and fireproof point of view. Compared to brick and mill construction reinforced concrete is but little, if any, more expensive in first cost. There are some instances on record where reinforced concrete has been found to be cheaper than mill construction. In all cases when fixed charges are considered, such as interest on investment, depreciation, insurance on the building, insurance on its contents, improved sanitary conditions of tenants owing to added cleanliness and maximum light, reinforced concrete will show a saving of from 1 to 1½ per cent per annum of the first cost."

SAFER BUILDING URGED.

The twelfth annual meeting of the National Fire Protection Association, which represents all the underwriting organizations in the United States, adopted a minute which, after calling attention to the fire waste and also to the Collinwood school, Boyerstown Theatre and Chelsea and Atlanta conflagrations, places the association on record as believing:

1. That a practical means for the conservation of the natural resources of our country is to be found in the restriction of the destruction of property by fire.
2. That State legislation, where not now existing, should be enacted at an early date, enabling committees to make proper provision for the supervision and control of building construction and installation of adequate fire protection and prevention measures.
3. That communities already authorized to enact building laws should give their earnest attention to such revision of present ordinances and adoption of new measures as experience has demonstrated to be necessary and advisable.
4. That buildings where people congregate, such as schools, colleges, theatres, hospitals, asylums, churches, department stores and the like are peculiarly susceptible to calamitous conditions, and should receive the particular attention of the recognized authorities in the insistance upon superior construction and the introduction of apparatus for the automatic extinguishment of fires.

The meeting was held in the rooms of the Chicago Board of Underwriters. It was said at the meeting that the fire loss in this country amounts to almost a million dollars a day. The warning is intended for the country at large or wherever it is applicable.

George W. Babb, of New York, was re-elected chairman of the executive committee of the National Board of Fire Underwriters at the annual meeting this week at Chicago. Messrs. Charles L. Case, R. Emory Warfield, W. C. Crosby and E. H. A. Correa, of New York, are also members of the executive committee.

LEAVE ROOM FOR COTTAGE HOMES.

The Underwriters evidently believe in asking for more than they would be satisfied with. They consequently arouse more antagonism than is necessary. How the average man feels about the proposition to prohibit frame construction altogether is exhibited by some terse remarks from the World:

"Such a regulation would end the building of small homes in the Bronx, Queens and Richmond. It would bring the development of these three boroughs by actual homemakers to a dead stop and increase the congestion of the already overpopulated sections of the city. It would mean that the brick tenement house is the only fit dwelling for the man on wages or small salary.

"The detached frame house that rents for a moderate sum can be made just as safe as the separate brick dwelling. The notion that protection against fire demands brick and stone walls in suburban districts is ridiculous."

The detached house is the ideal of homeseekers. Take away the possibility of possessing one in any of the boroughs and suburban land values would be very seriously affected.

THE WEEK.

Several pieces of high-class realty changed hands, the 5th av section coming into prominence. The section of the avenue which has been most active recently is above 42d st, on the west side of this thoroughfare. There are a number of reasons for this. Tradesmen have found it difficult to make both ends meet on account of the traffic conditions on the avenue, especially below 42d st. This state of affairs will soon be rectified when the plan to widen the avenue is put into effect.

The northwest corner of 5th av and 47th st was sold by Perry Belmont. He formerly resided in this house, which is on Columbia leasehold and has a frontage of 25.5 and a depth of 100 ft. The property is going to be devoted to business, an art dealer having been the buyer. There are some alterations contemplated which will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. On April 4, 1907, Simon Frankel purchased the southwest corner of 47th st and 5th av, an 11-sty brick and stone office and store building. This property has a frontage of 50.5x100. Mrs. Margaret O. Sage loaned the buyer $1,000,000 for 5 years at 4½ per cent. Mrs. Sage also recently took title to 604 5th av, a 4-sty brick and brownstone dwelling, 30x100, for a consideration stated to be $400,000. It is assessed at $305,000. The estate of Charles T. Cook sold 594 5th av, a 4 and 5-sty building at the southwest corner of 48th st, 25x100. It is reported that the figure paid was something less than $500,000. This parcel was formerly leasehold belonging to Columbia University, but the fee was purchased in 1904 by Mr. Cook, who was president of Tiffany & Co. The dwelling 726 5th av, 25x100, was also disposed of by Charles W. Morse, who acquired title from Harry Payne Whitney some time since. This sale differs somewhat from those that have recently been consummated in this section, inasmuch as the property will not be used for business purposes. When Mr. Whitney bought this property he restricted not only No. 726, but also the adjoining property, No. 728, which was subsequently purchased by Mr. Morse.

A realty company purchased five lots at the southwest corner of 181st st and a new avenue not as yet named, located one block west of Fort Washington av. This property, it is reported, will be improved with a 6-sty apartment. The 5-sty tenement on the northwest corner of Amsterdam av and 149th st, 24.11x100, also changed hands. The present seller is Andrew Davey, who purchased it in March, 1907. It is stated that he has sold it at an advance of about $5,000. Wadsworth av also came in for a deal, when the northwest corner of that avenue and 179th st was disposed of. This is a 5-sty building on a lot 50x100. There has been considerable activity in this section, several houses being in the course of erection.

A large number of sales were reported in the Bronx. Most attention has lately been centered on the sales of vacant property which have been held recently, but notwithstanding this condition a goodly number of deals have been consummated. There seems to be a steady demand for good paying investment property in this zone. Naturally those houses which are more favorably situated come in for the greatest amount of attention. The great majority of the tenants go daily to Manhattan to business, and they consequently desire to have their homes as near an elevated or subway railroad station as possible, even though it entails more outlay in the form of rent.

The American Ice Co. gave a mortgage to the Knickerbocker Trust Co. for $300,000 on the property known as Pier 53, East River, and realty adjoining. Property in Baltimore, Md., and also in Philadelphia, Pa., was included. This mortgage secures some outstanding bonds. No interest rate is mentioned. Martin Ungrich borrowed from Simon Wolf and another, executors of Herman Schiffer, $42,000 on the property known as 2405 and 2407 St. Nicholas av, 50x100, and located 50 ft. north of 179th st. The due date and rate appear only in the bond. Catherine G. and Clarence C. Burke, trustees for Francis P. Burke, loaned $100,000 to the Maximilian Fleischmann Co. on the property known as 70 Manhattan st, on the corner of 126th st. This building is three sided, being 193.9x89.5x177.8 in size. Among the tenants in the building is the Manhattanville Branch of the Produce Exchange Bank and the City of New York, there being a court room on the second floor. The due date and interest rate of the present mortgage appear only in the bond.

THE AUCTION MARKET

There does not seem to be any market for parcels put up at forced sale. In almost every instance the plaintiffs are the purchasers. Though conditions are generally better, there is not any noticeable improvement in this quarter. Money is decidedly easier and a better feeling prevails. On the other hand, the results of the sales of vacant property were exceedingly gratifying. Approximately 2,000 lots have been disposed of this month, and the average price showed a profit to the seller. Prices, however, were not so high that the purchaser has not a reasonable chance of making money on the transaction.

The principal sale was that of 600 lots belonging to the Trask estate. This property faces on Westchester av and Clasons Point road and several intersecting avenues. The sale commenced last Tuesday, on which day 274 lots were disposed of for $80,455.

The crowd which was present when Joseph P. Day opened the sale was not as large as the ones that attended the last two previous sales of Bronx property, nor was it as enthusiastic in its bidding. The highest price of the day was bid for the property on the northeast corner of Westchester and Harod avs. M. J. Dowd was the highest bidder and he paid $2,225 for it. He also bought the three adjoining lots on Westchester av for $1,025 each and the two lots adjoining the corner on Harrod av, paying $385 each for them.

The entire block square bounded by Morrison, Ludlow, Craighill and Story avs, was sold to one investor. There were 50 lots in this parcel and the price paid was $190 a lot. The block square to the south bounded by Lafayette, Morrison, Story and Craighill avs, was also sold to one individual for $190 each. Story av lots on the north side, between Ward and Chanute avs, ranged from $290 to $440 each. The latter price was paid for the corner of Chanute av. Across the avenue, prices varied from $320 to $450. The lots on the south side of Ludlow av, between Metcalf, Harrod and Morrison avs, were knocked down from $260 to $610. Inside lots on Metcalf av, near the junction of Clasons Point road, brought $425 and $620, respectively.

On the second day 293 lots were disposed of for $121,906. This amount added to the results of the first session brings the total figure up to $202,415. Lots on Westchester av, between Harrod and Metcalf avs, which were not disposed of at the first day's sale, were knocked down for $1,150 to $2,200, the latter being the price paid for the corner lot. The balance of the entire square block brought $250 each. The triangular parcel facing on Metcalf and Gleason avs, comprising 13 lots of irregular shape, were disposed of for the uniform price of $300 each. Westchester av, between Eteley and Metcalf avs, brought $800 each, except the corner of Eteley av, which was sold for $1,100. On the block to the east on Westchester av prices varied from $600 to $900 per lot.

At the stand of Joseph P. Day on Monday the property, 217 East 122d st, a 4-sty tenement, 25x100.11, located 205 ft. east of 3d av, was sold to Charles Rosenthal for $16,300. The amount due on the judgment was $4,243.37; taxes and other charges amounting to $252.44. There was a prior mortgage of $14,000 on the premises. On Wednesday, at the same stand, there was a sale of a plot on the east side of Tiebout av, 130.2x144xirregular, about 70 ft. south of Clark st. This parcel was knocked down to C. A. Stein for $9,990.

WHO'S WHO IN REAL ESTATE—IX.

Hon. Lawson Purdy has devoted many years of his life to the study of taxation, has written several valuable articles and delivered a number of speeches on this subject. Mr. Purdy graduated from Trinity College in 1884. He was elected president of the New York Bank Note Company in 1891 and served in that capacity until 1896, when he became the Secretary of the New York Tax Reform Association.

HON. LAWSON PURDY.

For ten years he held this office, and on Nov. 10, 1906, he was appointed President of the Department of Taxes and Assessments. Besides holding these offices, Mr. Purdy was appointed by the Mayor of New York, in 1905, as Secretary of the Advisory Commission on Taxation and Finance. He was also a member of the Commission appointed by the Governor in 1906, to inquire into the subject of Assessment and Taxation for State and local purposes.

In 1902 Mr. Purdy was invited by several business organizations of Minneapolis to go to that city and straighten out some tax difficulties they were encountering. He suggested a simple constitutional amendment, but the Legislature submitted a different one to the people, which was defeated. Subsequently an amendment as advised by Mr. Purdy was voted on. It was supposed to have been carried, but owing to a technicality the courts invalidated it. The Legislature has again submitted an amendment on the same lines.

In 1904 Mr. Purdy had introduced by Assemblyman Bostwick a bill calling for a mortgage recording tax of one-half of one per cent. This bill was approximately the same as the one now in force. The year following he strongly opposed the passing of the annual mortgage tax bill, which passed, only to be repealed the next year, when the present mortgage recording tax law went into effect.

At the National Tax Conference in Columbus, O., last November Mr. Purdy took an active part and was appointed Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions. He was also vice-president of the National Tax Association. He was resonsible for the separate assessment of real estate passed in 1903.

When in Minneapolis last year the Legislature adjourned at the request of Gov. Johnson and invited Mr. Purdy to address it and state his opinions on taxation. They followed his suggestion by creating a State Tax Commission and adopting a mortgage recording tax similar to New York State.

Mr. Purdy is a member of the National Municipal League, American Economic Association, League of American Municipalities and the New York Alumni of Trinity College. He is also a member of the City Club.

ANNUAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS.

The annual meeting of stockholders of the City and Suburban Homes Company was held at the office of the company, 281 4th av, Manhattan, on May 25th, 1908, at three o'clock. E. R. L. Gould, president of the company, occupied the chair.

The following directors, whose terms had expired, viz., Messrs. Alfred T. White, Charles Stewart Smith, Frederick G. Bourne, Joseph S. Auerbach and John D. Crimmins, were unanimously re-elected for a period of three years.

The report submitted to the meeting of stockholders on Monday by President Gould was his twelfth annual report. In it he called attention to the fact that the company had not only provided model tenement accommodations in Manhattan for about 2,000 families, representing an investment of $4,314,151.85, and 236 houses at Homewood, Brooklyn, the suburban estate, representing an investment of $733,435.14, but that it had exercised a helpful influence in fixing higher standards and in promoting improved tenement legislation. The company is also actively and profitably engaged in the management of tenement properties owned by other parties.

The officers and directors are as follows: President, E. R. L. Gould; vice-president, Charles Stewart Smith; chairman board of directors, R. Fulton Cutting; treasurer, Isaac N. Seligman, and secretary, George W. R. Fallon; Joseph S. Auerbach, Frederick G. Bourne, John D. Crimmins, W. Bayard Cutting, Robert W. de Forest, Adrian Iselin, Jr., D. O. Mills, Alfred T. White and George W. Young.

—Last Saturday 300 lots at Forest Park North, Queens, were sold at auction. The total amount received aggregated $61,700. Frederick F. Eisemann, of this city, was the largest purchaser.

THE USE OF THE LAND OWNER.

By the Author of "Three Acres and Liberty."

I HAVE a large experience with real estate owners both as clients and in co-operating with them, having considerable real estate myself, and I must say we are a difficult class to deal with. I do not think most of us think. Dan Beard says, "It hurts the head to think—try it and see." But few people will try it, because most people cannot think. But we do seem to feel, what is quite true, that if we only sit still and do nothing, every improvement will come our way. It is manifest, when one comes to think of it, that every improvement in the condition of the earth, mechanical, educational, political, social, or even religious, must go first and mainly to the benefit of the owners of the earth; but we must take care that our position as owners is not assailed. In matters of political and social economy, the American people are first-class imitators in practice, however original we may be in ideas; and there are signs, from Germany especially, but from other countries as well, that the people are becoming dissatisfied with the ownership of the earth by any number of persons less than all the people.

BOLTON HALL.

Nothing is more striking than the difference between a German city and an American city in cleanliness, paving, parks, amusements and public enterprises, many of which are socialistic in character.

Now the remarkable thing is that the German cities have money to spend on such things, because they have become large land owners and are taking more and more the value of privately owned land in taxes. There can be no objection on the part of land owners to the socialistic scheme of the State buying up lands. The revenue from those lands goes to decrease the amount of taxes that have to be collected from private owners and the land withdrawn from private use increases the scarcity of that commodity land, which we have to sell. Further, the improvements that are made upon public lands increase the value of the holdings of private individuals. But the taxation of the valuation of land is another story. The power to tax is the power to destroy, and, if we would avoid that destruction, it behooves us land owners that in our capacity as monopolists, we give an efficient service for what we get.

Personally, I have long felt dissatisfied with the ownership of tenement houses, and even with business properties, on the ground that, as "F. W. B." said in the Record and Guide of October 12, "the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker will have to pay rent up to the breaking point, even though they are compelled to reduce wages to do so. Every enterprise, down to the most minute form, pays tribute to real estate, and the greater the prosperity the bigger the channel required to accommodate the flow of rents."

Now it is all very well to say that among ourselves; but, stupid and slow as the public is, when the dear public learns it, the public will confiscate our property. The great estates are trying to fence against this by making long leases and requiring the tenants to pay taxes and assessments. Should the taxes be greatly increased, that will undoubtedly give the buildings to the land owners; but those buildings will be worth very little in twenty years and the properties will return to the hands of those big estates, increased in value to be sure, but with a disproportionately increased tax burden.

There is one way that it appears to me the land speculator can be of service to the community, in addition to the good he does by distributing population and keeping down the birth rate. Rents in New York are preposterous, and although land is to be had at comparatively moderate prices in the new districts made accessible by improved communication, those districts are made unavailable by the impossibility of getting building loans or even of getting mortgages on completed buildings. Large tracts of country would be filled to-day with small homes, small factories, small amusement places, and would aid in making our tenement dwellers to some extent a rural people, were it not that it is always expensive and generally impossible to get loans in order to build those much needed improvements. If those who are interested in rural settlements, in suburban lands, in intensive farming, in fresh air work and in the housing of the poor could get together and form an association to make such loans upon liberal terms, it would be to secure a new lease of life to the present system.

If we cannot do this, it will be no long time before the State will undertake it for itself, and when the State once gets experimenting upon the question of the values that follow improvements there will be an end of our present land system.

I am not an alarmist, but I have my eyes open to the menace to privilege. The following from the New Orleans Picayune is a fair sample of the same perception by the conservative press: "A proposition which is going to have much to do with the public and private affairs of this great country, at probably no distant date, is the distribution of wealth"—we "cannot fail to see in the serious governmental attacks on great industrial, commercial and capitalistic corporations and combinations; and in the Federal and State laws regulating railroads, and in the expressed determination of political parties to tax and control great private fortunes, a steady and powerful movement towards the seizure by the Government of all production and property, to administer it for the general use."

Does anyone believe that one of the first objects of such an attack will not be the ownership of land values created by the community and that the weapon will not be taxation?

TAX SALE GIVES GOOD TITLE.

The new tax law making it easier for the city to collect taxes has been signed by the Governor. The advantage of the law to property owners is an extension of time in which to pay their arrear taxes without danger of losing their property.

Tax Commissioner Lawson Purdy, in speaking of the law, said: "The present method of collecting taxes on real estate in arrear is by sale of a lease for the shortest term for which the bidder will advance the arrears due the city. This method is unsatisfactory, because the title is generally regarded as poor which any lessee obtains, and because, if the title were good, the owner would lose the property for perhaps 1,000 years without any consideration whatever.

"The new law provides for the sale by the city of its lien for taxes to the person who bids the lowest rate of interest, for which he will advance the amount due and hold the lien for three years. If the lien is not paid at maturity, or if the taxpayer fails to pay interest on the amount due every six months, or fails to pay subsequently accruing taxes within six months, the holder may foreclose his lien in the Supreme Court in the same manner as though it were a first mortgage.

"If the property is sold in foreclosure, the surplus after paying the lien and costs is paid to the owners of the property. As the city's lien is prior to all other incumbrances of every sort, the title given by a referee in foreclosure will be the best title known to the law."

Walter Lindner, of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co. said: "Under this law, which is known as Chapter 447 of the Laws of 1908, taxes are now payable on the first Monday in October and may be paid without any deduction or any penalty during the month of October.

"There is now no inducement to pay taxes on the first day they are payable. On the contrary, there is an inducement to leave all payment till the very last of October. All taxes not paid before the first day of November begin to draw interest at the rate of 7 per cent. from the first Monday of October."

AUTOMOBILE INSPECTION TRIPS.

The series of automobile inspection trips being conducted under the auspices of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange had their beginning on May 23d. The first trip was to Paterson, N. J., and vicinity, and the return trip was made along the picturesque Passaic River.

The second trip was to Plainfield and occurred on May 26th. The Plainfield Board of Trade entertained the guests, who were cordially received by Mayor Chas. J. Fisk, of Plainfield, and Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield.

The third trip will be to Ridgewood and also covers other parts of Bergen County. Philip I. Hoyer and Walter W. Wilsey are the local committee in charge of the trip. Thomas A. Ryer, Chas. Singer, Jr., and Frank Stevens are preparing trip four from Jersey City through Hudson County. The dates of these two latter trips will be announced shortly.

SURPLUS OF DWELLINGS.

C. W. Moore, of Renton-Moore Co., in speaking of the renting condition on Washington Heights, said: "The demand for private dwellings is not as brisk as last year. While there was hardly a vacancy then, there are a number now, and they do not become occupied as rapidly as I would wish. There are a number of houses with frontages ranging from 16.8 to 20 ft. that can be had for $1,200 a year. This is a fair average price for a dwelling in this neighborhood. There are some that command more money, and a few that can be had cheaper, but the latter are few and far between. The demand for apartments is keeping up pretty well. We have a number of clients who intend purchasing dwellings, but it is difficult to get them to make a reasonable offer. Prices are well maintained on the Heights, and I do not look for any considerable concessions on the part of owners."

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

PEARL ST.—Ottinger & Bro., of 31 Nassau st, sold 278 Pearl st, a 5-sty business building, 19.10x90.8. Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown & Co. were the brokers. This building is 70 ft. deep. It is located 80.8 ft. south of Beekman st. There is an elevated station on Fulton st, one block to the south.

17TH ST.—Jacob Brown sold 34 West 17th st, a 10-sty store and loft building, 28.6x92. The buyer gives Brooklyn property in part payment. This property was purchased from Abraham Oremly on Jan. 28, 1908, subject to a first mortgage of $120,000 and a second of $26,000. There is a 12-sty fireproof mercantile building, 93.6x82 x92, on the east, and directly opposite there is another fireproof structure 11 stories in height, 75x184, with a frontage on 18th st. Bergmann & Turkel, cloak manufacturers, are the purchasers.

54TH ST.—The Stephens estate sold 28 East 54th st, a 4-sty and basement stone front dwelling, 20x100.5. The buyer is understood to be Stephen Peabody, who owns the adjoining house, 30 East 54th st, at the southwest cor of Madison av.

To Alter Avenue Corner.

5TH AV.—William A. White & Sons sold for Perry Belmont his former residence at the northwest cor of 5th av and 47th st, known as 580 5th av. The building is a 5-sty dwelling, 25.5x100. It is a Columbia College leasehold, and the present ground lease has about 14 years to run, with a privilege of renewal. The new owners are Arthur Tooth & Sons, art dealers, who now occupy space in the Gattle Building, 5th av near 38th st. They will move into their new building as soon as some alterations are completed, which will cost approximately $50,000.

5TH AV.—The estate of Chas. T. Cook sold 594 5th av, a 4 and 5-sty brownstone and brk structure, 25x100, at the southwest cor of 48th st. This property was reported sold last September to the Wampage Realty Co., but the sale was never consummated. The price reported at that time was $500,000, but it is said that a lower price was paid for it by the present purchaser. This property was formerly owned by Columbia University. Mr. Cook held a long lease, which expired in 1904. He purchased the fee from the University at the price named by them.

Important 5th Avenue Purchase.

5TH AV.—Charles W. Morse sold 726 5th av, a 5-sty dwelling, 25 x100. Mr. Morse lives in 728 adjoining, and to the north of 728 is the Whitney mansion, at the southwest cor of 57th st. Harry Payne Whitney purchased 726 and 728 in 1905, taking title to the former in the name of the Chelsea Realty Co., a holding company of the Title Ins. Co. of New York. After placing restrictions on both these houses, because business had made threats of invading the block, Mr. Whitney resold 728 to Mr. Morse, who took title to the property and moved into it. It was reported that Mr. Morse also purchased 726, though he allowed title to remain in the holding company. One of the important features of this sale is that it does not, like most others, involve the intrusion of business. The block front on the east side of the avenue is owned by the Astor and Huntington estates.

NORTH OF 59TH STREET.

69TH ST.—Albert B. Ashforth sold to a client for the Maloney estate the three 5-sty apartment houses 163, 165 and 167 East 69th st, 50x100. The property will be improved by the new owner.

Activity in 87th Street.

88TH ST.—Leroy Coventry, in conjunction with John P. Kirwan, sold 169 West 88th st, a 3-sty brownstone dwelling, 16.8x100.

Takes Quick Profit.

107TH ST.—Edgar T. Kingsley sold for the Freehold Construction Co., Nevins & Perelman, 120 East 107th st, a 3-sty brk dwelling, 16.8x100.11, to Annie Flynn. Title will be taken on or before June 20. The sellers acquired one-half interest on July 16, 1907, from Abraham Nevins, subject to a mortgage of $5,000. This property was purchased by the Freehold Co. at auction last week. The knockdown price was $5,800. The amount due was $5,595.52; taxes and other charges amounting to about $120.24.

116TH ST.—Shaw & Co. sold for Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson 131 West 116th st, a 5-sty double flat with stores, 25x87x100, to a client for investment. The present seller acquired the title of this property from Geo. A. Raftery June 15, 1906, subject to a mortgage of $37,000. It was assessed at $29,000.

121ST ST.—The Nevelson-Goldberg Realty Co. sold for a client 224 West 121st st, a 5-sty single flat, 18x100.

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS.

Flats Sold on the Heights.

153D ST.—Robert A. White and Morris W. Halpin sold for John J. Martin to Loretta A. Harrison 536 and 538 West 153d st, two 5-sty triple flats, 25x100 each. The cemetery belonging to Trinity Corporation is across the street, assuring permanent light.

Marble Hill Deal.

Profit Realized on Corner.

AMSTERDAM AV.—Andrew Davey, the grocer, sold the northwest cor of Amsterdam av and 149th st, a 5-sty tenement with store, 24.11x100. There are two families on a floor. The building has a depth of 95 ft. The gross rents are about $5,400. The price received is reported to be in the neighborhood of $65,000. Mr. Davey purchased this property from Thomas Gibney on March 22, 1907, subject to a mortgage of $36,000. It is stated that the selling price shows him a profit of about $5,000. The Loth Building, the largest mercantile structure on the Heights, is one block to the north on the same side of the avenue. The block on 149th st, between Amsterdam av and Broadway, is almost exclusively devoted to private residences.

AMSTERDAM AV.—J. L. Levine, in conjunction with the Columbian Board of Brokers, sold for Charles Wynne to a client 2240 and 2242 Amsterdam av, a 5-sty flat with stores, 48x84, adjoining the southwest cor of 172d st, and directly opposite High Bridge Park.

EDGECOMBE AV.—The Adamant Realty Co. sold the block front on the west side of Edgecombe av, from 159th to 160th st, 205.2x 150.5x200x104.6, to A. J. Schwarzler, who gave in part payment two houses on Washington av in the Bronx.

ST. NICHOLAS AV.—Eugene S. Van Riper, associated with Gibbs & Kirby, sold for Mrs. Emily L. Landon 943 St. Nicholas av, a 5-sty flat, 31x92x30x82. Mrs. Landon purchased this property last March from the Toch Realty Co., subject to a mortgage of $26,750. The gross rents are about $4,000.

WADSWORTH AV.—Harry White sold for Max Marx the northwest cor of Wadsworth av and 179th st, a 5-sty apartment house, 50x100. There is a building in the course of construction on the same side of this avenue, 25 ft. north of the structure just sold. On the opposite side of the avenue are three 5-sty apartments, with frontages of 40 and 45 ft. respectively. The house just sold is 90 ft. in depth.

BRONX.

FAILE ST.—The American Real Estate Co. sold another one of its 2-family houses, 1033 Faile st, to John Hock, making 13 sold since February.

OAKLAND PL.—Hertz & Co. sold the 5-sty flat at the northwest cor of Oakland pl and Clinton av for Hyman Ringler.

VICTOR ST.—Schano & Co. sold 50x100 on the west side of Victor st, 395 ft. west of Morris Park av. Two 2-family houses will be erected on the property.

BONDS SECURED BY MORTGAGES.

The following letter, written by Charles A. Gerlach, president of the Gerlach Realty Operating Co., to David A. Clarkson, president of the New York Real Estate Board of Brokers, draws attention to a situation well worthy of notice.

Mr. Gerlach has been identified with Manhattan realty for many years and is thoroughly conversant with its many sides. The compliment he bestows on Mr. Clarkson is well merited, and no more competent man could have been selected to father a project of such importance.

Mr. Clarkson, backed by the Board of Brokers, has been untiring in his efforts to better real estate conditions in New York, and has the satisfaction of knowing that his efforts have not been futile.

Mr. David A. Clarkson:

My Very Dear Sir—Confirming my telephone conversation of to-day, congratulating you on the fact that the Governor has signed the Land Title Registration Bill, I feel that you and your committee deserve the congratulations of every property owner in the State of New York. You have certainly accomplished great things with great odds against you, and the Real Estate Board of Brokers is fortunate in having you for president and indebted to you and your able committee who assisted you in this matter. I know well what you had to contend with with the minority committee, and the great influence of capital that was brought to bear to prevent the passage of this bill.

I wrote to the Governor as you requested, saying that I hoped he would approve the report of your committee and sign the bill, and received a very courteous reply from his secretary.

If you and a committee that you would appoint from the Board of Brokers would map out a plan for the sale of bonds secured by mortgages on real estate, and by consulting with the bond and security committees of the various great exchanges, such as the Stock, Produce, Cotton, Maritime and other great financial bodies, you would readily, I know, devise the proper form that would be recognized on the curb and in the Stock Exchange and also Real Estate Exchange. I know this can be made a success, as I have done it in my own real estate operations in a private way.

I know that when you were agitating the Mortgage Tax Bill, I heard figures given that there were over seven hundred million dollars of mortgaged real estate on Manhattan Island. A large portion of that is first mortgages, and with these mortgages filed with the various trust companies, and bonds issued and distributed against them, the bonds would be very desirable and salable. You would be opposed in this, no doubt, by the very same companies who opposed the Torrens Bill, as they are selling these mortgages under their guarantee; but with this present law in existence, giving the court record of title and a mortgage filed, the bonds issued against them would assist and enable real estate holders to divide up their mortgages.

I had a case this morning of a very wealthy client who called on me, asking my advice on a piece of property on which they were considering a loan of $700,000. They regarded the property as safe for the loan and had the money to make the loan, but will probably refuse it on the ground that they don't like to put so much money in one place. Now, if this mortgage was filed and bonds issued against it, the same party would quickly take $300,000 or $400,000 of the bonds, and others would take the balance.

In conversation with Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan one time, I suggested this same proposition to him, and told him that I could get sixty million dollars worth of good first mortgages from four per cent. to five per cent., that control equities of nearly double the amount of the mortgages, if I could place the mortgages for ten years and issue bonds against them. His reply was that he was not a real estate man; but by his action, he impressed me that he thought well of the idea.

As you can see, these mortgages would all be classed as to their value by competent appraisers of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, and their value and sale on the exchanges would be regulated and classed by their security. Thus in a panic, they would become a large circulating medium of moneyed exchange, the same as other good stocks and bonds; while the owner of a mortgage as it now stands would be obliged to pledge his mortgage for some small loan, and if it was filed with the trust company and bonds issued against it, he would only have to pledge the bonds to meet the requirements of his loan, leaving the balance of his securities unpledged.

I have talked to bankers and presidents of banks for years, and I have not found one yet who has not agreed that such a security would be well regarded by the banks as collaterial for loan or purchase.

Very sincerly yours,
CHARLES A. GERLACH.

WILL CONTINUE SUBWAY FIGHT.

Allan Robinson, president of the Allied Real Estate Interests, in speaking of the veto by the Governor of the Rapid Transit bill, said: "We have not given up the fight to get better transit facilities for the city. We are going to keep at it until something is accomplished. This organization feels and has felt all along that the present system is inadequate, that more lines are needed, and we are going to do our utmost to make this an accomplished fact. The next move of importance that the Allied Interests is going to take up will be the New York City budget. We have been devoting much time to this matter for some time past. I do not care to be more specific at this time, but I will say that we are going into the matter thoroughly."

MORTGAGE CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

Walter Lindner, solicitor of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co. said: "There has been a decided improvement in realty conditions shown lately. We are doing more and more business each day. Money is easier and we are in a far better position to loan on bond and mortgage. I do not look for any great building activity in the near future, but I think this branch of the market will be noticeably improved by fall. At the present time we are considering building loans. A few months ago we would not entertain any propositions of this kind.

RELIC OF OLD NEW YORK.—On Trinity pl, a few feet north of Thames st, is an old wooden pump that was in use long before the present water system was installed. It was the custom to have water delivered to the various houses and a charge of one cent a bucket was the usual price charged. Of course this pump has been disconnected from the water main long since. It would be interesting to hear some of the stories repeated that must have been related around this old landmark.

Myron H. Oppenheim purchased at auction last Monday "Shadow Lawn," the home of the late John A. McCall, on Norwood av, Long Branch, N. J. This place cost the late president of the New York Life Insurance, it is said, more than $750,000, and was sold for $105,000 above the mortgage of $100,000 held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Mr. Oppenheim is considering turning the property into a bungalow colony, using the main building as a casino. Mr. Abraham White, the former owner, did not bid at the sale.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

J. Scott has formed a partnership with Charles E. Moore under the firm name of J. Scott & Co.

The Freehold Construction Co., Nevins & Perelman, removed to the Metropolitan Building, No. 1 Madison av.

Wood, Harmon & Co. report that the sales on last Sunday at South Marlborough exceeded 160 lots. About 200 lots were sold last week, the total aggregating nearly $150,000.

Daniel Meenan, of the Gore Engineering and Contracting Co., is the lessee of the 11-sty loft and store building recently leased by Matthias Rock. The lease is for 21 years at an aggregate rental of about $600,000.

The Tarrytown Building Co. borrowed from the Surety Realty Co. $25,000 on the property 131 and 133 West 28th st. This property was recently transferred by Jefferson M. Levy. The loan was in the form of a building loan.

Frank E. Mainhart, real estate broker and appraiser, has removed to large and commodious offices in the Hamilton Bank Building. Mr. Mainhart has had many years' experience as an appraiser and has been called as such by the city in numerous condemnation proceedings.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association held a meeting in their rooms at 147 East 125th st on Thursday evening last. The report of the committee on the new Midway Park, now being built at 110th st and 5th av, was read.

Max Badt was appointed receiver of rents of the premises on the southwest corner of Park av and 99th st, 100x100.11, two 6-sty flats. This is the result of a suit brought by the Corn Exchange Bank against Philip Leizerkowitz and others to foreclose a mortgage of $44,000.

Max Badt was appointed receiver of the rents of 81 to 88 Wooster st and 131 and 136 Spring st by Justice Greenbaum, in the Supreme Court, pending a suit brought by the Germania Life Insurance Co. against Pauline Gomprecht and others to foreclose a mortgage of $240,000.

The total amount received for the 700 lots put up at auction last week by Joseph P. Day, located at Lohbauer Park, Bronx, was about $390,000. Charles V. Halley, president of the syndicate, said he was well satisfied with the result of the sale. This grand total gives a substantial profit to the sellers. While good prices were obtained, yet the sellers state that they think the purchasers will make money on their investment.

ANOTHER OAKDALE SALE.

Bryan L. Kennelly will sell 82 plots of land, 75x150 feet, on West Shore road, Idle Hour road, Bellevue road and on Great South Bay adjoining "Idle Hour" the home of W. K. Vanderbilt, on June 10, at 11 o'clock in the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey st.

The increasing value of residential sites along the south shore of Long Island is well understood—the demand for them is constantly increasing, and at points where water front can be secured within a short distance of a station the value is rising all the more rapidly. In fact it is a difficult matter to secure a site for a residence on the water within easy reach of Manhattan.

What will happen to Oakdale with the completion of the Long Island Motor Parkway to Lake Ronkonkoma nobody can clearly see. But it is plain enough that with a short six-mile run in a straight line south from the lake to the waters of Great South Bay will give to Oakdale a very great advantage over most other suburban centres.

Model motor tests on the bay as well as road tests will be made to an extent not heretofore thought of: A national model motor boat club is being organized, and when accomplished will make Oakdale one of the important "auto-motor" sporting centres of America.

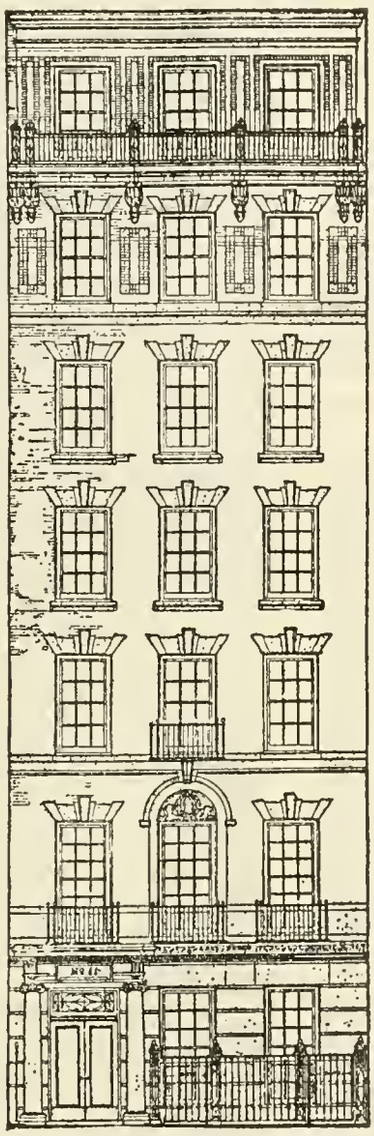
The property is carefully restricted and only ten minutes from Oakdale station. Sixty per cent of the purchase price is to be left on mortgage for three years at four per cent.

INADEQUATE TRAIN SERVICE.

A hearing was held by the Public Service Commission on Monday evening with respect to the train service on the New York Central lines within the commuting belt. It was maintained by taxpayers in the Bronx that the transportation company is running trains on the Harlem Division on an unsatisfactory schedule, and that many of the trains have been making slower time than those running in the subway. The testimony of several property owners brought out the fact that a number of desirable dwellings in the upper Bronx have been vacated because of the inadequate service on the division mentioned. Superintendent Bardo, of the Grand Central Station, affirmed at the hearing that from 506 to 515 trains, north and south, are handled daily at the 42d st depot, and that the number now running is just about the limit. The witness admitted, however, that as a matter of physical operation other trains could be added to the schedule.

COMING TRUE.

The recent purchase for investment of the 4-sty commercial building at 198 Montague st for a figure approaching $225,000 should be particularly pleasing to those interested in lower Brooklyn business property, since it bears out in part the prediction recently made by a leading operator that a great change is working its influence in real estate in that locality which must inevitably result in a marked increase in the demand for property in the vicinity of Court sq, with a corresponding enhancement in lot values. This prophecy is indeed coming true, and the sale of the Montague st building need not be taken as the only indication of its fulfillment, for other and equally important dealings in that neighborhood will shortly be announced.



A MIXTURE FOR DAMP WALLS.—Damp cellar walls have been known to block many a sale. Where there is dampness there is invariably decay, and where there is decay there is disease. You cannot expect to keep your building fully tenanted if its cellar walls are dripping from moisture, and the sharp buyer of to-day is quick to note such a serious defect in construction. Remove the trouble at once, or, if too expensive, at least disguise its presence by the application of some effective dampproofing preparation. A good mixture may be made of 93 parts of powdered brick and 7 parts litharge by weight. Pulverize both separately, then mix with enough linseed oil to form a paste. When applied to the walls it will harden rapidly.

AN INTERESTING ALTERATION.

Much consideration has lately been given to remodeling dwellings in the middle districts of Manhattan with the view of increasing their earning capacity to a point that will not fail to render them a preferred investment in the realty field. In the attempts to meet the situation numerous experiments have been tried with more or less success.

Among the recent alterations in that direction none, perhaps, is attracting more attention than a project now being undertaken by the New Amsterdam Leasing Co. at 11 East 48th st. The dwelling at that number is rapidly being altered into a building for the exclusive use of physicians and surgeons and will be equipped with every modern convenience.

Those behind the scheme are confident of the success of the undertaking, particularly since it is known that among the higher ranks of physicians the combination of office and home in one house is growing more and more distasteful.

PHYSICIANS' BUILDING.
11 East 48th Street. Israels & Harder, Architects.

In striving to meet the exacting requirements in a building of the character mentioned, the promoter, through its architects, Messrs. Israels & Harder, planned one with a pleasing facade resembling in appearance an American basement dwelling. In the remodeling special attention will be given so that each of the suites may enjoy ample light, air and sunshine. To this end only three suites are allotted to each floor, each consisting of a reception room, consultation or operating room and private toilet.

One of the distinctive features of the physicians' building will lie in the fact that each office will be finished in such a manner that a hose may be turned upon any part of it without damageable effect. The floors will be made of a mineral composition now in use in foreign hospitals, and the side walls and ceilings are to be covered with Sanitas.

Although the building will not be completed before midsummer, many of the offices have been leased, and it is believed by those competent to judge that the operation will prove the most successful of its kind yet attempted on Manhattan Island.

The professional standing of all applicants for offices are rigidly investigated by S. Osgood Pell & Co., of 537 5th av, who have the management of the property.

In the meantime it will be interesting to note the effect of the undertaking on adjacent property values.

NEW BRONX SUBWAY STATIONS.

Locations for the Bronx stations on the new Lexington av subway have been tentatively agreed upon by the Public Service Commission. As the matter stands the new subway is to have an east and west branch. The easterly section will likely be elevated, while the westerly section will run underground. The locations selected are as follows: 138th st and 3d av, 138th st and Brook av, 138th st and Southern boulevard, 149th st and Southern boulevard, Longwood av and Southern boulevard, junction of Westchester av and Southern boulevard, Clason Point road and Westchester av, White Plains road and Westchester av, Castle Hill av and Westchester av, Main st and Westchester av, Middletown road or Pelham road and Westchester av and Pelham Bay Park.

Stations for the west branch in the borough mentioned are proposed at 138th and 149th sts and Mott av, 161st and 165th sts and Gerard av, the junction of Gerard and Jerome avs and at the following crossing Jerome av: Belmont, 176th st, Burnside, 183d st, Fordham road, Kingsbridge road, 200th st, Mosholu parkway and Woodlawn road.

So far as it is learned express stations will likely be built at 149th st, Jerome and Gerard avs and 183d st.

Speculators are already at work securing options on property in the vicinity of the important stations selected, and marked changes in values are regarded certain.

BUILDING LOAN CONTROVERSY.

At this season of the year when many property owners in the outskirts of New York are improving their recently acquired holdings with frame dwellings, the manner of making instalment payments under contracts for building should receive more than ordinary attention. Misunderstandings between owners and contractors in this respect are more frequent than supposed. One of the most productive sources of trouble in the direction indicated is attributable to the meaning of the word "Enclosed" as used in a building contract.

In an action brought by a construction company against a realty company in Flushing to recover an instalment of money due under a building contract, the instrument provided that, when the building "was enclosed," the contractor was entitled to a payment of 18 per cent. of the entire cost of the building. The action was defended upon the ground that the building was not enclosed. The testimony in the case was undisputed that, while the sheathing was on the sides of the house, the roof of the structure was not covered with shingles, but was covered with nothing more than small narrow shingle boards set about four inches apart to receive the shingles, and that consequently the rain or snow or matter of any kind could come through.

It was held that the building was not enclosed within the meaning of the contract, and that, therefore, the instalment claimed due could not be recovered.

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION.

All steam and hot water boilers suffer from the effects of boiler scale, and in order to insure their efficiency great care should be constantly exercised in guarding against the accumulation of mineral deposits which eventually coat the inner surface of a boiler, rendering it unfit for service.

In this connection, Arthur D. Little, a chemist of Boston, in rendering a report on the subject to a client argues that scale formation is detrimental in several ways. It is a non-conductor of heat and the fires must therefore be driven harder to accomplish the same results. The water, he affirms, becomes separated from the boiler plates and these latter become overheatd and are gradually burned out. The tubes and feed pipes of the boiler become more or less clogged, and consequently become less efficient. Some of the scale forming ingredients, he states, especially magnesium chloride, also exert a corrosive action upon the iron.

Touching on the usage of boiler cleaning materials the authority spoken of says that only four are worthy of mention. They are soda ash, or sodium carbonate, caustic soda, tannin and kerosene.

"Soda ash," he adds, "is an alkali, and will neutralize any acid in the water, and also precipitate salts of lime magnesia, iron and alumina, in the form of soft sludge which can be easily removed when the boiler is cleaned. Caustic soda is also an alkali and neutralizes acids and aids in the precipitation of the various salts. Kerosene is used in connection with the above to prevent foaming or priming. Tannin is also used to prevent foaming or priming, and will precipitate certain mineral matters, although it is not so efficient in this respect as soda ash or caustic soda."

Property owners who have experienced trouble with scale in their boilers will do well to make use of the above information.

—Charles C. Worthington has brought suit in the Supreme Court against the J. C. Lyons Building & Operating Co. and others to foreclose a mortgage of $245,000 on the property on the northeast corner of 5th av and 99th st, 100.9x175. The mortgage was dated July 1, 1902.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the

NEW COUNTY BUILDING COMMITTEE of the County of Hudson, N. J., at its office, 573 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1908,

at three o'clock in the afternoon, for the furnishing of all the material and the performance of all the work included in the specifications for the interior work of the New Court House, and the Power House building and equipment, which specifications were adopted May 4, 1908.

Proposals must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the New County Building Committee. The envelope must also contain the name and address of the person offering the proposal. Proposals must be handed to the Clerk of the Committee in open meeting at the time and place above mentioned, and will be opened and read in open meeting at that time.

Bidders must hand to the County Collector, or to the Clerk of the Committee, at or before the time above mentioned, a certified check upon a National Bank or Trust Company doing business in Hudson County, in an amount not less than ten per cent. of the amount of the bid.

Plans and specifications may be seen and inspected at the office of the Committee, 573 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, or at the office of the Architect, Mr. Hugh Roberts, 1 Exchange Place, Jersey City.

Copies of the plans and specifications may be borrowed from the Architect by intending bidders, upon a deposit being made of a certified check of five hundred dollars, to ensure the safe return of such plans and specifications.

Blank forms of proposals may be obtained from the Architect, or from the Clerk of the Committee, 573 Newark Avenue, Jersey City.

Dated May 14, 1908.

The RECORD and GUIDE reaches practically all real estate men. If you have anything to offer, why not put it in the most conspicuous place?

What Marshall Field said:

"The worse the times, the harder we must fight for trade. In hard times the timid business man retires into his shell, but the farseeing merchant doubles his efforts to get business."

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

Key to abbreviations:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to their having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1907.

Read what satisfied clients say:

NEW YORK, October 11, 1907.

GENTLEMEN: We derived great satisfaction from your system of regular and prompt supervision of the water meters in our buildings. Your monthly report is an important feature, and its accuracy and promptness has saved us vast water wastes. We think it a necessity in the proper management of buildings, where the water is an item.

Very truly yours, SPEAR & CO.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded hy the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when hoth dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of Judgments the names alphabetically arranged and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) Signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column, but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

The Judgments filed against corporations, etc., will be found at the end of the list.

Vol. LXXXI. JUNE 6, 1908. No. 2099.

THE spring has passed and the summer has come without being witness to any substantial recovery of activity in the real estate market. The total number of conveyances recorded each week remains smaller than the small totals of last year, while the increased ease of the money market has not availed to bring up the amount of money loaned to the level which prevailed during the stringency, of loanable capital in the spring of 1907. Real estate in and around New York is dull as it has not been dull since 1900; but if it is dull, it is not weak, and its continued dullness is only natural. When a business revival takes place real estate gets the benefit of it only after the movement has gained some headway. The recuperative forces making for an economic betterment are first concentrated on the more fluid parts of the business area; and it is only after business men have been making, and workingmen have been saving, money for a good many months that real estate becomes active and large amounts of capital are again invested in building. Moreover, it is essential for a wholesome recovery of the real estate market that the renewed prosperity should not be fictitious but should be the result of an actual renewal of the springs of industrial and financial energy. An increase in real estate values and an active building movement cannot be financed without an abundance of loanable capital, and such a fund must be accumulated as a condition of anything more than a sporadic improvement. The real estate and building interests may consequently look with equanimity upon the prospect of a continuation of the present dullness until next winter. After the election is over there is every probability of a renewal of activity in New York real estate—provided, of course, general business has in the meantime somewhat recovered.

IT is very probable that during the coming winter a movement will take place in real estate similar to that which has recently been observed in stocks. The market for real estate in this city is almost as much under the control of professional speculators as is the stock market; and any real estate revival will begin with speculative buying in those parts of the city which seem to offer the best opportunities for profit. Like all speculative movements, this buying will begin a year or two before actual conditions may warrant it, but it is, of course, peculiarly the function of the speculator to anticipate the movement of prices, and to sell out when the course of business makes his anticipations good. There is every reason to believe, consequently, that active speculative buying will begin during the winter and spring of 1909; and the only conditions which might prevent it would be the improbable ones of severe business depression or a tight money market. Neither can there be much doubt as to the parts of the city which will be benefited by this movement. The districts in which there is a chance for an early profit in real estate, are much restricted by the indefinite postponement of the construction of new subways. The Bronx will feel the effects of this delay most severely, but it will also have its effects upon the upper East Side of Manhattan. On the other hand, it is probable not only that there will be a renewal of activity on Washington Heights, but that this renewal will extend along the whole upper line of the existing subway. The Dyckman tract, after having been dormant for four years, will awaken into renewed life, and those parts of the Bronx which are reached by the subway will continue their development. The alterations that are being made in and about the 96th street station will increase the capacity of the subway very considerably and also enable it to accommodate a considerable increase of population along its route. There can be no doubt, however, that during the next five years the bulk of the increase of New York in population will seek residences on Long Island and New Jersey. When the tunnels now under construction are in full operation, large areas to the east and west of Manhattan will become comparatively much more accessible than they are at present, and it is inevitable that they should reap the benefit of this increased accessibility. But if Long Island and New Jersey will draw population from Manhattan and the Bronx because of their improved means of communication, these same improvements can do nothing but good to the business interests of Manhattan. Distribution of population, when it is brought about by improved means of communication, helps to concentrate business. Five years from now Manhattan merchants will control a larger rather than a smaller proportion of the gross retail business of the city, and this gain will more than offset whatever the borough may lose from the inevitable transfer of certain manufacturing plants to the other boroughs. The great speculative movement of the next few years is likely to take place in those parts of Manhattan which will reap the benefit in business from the improved means of communication with Long Island and New Jersey.

THE Public Service Commission should, at the earliest possible opportunity, resume negotiations with the Interborough Company for the purchase of the tunnel to Long Island City. The Legislature has granted it powers sufficient for the purpose, and there can be no doubt that its purchase is demanded by the public interests of the city. Here is a tunnel which is already built and which could be put into operation a few months after its purchase. Its operation would be a great boon to the residents of Queens, and it could be made almost equally helpful to the business interests of certain parts of Manhattan. There is no way in which a sum of money could be spent upon rapid transit that would bring more and quicker benefit in proportion to its cost to a larger number of people, and it is sincerely to be hoped that the Public Service Commission can reach some fair arrangement with the Interborough Company. Moreover, in case such an arrangement is reached, the tunnel should be extended to some better terminal in Manhattan. If it is not prolonged any further west than it goes at present its value will be enormously diminished. Its terminal should not be any further east than Eighth avenue, and it should be connected so far as possible with the subway stations on 42d street and with the Grand Central Depot. Whether it could follow the line of 42d street at a level deeper than the existing subway, we do not know, but if such a route could not be arranged, it should cross 41st street and be provided with underground connections with important points on 42d street. Then it would reach the heart of the theatrical and amusement district, and would benefit all the restaurants and theatres situated in that vicinity.

THE spending of $7,000,000 or more upon the tunnel to Long Island City would, however, necessarily bring with it one important consequence. The city cannot afford to appropriate from its small margin of capital $7,000,000 for this tunnel and $16,000,000 or more for the Fourth avenue subway in South Brooklyn, and the Board of Estimate will undoubtedly insist upon the abandonment of either one project or the other. The project which should be abandoned is unquestionably the Fourth avenue subway. That subway has been a mistake from the beginning and should never have been laid out, and in making this assertion the Record and Guide is not preoccupied by any special preference for the interest of Manhattan and Bronx compared to the interest of Brooklyn. We have favored the construction of bridges and tunnels to Brooklyn and Queens wherever their construction can be justified by sound economic reasons—and this in spite of the fact that Manhattan real estate pays more than half the cost of these improvements without reaping anything like half the benefit. We should be glad to see the city purchase the Belmont tunnel and construct the combined subway and elevated road, whereby it is proposed to connect the Flatbush avenue station in Brooklyn with Canal street and the Bowery in Manhattan. Such expenditures can be justified by their fruits. But to spend $16,000,000 or more upon a subway running through a thinly-setted district which, when it is completed, will be almost exclusively of local benefit, is bad business and is contrary to all precedent. The appropriation of the city's money for such a purpose at a time when there are densely populated districts in Manhattan wholly unprovided with subways, is nothing short of an outrage. Undoubtedly South Brooklyn must in good time be provided with an express service to Manhattan; but the traffic is not dense enough to demand a subway and will not be dense enough for many years. At best, all that should be done for Fourth avenue in Brooklyn is to build a three-track elevated road. That was the kind of improvement given to the Dyckman district in Manhattan, and it is the only kind which can be made to pay. Mr. Bion J. Arnold has recently called attention to the fact that the existing subway in Manhattan has only earned net something over seven per cent. of its cost, whereas an elevated road of similar capacity would have earned fully twenty per cent. of its cost. But if such results are the best that can be accomplished in the densely populated Borough of Manhattan, how can a subway running through a semi-suburb be expected to pay? The city would be obliged not only to build and equip it, but probably to operate it for many years, and in the meantime it would have just so much the less money to spend upon necessary and profitable projects of subway construction.

THE UNEMPLOYED.

OVER-STRAINING at building operations imposes a penalty—which is now being exacted. During the years 1905 and 1906 the organized capacity for construction was enormously multiplied. We have, or did have, in New York at the beginning of this year, an organization equal to producing 250 millions' worth of buildings annually.

Sixty per cent. of that capacity is now unemployed. The visible evidence consists in an over-supply of materials, of workmen, of contractors, and of manufacturing facilities, and also of unrented apartments. The slack is not being taken up very fast. Only a portion of the plans filed and figured on are being built on. The two great classes of building operators—commercial builders and residential builders—have each a reason for not being in a hurry.

Capitalists who have filed plans for large operations have been asked why they do not give out contracts: "Oh, there's no hurry. Wait until we see who's nominated for president."

The head of a prominent firm of building-loan operators said: "Money is easy, but there has been a large over-production of housing accommodations. There are too many vacancies; too much unemployment. Families are moving into smaller apartments, or out of the city."

Operator No. 2. "There is plenty of money now. Builders and loan men are held up by other causes."

At the office of the Consolidated Board of Business Agents calls for mechanics are becoming more frequent, indicating a steady, if slow, improvement. A percentage of the city's unemployed are such as have come here from other places under a misapprehension, and are now departing.

"We do not look for booming times until the presidential nominations are made," said Secretary Tompkins. "Most of our business agents are of this opinion. Money will be more plentiful then for building loans—it is quite easily obtainable now. I notice several new signs offering it in convenient sums."

"The Building Trades have no complaint to make," continued Mr. Tompkins. "We had a number of good years, and all had a chance to lay by something for a rainy day. Those who cry are such as have spent their money as fast as they earned it.

"The present building season is late in getting started. Everything was closed out last fall, and now they are all at the post together waiting for the word. All will want men at the same time—and some may not get enough."

Statistics of the men employed in the building trades are always imperfect. Official records, as those compiled by the State Labor Bureau, can take into account only those organized in unions, whereas in some trades the percentage of non-union men is large. Thus, there are in Greater New York fully 22,000 so-called painters, but only about 9,000 are members of unions. The last annual report of the State Labor Bureau accounted for about 40,000 street laborers in the trades engaged in building—such as masons' and plumbers' laborers, rockmen and excavators—but this number is only a part of those so employed in good times.

The organized men reported in September, 1906, by the unions in Manhattan and the Bronx was 87,000; by the unions in Kings, 17,000; Richmond, 1,000; Queens, 3,000; total, 108,000.

The actual number of mechanics and laborers engaged in building works in the greater city in the year 1906 was unofficially estimated at about 200,000.

A list of the principal trades is given below, together with the number of men reported (in 1906) as enrolled in trade unions, and the estimated percentage of idleness, as estimated in authoritative quarters.

	Enrolled.	Per cent. Idle.	Total Idle.
Abestos workers	528	50	264
Bricklayers and masons	9,924	50	4,962
Building material handlers	200	50	100
Caisson and foundation workers	700	..	...
Carpenters and joiners	15,470	40	6,188
Cement masons	350	40	140
Derrick men and riggers	425	25	106
Double drum hoister runners	115	25	29
Elevator constructors	1,160	20	232
Electrical workers	3,600	40	1,440
Excavators	16,000	20	6,400
Framers	1,260	..	...
Stone workers	8,000	50	4,000
House shorers	500	75	375
Housesmiths and bridgemen	2,500	35	875
Lathers (metal)	600	20	120
Painters	9,000	60	5,400
Parquet floorers	500	50	250
Plasterers	6,100	60	3,660
Plumbers and gas fitters	5,000	40	2,000
Roofers	3,000	60	1,800
Steam fitters	2,000	40	800
Tar, felt and waterproofers	600	60	360
Tile layers	1,200	20	240
Masons' laborers	16,000	50	8,000
Cement and asphalt laborers	1,175	40	470
Rockmen	1,500	40	600
Total	....	42.5	....

Taking the State figures of 108,000 union men, and the estimated percentage of unemployment as 42.5, the total unemployed is 45,900. Taking 200,000, as the estimated total number of mechanics and laborers, organized and unorganized, depending on building work in the greater city, and 85,000 are idle.

Mr. E. H. Neal, of the Joint District of Carpenters and Joiners notices a slight improvement in every borough except Manhattan. Richmond is in fair shape, as is also Queens. January found fully 60 per cent. of the carpenters idle in the Bronx, and at present there are about 40 per cent. of the Bronx men idle. The Brooklyn Business Agents report their borough as being in bad shape all winter and many men out; but they now see better times ahead.

Further regarding working conditions, Mr. Neal said:

"About 50 per cent. of Manhattan men were idle in January, many more are idle now. This is due to many of the large office buildings being finished simultaneously.

"The loss of membership to our organization has been remarkably small. While many of our younger members have left the city, they still hold their membership in this district.

"Our relations with the manufacturers of metal covered doors and windows have been of mutual benefit to both organizations. The business of these employers having increased fully 50 per cent. since the signing of our first agreemnt of three years ago.

"The reinforced cement structures throughout the city have kept many of our men busy. Our organization, realizing that reinforced concrete is here to stay, set about getting a working agreement with the Masters' League of Cement Workers.

"At present we have no agreement with the master carpenters, but conditions established by our last agreement are mutually agreed upon, and we have been getting along harmoniously, except with an occasional spat such as is likely to occur in families much smaller than ours.

"Our organizers report business as picking up gradually in the smaller cities. The Albany unions have increased their membership by one hundred since January. About the usual number of employers are reported as having the open shop bee in their bonnets. This, however, does not seem to be dangerously contagious, and but few of our employers here are affected. Those who are, we are satisfied, will soon see the error of their ways and realize that the open shop and the arbitration plan are not running mates."

"THE HOME SEEKERS" is the title of a new and exceedingly attractive book about to be issued by the Home Seekers Architectural Co., 45-49 John st, Manhattan. In this book the company gives illustrations and plans of some fifty bungalows and houses, ranging in cost from $1,000 up, many, however, being about $1,000 and $2,000. The purpose of this company is to provide plans and specifications for bungalows for those who desire suburban homes. In order, however, to secure for their patrons the cost which they believe correct in connection with their plans, the company stands ready to take contracts for the construction of any of their buildings as shown at the price quoted, anywhere within the New York territory. Those interested in home building will find the designs and the numerous articles on home construction of interest and value. Copies can be secured from the office of the company by sending twenty-five cents to cover cost of postage.

BEFORE CLOSING YOUR CONTRACT.—It is not wise to trust entirely to your own judgment in arriving at the real value of a parcel of realty. Consult an agent or appraiser of known ability and pay him a substantial fee for giving you an opinion. Money spent in this manner is never thrown away. An appraisal backed up with an opinion is often the lever that forces a sale.

GENERAL CONTRACTS VERSUS INDIVIDUAL CONTRACTS

BY ARNE DEHLI, ARCHITECT

THE very thoughtful article by Mr. Geo. C. Nimmons in the January number of the "Architectural Record" was but one of many indications pointing to a general disposition to question the economy and efficiency of current methods of management and of letting contracts in the building trades.

So far, however, I think no practical suggestion has been made of anything better, at least in the way of general methods. As to a complete abolishment of competitive tenders, I think discussion is altogether an idle one. As long as men are willing to estimate and offer proposals in competition, this competitive feature will surely exist. And what is more, if properly managed and safeguarded that feature would seem both satisfactory and unavoidable. The competitive system certainly has been productive of a great many reforms and economies in the building trades, by putting a premium on efficient management and improved methods in manufacturing and handling labor and materials, and as a general proposition work by the day is not so cheap as work by contract.

On the other hand, with better methods of management, giving more attention to details, certain improvements might be made in the manner of inviting tenders, very materially reducing the waste of labor now imposed on contractors. It would therefore seem to follow that the key to the situation is to be found in the methods of management.

The General Situation.

As building construction was formerly carried on, each set of mechanics took hold when the building seemed ready for their particular work, under the management of the architect, and speed of construction was not required, as a rule. But nowadays a building is expected to be finished in a certain space of time, at a cost not to exceed a certain limit, and the building must be equipped for its uses with a great many conveniences and appliances formerly unknown and unheard of. The popular idea to the contrary, notwithstanding the general standard of work, is now much higher than formerly, requiring a much closer supervision and expert guidance, and constructions and appliances have become complicated to such an extent as to make an old-time building plan compare to a modern one much as the drawing of an old-fashioned horse-power threshing machine would to a modern newspaper printing press.

The Problem.

A building is in course of construction, a number of mechanics of different trades are at work shaping and setting materials which have been prepared, more or less, in different shops, often hundreds of miles away, all sets of mechanics and all shops being provided with scale drawings, full size details and specifications, all being subject to shop and field superintendence and acceptance or rejection as to materials and workmanship by the architect or whoever may have been vested with that authority. When we stop to consider the fact that the number of individual contractors and purveyors of materials of a building of no uncommon size, usually run into the scores, then some idea may be gathered as to the magnitude of the task.

Add to this the fact that New York possesses the world's greatest market for building materials, every race and every clime seeking in it an outlet for their products, and we realize at once the importance of expert selection and skillful purchasing of materials of every kind.

Need of Organized Management.

In order to solve the problem described there is need of complete and efficient organized management. On the other hand, the building trades of New York possess facilities of such excellence and magnitude as to render the task of organized management of building construction much simpler and easier than would appear possible at first sight.

The individual organizations existing for doing any kind of work, from excavating, caisson and foundation work, to the finest of decorative work, are so numerous, and the army of men engaged in the building trades is so enormous as to far outdistance anything of its kind ever dreamed of anywhere, and it is led by engineers, experts and men of business who stand as high in their profession and in the community as those of any other branch of business.

This points to a system of individual contracts, upon competition or without, as feasible and economical, dividing the work so as to entirely avoid subletting, and as, in the building trades, the recognized terms are cash each month, leaving only the expected profit for the last payment, and as, in any event, the individual contractors must find the money for carrying on the work, no financial organization is needed to speak of.

The management needed, therefore, consists of the following units:

1. Draughting office for laying out, setting and anchoring plans, working and shop outlays, for doing, measuring and checking, taking off quantities and doing quantity surveying generally, listing orders for the material yards, mills, shops, etc., estimating and generally all technical work in connection with the execution of work, including also general superintendence and checking the work of the foremen or superintendents in the shops and on the works and furnishing data for certification of payments.

2. A general business office for booking all contracts and orders, inviting tenders, certifying payments, attending to correspondence, payrolls, time sheets, etc.

The Natural Arrangement.

The natural historic and logical arrangement would seem to suggest leaving the entire management with the architect, making him solely responsible to the owner for results.

This would be easy of accomplishment by so extending the staffs of architects' offices as to include the necessary office forces for managing the individual contracts. I believe such a system is by far the cheapest obtainable, because any individual firm organized permanently for a special kind of work and possessing the experience and facilities accumulated from year to year certainly must be assumed to work more cheaply and well than gangs of men picked up for the occasion.

I believe it is also the safest method because the owner has only one individual contractor to reckon with in each case. I believe it is the quickest and most direct because it is a single-headed management.

I believe it is the only one by which the owner can be sure, in all cases, to obtain the terms of a cash purchase for his cash.

I further believe it is, in the last analysis, the only system in line with general experience and policy for this reason, that the management of contracts on behalf of an owner is a fiduciary act of a professional nature. For that reason the protection of professional standards, professional penalties, professional conscience and honor should be thrown around it.

In order to illustrate this point, take the matter of rake-offs and trade discounts. A business man, a contractor, under the necessity of making a profit, is supposed to have the benefit of such. They are made for that very purpose. However, a professional man who accepts a concealed commission of any kind is not only guilty of an unprofessional act, but criminally liable.

Now, I do not mean to insinuate that a contractor cannot be just as honest as an architect. Quite the contrary. The very slight amount of litigation in the building trades point to an exceptionally high standard of integrity, but the contractor's viewpoint is entirely different. I am, of course, discussing the question purely as one of principle.

From this point of view, I can see but one sure way of nullifying the trade discounts and rake-offs for the benefit of the owner, namely, by competitive proposals for individual contracts rendered to the architect or managing head acting in a fiduciary capacity.

Competing firms would naturally figure on the basis of net cost to them, purchasing at the lowest figure obtainable.

In general contracting, there is no way to make sure of this, and if the contractor chooses to pocket trade discounts and rake-offs, he can in most cases do so with absolute impunity, certain not to be detected and possibly even feeling that he is entirely within his rights.

By the method of individual contracts, there is, then, no reason for interfering in any way with trade discounts except in the case of extras, which, as a rule, can be provided for in various ways.

Cost of Management.

As a rough figure, it may be said that the usual 10% now paid to general contractors, probably represents a fair average, but it varies very largely. Probably most of our work, so far, has suffered from a lack of organized management, lack of complete shop details and ample shop and field superintendence.

It will pay in buildings of any considerable size to have a complete management at any cost within reason, and I believe it would stop much waste now unavoidable, an item which alone might pay for the management, and in cases certainly would.

The practice of subletting is due to lack of management at the fountain head, and certainly has proven both expensive and troublesome.

At an arbitration proceeding for cabinet work in an uptown hotel, some parts of it were found to have been sublet six deep and to carry a profit of 60% or 70%, and subletting, three, four and five deep is of the most common occurrence, and means, of course, accumulated profits of 30%, 40% and 50%.

I said subletting was due to lack of management at the fountain head because this makes it necessary to reduce the number of men to be managed, which again practically divides the work into a certain number of minor general contracts. It must be evident, at a glance, that in this way also very real and important benefits can be derived from a management equipped for dealing directly with every individual manufacturer or contractor doing work with his own men on any special line. There is, of course, a limit to this, as every manufacturer must purchase some parts of his work from other manufacturers. A carpenter, for instance, must purchase his nails, glue, etc. However, there certainly would be a decided saving in cost on this head also, and what is more important still, a management dealing with all shops direct, promptly furnishing them with working outlays and looking after the work, would in itself be conducive to economy, efficiency and speed without regard to the saving of accumulated profits referred to. That the management must avoid the fault of being too costly and cumbersome for its purpose, goes without saying. The aim must always be the simplest and cheapest management capable of yielding results.

Position of the American Institute of Architects.

The position of the Institute on this question is somewhat peculiar. Starting from the fundamental assumption that its members are acting in a purely consulting capacity, it would appear that so far the management of building construction has not formed a theme for discussion at any of the annual conventions.

The policy of most prominent architects, however, seems to have been in favor of doing work by general contract. The only important exception I have been able to find refers to the annual convention at Washington, D. C., in 1906, when a committee report strongly condemnatory of the system of general contracts was adopted—however, without suggesting any substitute for the method of organization condemned.

At the Chicago convention last November a new schedule of charges was passed, but the question of organized building management was not touched upon.

Many of us had hoped that the Institute would thresh out the matter, and regretted the action taken at Washington because it condemned the only method generally practiced without suggesting anything better. At the same time, the conventions of the American Institute of Architects consisting, as they do, of delegates from all parts of the country with rather varied interests and working under different conditions are greatly hampered in dealing with such a subject, and it is probably no more than fair to treat the subject as one yet to be taken up for discussion in spite of the Washington resolution. It is also fair to add that there exists no rule of the Institute which would stand in the way of managing work executed by individual contracts. That the Washington resolution was otherwise justifiable in every way, I think few will question.

Present Methods.

Essentially there are really but two developed methods of organized management of building construction in existence, namely:

1. The method described in the first part of this paper as the Method of Individual Contracts, being the historic one and still in use in parts of Europe and on this side of the Atlantic by a few architects and most of the building operators, who sometimes are architects themselves and sometimes purchase plans and do their own managing.

2. The Method of General Contracts with which the construction company is so nearly alike that one and the same firm frequently operates in both capacities.

The method of general contract has now been in general use for perhaps 50 years or more and has, therefore, received a thorough test.

At the end of that period it stands condemned before the American Institute of Architects, a tribunal the competence and character of which surely no one will question. It is also condemned no less severely by the majority of the individual contractors who have executed the sub-contracts under the general contractors, and who lately, in cases, have carried their disapproval to the length of organized opposition, mainly, as seems to be generally understood, on account of complaints as to promptness of transmitting payments received from owners for sub-contractors' work, and on account of alleged unfair methods of competition. It is generally assumed that such practices have been only too common and that owners have suffered through the fact that, through the operation of general contracts, the credit of a contractor, sometimes none too good, has been virtually substituted for the owner's cash, or, in a word, the owner paid the cash but received the terms of "slow pay" by ordering through the general contractor.

We quote the following from the report of the Fortieth Annual Convention of the A. I. A.:

This setting up of the general contractor has resulted in the great building corporations of the present time. They have been able to force the sub-contractors to a lower price, consequently, they have introduced a lower grade of work, and have succeeded in keeping the architects at arm's length from the man who does the work. . . And whereas the former sub-contractors were of considerable importance they are now crowded out, their output is modified, the standard of their work is lowered by price competition, pride of workmanship must give place to a commercial fight for existence, and they are reduced to a condition of despair. They must employ cheaper labor, so they fight with the unions upon issues which they could otherwise easily adjust. Sympathetic strikes occur all along the line where strikes might be confined to one particular trade and the whole matter grows more complex and difficult as we proceed. We see no reason for supporting a system which is uneconomic, which is disastrous to our business interests, destructive to our professional relations with our clients, and absolutely damning to our art.

The chief objections to the system of general contract, viewed as a method, are as follows:

1. On legal grounds: Undue power acquired by the contractor to injure the owner's credit. In the event of the financial embarrassment or death of the general contractor or disagreements between him and the owner or architect, the contractor controls the sub-contractors, who, however, possess lienable rights in the property, and through this fact acquire a power which might put the owner in a position of having to face the alternative of exactions or an assault on his credit by the filing of liens, and organized tie-ups of the operation.

2. On account of loss of control on the part of the architect acting for the owner.

In the case of individual contractors, a name stands for a certain quality and standard of dealings. The price and value of contractors' work must therefore vary according to the individual firms or sub-contractors whom the general contractor may see fit to employ. In choosing such, he is practically unhampered and enjoys a freedom protected by law. Now, a system which enables one of the contracting parties to render to the other, at his own pleasure, work inferior to that contracted for, or fails to provide easy and effective means for enforcing a contract for a certain definite quantity and quality of work, that surely is neither a good nor a safe system to adopt.

Now, I do not say this is done, as a rule. There are, of course, as many men with consciences in general contracting, as in any other business. I say it can be done and it is done; the great lack of recognized standards of quality in materials and workmanship makes it exceedingly hard to enforce specifications by legal means and juries are supposed to stand uniformly on the contractor's side. By individual contracts, however, the owner is able to weigh the difference in price against the difference in quality and make a choice accordingly.

3. On account of the implied dual nature of management.

The architect representing the owner and the contractor, on a business venture, are managing the building construction, or rather the contractor is managing it, subject to the approval of the architect, who is also to interpret plans and specifications and decide in constructive emergencies.

In cases of mistakes, misunderstandings, accidents and any of the varied "troubles" of which building construction, at least under present conditions, seems to be rather prolific, the routine is from the foreman to the sub-contractor, to the general contractor, to the architect, and back through the same course reversed. In the meanwhile, water is running through the Danube. The dual management cannot appeal to anyone as productive of speed, economy, good work, or smooth running, and even where it works fairly well, a better system should work better.

To these three points I might add a fourth, and no unimportant one at that, that of the relation to the labor unions. General contractors and construction companies are big targets and all the disturbances of late years have centered mainly around them. Yet it is generally understood that they, as a rule, have to be extra lenient and generous, for which, if true, the owner pays as a matter of course.

At any rate, the individual contractor certainly is in a far better position to deal with them and, I think, really does get along with less friction and trouble.

Finally, as a general thing, I do not believe any system will appeal to all men and all circumstances. Personal relations play a big role and almost every case is in a measure a different one.

However, what I am contending for is the importance of ample and well organized management by competent men. The ideal management being that headed by the man who invents the plan, and, therefore, should know all governing conditions best. But in any event, a complete management, a single-headed management and one working on professional lines.

I have omitted the question of estimates and of keeping within the same, as they apply to all methods alike with this difference in favor of an organization headed by the architect, that reliable preliminary estimates would then become a real possibility. There will, of course, always exist gambling on results, charges and fees contingent upon keeping within certain limits, etc., but owners should bear in mind, that, in such cases the other side frequently is in a position to "play with loaded dice," or "bet on a certainty."

THE MAN ON THE STREET.

WE passed under the stern of an American Liner this morning just up from Quarantine. Old Glory flew from her staff aft. A stolid group of sailors standing near seemed only like ferryboat deck hands, but watch them in a storm at sea! This class of men furnish numerous recruits to the building trades, and their sea-training makes them excellent material for cool-headed efficiency.

Amidships were a mass of people, immigrants, some newcomers, others returning to the land of their adoption. Not much stolidity there, all interest. These people were much alive and free for the moment. Hats and handkerchiefs were waved in salute, and as the early morning ferryboats carry rather spontaneous and democratic people—all workers in productive lines as a rule—the salutes were freely returned. Many had possibly been passengers themselves in the past.

Times are not at flood tide now, and these new people coming to this great land will have to put up a hustle. Suppose that our affairs were so adjusted that each could be placed where he belonged rationally—the mechanics on the buildings or in the shops, the farmers on the land—speedily and economically as our private affairs are handled. Could this not be done as wisely as the Ellis Island preventive landing measures are enforced? It's all a matter of adjustment and statecraft, and perfectly possible under our constitution, which in spite of all said against it has proved itself a pretty good working document. Architects, builders and constructors generally might give this a thought. It's just as much up to them as anybody else to start the music.

If your small boy tries to dissect your alarm clock, don't punish him, but buy him a small tool chest and start him on his way of manual training. If he is active and plays baseball, encourage him and listen to his embryonic fan talk. He is alive. He may be a boy given to reading or asking questions. Supply him with matter for the first and be patient and helpful in the last.

A quiet boy may be just as forceful or more than a noisy one. Is the lightning a greater power than the dew? Look carefully if you see an apathetic streak. It is mental death and danger to your future hopes to make him a plus quantity, either in your own profession or trade or some other for which he may show inclination. If he is imaginative and tells you of things new to you, do not discourage him by pooh-poohing his, to you, unknown land of mental exploration. Look on him as having greater possibilities than you had, and as his mind and body grow help them along understandingly. Thus will we produce sons worthy to assume great responsibilities in the construction field.

"As the twig is bent, so will the tree incline." Watch it closely.

The management of a commercial building is about as important as its equipment, and more vital to its success as a financial proposition than first-class construction, for an even moderately well-built building efficiently managed may give the wash to an absolutely A-1 structure in which the details of looking after the needs of the tenants are carelessly administered. The hall and elevator service touches the greater number of people, and a brass-buttoned wooden Indian down below may lower the entire status of the building if he cannot appreciate that his nut is a think-box and not a figurehead of a ship.

The service elevators are where real executive work comes in, and the hall-man in charge is as important as a foreman on a building who can keep his material moving in and out and not get into trouble with the copper on the beat, a mixup that is sometimes as expensive as a trip to Coney Island. We have under observation an ideal man in such a situation. He has a military set up, covers a long service medal under his neat uniform coat, answers to the title of "Sergeant," and returns a military salute in kind. His hall is in perfect condition, his cars are ever moving, and he is always on the job. There is much value in military training if you can apply it rightly and not let the brass button business make you chesty.

Out of London is Clapham Junction. It is the meeting of many lines of track, as its name indicates, and these are more complicated than the yard of our Grand Central Depot. In the switch tower at both places and many others there are quiet men with their hands on levers. They hold scores of lives in their firm grips, and many travelers pass swiftly by unthinking, intent on "getting home" to peace and quiet. It all depends on "the man in the tower." It's a constant matter of life or death, and one small mistake may mean hideous destruction.

In our trades often how much depends on little human or material units. Do we not remember the Ireland Building disaster, where an old well was made to stand responsible as the hidden death-trap for many workmen, and "somebody blundered" is the general verdict when we cannot just place the blame. Verdicts, however, do not bring back dead husbands, and money damages collected from an indemnity company do not fill the voids of the heart, though they may the purse. An ounce of prevention is worth many tons of cure.

Two deaf-mutes were interchanging ideas at the corner of 22d street and Broadway. Their hands moved in animated conversation and their eyes also. It made me think of how much can be said by a gesture.

Think of the change of millions of securities on our Stock Exchange floor by the fingers of the brokers' hands. Watch a man controlling the hoisting of material on a building. A mistake means some of the boys perhaps going to their long rest. Lynx-eyed is this man. He may be the other fellow some time, and he says to himself, like the Russian peasant or workman: "Have a care, little brother!" both for himself and the others. When you think of it, how careful he is. Compared with the amount of material handled, how small is the death rate. So, I think, our man can truthfully be called a true conservator of life.

He makes me think of the captains on the bridge of Thames steamers years ago. Having no signal bells, the orders went to the engineers by gestures of their hands through a call boy, like an arrow from a bow. Their case was full of lessons for the control of things without speech. Realize, O contractor, that we have one mouth, two ears and ten fingers. Keep moving.

MANUFACTURING PLANT OF THE ROCKLAND-ROCKPORT LIME CO.

The kiln equipment of the Rockland-Rockport Lime Co., of Maine, is very extensive. The company has eighty kilns, with an annual capacity of 3,000,000 bbls. The kilns are situated on the shore front, a distance of two miles from the quarries. The lime rock is transported by the Lime Rock Railroad, a constituent company of the Lime Rock Railroad Co. About thirty cars make a train load. The cars are run up on a trestle to the top of the kilns and a carload of rock is dumped at a time into the kilns. The kilns are 40 to 60 ft. high, with an inside diameter of 5x7 ft., and hold about 700 bbls. The kilns are kept burning day and night, the men working in 12-hour shifts. Drawing is made every 4 to 6 hours, and the lime is raked over on the hearth, and after being carefully picked over and selected is packed into barrels. Every barrel is filled by weight and the Rockland-Rockport Lime Co. guarantees the weight of every barrel.

The hydrating plant of the Rockland-Rockport Lime Co. is where the Pine Cone Brand is manufactured, and it is one of the largest in the East, its capacity being 100 tons a day.

The lime, which is of the best grade of lump lime, is conveyed from the hearth of the kilns to the vats by belt conveyors, where the process of hydration is carried on.

During the past few years hydrated lime has been used quite extensively in connection with concrete and cement mortars. For this use Pine Cone Hydrated Lime is especially adapted. Concrete, as every one knows, is very porous. Hydrated lime added to the mixture (from 10 to 15 per cent. by the weight to the cement) the lime works through the mixture closing up the pores, thus making the cement waterproof and also increasing the strength and durability. For cement mortars it increases the spreading properties and strength, thus reducing the cost of labor. The New York office of the company is in the Fuller Building.

THE INVASION OF NEW

EVILS creep in. They are rarely recognized until the remedy, whatever its nature, must be somewhat severe. This is not philosophy but a prelude to the practical and pressing question: What are we to do to make our growing skyscrapers fit our narrow streets? "There's a reason." It isn't possible to line our narrow streets (built several generations ago for the conditions that prevailed at the time) with twenty, thirty, or forty story buildings. Perhaps we can get along without sunlight and so prove medical science at fault when it declares that darkness and dampness promote the growth of germ life and their attack upon the human system. But one thing is certain: we cannot crowd a given space indefinitely, for if we do, locomotion becomes difficult and tedious and all the operations of transit become uneconomical.

Again, there is the question of water supply, sewerage disposal and the rest. Overcrowding has a great many phases. Each of them presents enormous difficulties and dangers. No one maintains that there is no solution forthcoming, but the fact stare us in the face that no serious attempt is being made to find the solution, yet the city is growing skyward at an exceedingly rapid rate. There are probably more skyscrapers to-day in New York City than in all the other cities of the world. There is no diminution of their construction. They increase in numbers proportionately every decade and every decade adds about ten stories to their average height. Forty-story building is an accomplished fact, and there is no indication that that altitude marks the highest term of the skyscraper.

Now the question whether we shall continue to build skyscrapers ad infinitum on streets that were laid out originally for buildings of moderate heights is not one, of course, that the builder as such or the real estate owner is especially concerned with. Indeed, his immediate interest may perhaps be strictly opposed to any reformatory or precautionary measures. But the interest of the community is a wider "interest" than any class interest, and it is certainly incumbent upon the municipality to throw the weight of its authority and interest to forward any movement that may be afoot to deal with this condition.

Mr. Ernest Flagg, the well-known architect, has an idea that the 40-sty building, more or less, is inevitable, and the way out of our difficulty is to limit the erection of these tower-like structures to so many of them within a given space. There is an invidious element in this idea which is sure to arouse opposition. Limitations, with exceptions, are never popular except with the fellow who is the "exception." This would be a monopolistic method of solving the problem. Between this and absolute limitation, that is a limitation that equally applies to every lot in the city, there does not seem to be any other choice. The problem has been faced and studied by many communities here and in Europe, and all alike have dealt with the difficulty by prohibiting the erection of buildings beyond a certain height and within this limitation, limiting the altitude of buildings in proportion to the width of the street upon which they face. A better way, no doubt, may be found by some ingenious mind, but if the discovery is possible, it should be made and applied immediately.

The streets of New York, particularly in the downtown section, are already so crowded that hardly any one can miss foreseeing the intolerable conditions of affairs to which we are rapidly drifting. The streets are already darkened excessively by their own shadows, and a few years hence will be so bad that even London will be in comparison a city of sunlight. The Flatiron Building is only a notorious example of how these tall buildings produce extraordinary draughts and air currents, and these local wind storms in turn are responsible for the pulmonary troubles that are more common now in New York than ever before. New York has certainly robbed Chicago of its claim to be regarded as the "Windy City," for there isn't any more wind anywhere than one can get on a stormy winter's day in our canyon like streets. In the summer time these closed-in alleyways grow more and more suffocating as building after building is erected.

It is a pity that there is a notion abroad that a city of 40-sty buildings is somehow a greater and grander city than one of 10- or 20-sty buildings, irrespective of any consideration other than that of mere altitude. No doubt there is an element that startles in any extreme, but surprise is not a final test of the admirable. The question of health is of much more importance to everybody.

THESE PICTURES WERE TAKEN ON A BRIGHT DAY.

A NEW STYLE BUILDING.

WHO WILL BE THE FIRST TO ERECT ONE? ARCHITECTURAL SOCIETIES SUBMIT A PROPOSITION—COMMENTS AND EXPLANATION BY ERNEST FLAGG.

LET us consider that there are one hundred city squares in the section south of Fulton st, which embraces the financial district, where old buildings are giving place to skyscrapers. The business population will be from ten to twenty thousand to a block, if the building rate continues. Even now the streets can scarcely hold them all or the traffic lines convey them. How will it be when the buildings in this one district will be big enough to accommodate a million or more? How about light and ventilation through the gorges?

Consequently, committees of the American Institute and the Society of Beaux Arts Architects have proposed a plan for limiting the height and area of buildings in New York. This plan is quoted below, and is accompanied by comments and explanations from Mr. Ernest Flagg, the Architect of the Singer Building:

Plan for the limitation of the height and area of building for New York is proposed by the committees on the Building Code Revision of the American Institute of Architects and the Society of Beaux Arts Architects:

1. The percentage of area to be left vacant for light and air shall increase progressively as the building increases in height.

To ascertain said percentage at any level up to 185 feet, divide twice the square of its distance above the curb by one thousand; but except for buildings other than dwellings or hotels on corner plots containing an area of 2,500 square feet or less, this percentage at any level more than 18 feet above the curb must not fall below 10.

2. Notwithstanding the foregoing, a certain portion of any plot may be built upon to any height. To ascertain this area, add to the area of the plot one-half of the area of the street or streets opposite the facade or facades of the building and divide by four.

3. An owner of land may, by purchase or otherwise, acquire the rights of adjoining land for the purpose of building above 185 feet in height on his own land over an area proportioned as provided in Part 2 to the combined land area of which he controls the above-mentioned rights. The Superintendent of Buildings shall, upon such agreement having been properly executed and filed, grant the application for such extension of area on which the height may exceed 185 feet, and the right to exceed such height shall thereupon cease on said adjoining land.

The level of the curb referred to herein shall be taken at the mean level of the curb or curbs opposite the street facade or facades of the building.

The area of the street or streets referred to herein is to be computed in each case by multiplying the width of the streets from building line to building line, but in no case more than 100 feet by the length of the facade along the building line of the lot.

By ERNEST FLAGG.

As light comes from above at an angle which varies with the course of the sun, it is only reasonable that streets, courts, etc., should be wider at the top than at the bottom, and the vacant area should evidently increase more rapidly as the building increases in height.

Formerly it was the custom to build solid masonry walls, which were necessarily in the same perpendicular plane from top to bottom, but now the walls of almost all tall buildings are carried at each story height on girders, and may therefore have offsets and be built in several vertical planes. Thus it becomes perfectly practicable to construct courts or streets wider at the top than at the bottom. The laws of economy and hygiene both suggest such a treatment. To make a court or street as wide at the bottom as at the top is to waste floor space, and to make a court or street wide enough to light properly only the upper floors is to make the lower stories dark and unwholesome.

The first paragraph provides that the percentage of area to be left vacant for light and air shall increase progressively as the building increases in height.

The percentage to be left vacant is found by dividing twice the square of the distance above the curb by one thousand. Thus, at an elevation of 18 feet, twice the square would be 648, and dividing by one thousand would give about six-tenths of one per cent., or about enough to provide a shaft of sufficient area to ventilate the cellar.

At a height of 50 feet the percentage of area to be left vacant would be 5% of the area of the lot, found as follows: 50 x 50 equals 2,500 x 2 equals 5,000 ÷ 1,000 equals 5%, but this would only apply to buildings other than hotels and dwellings on corner lots of 2,500 square feet or less in area. For there is a clause which states that for all other buildings the percentage of area vacant above the height of 18 feet from the curb must not fall below 10.

At a height of 100 feet the area to be left vacant would be 20%, but this percentage may, of course, be decreased by offsets at lower levels, according to the rule as above explained.

At 150 feet the percentage to be left vacant would be 45% of the area of the plot, and at 185 feet, the extreme limit of height under this paragraph, about 68½% would be required. But it must always be remembered that this is the percentage at the level stated only, and that the court area may decrease below it. If we take the required area at different levels, say at intervals of 25 feet, we find that the average area required to be left vacant for buildings 185 feet high is less than 30%.

When we consider that the new-law tenements, which are only five or six stories high, are required to have a court area equal to 30% of the area of the plot, and we find by experience that they are but indifferently lighted in districts which are solidly built up with them, it would seem that an average court area of 30% is none too much for buildings 185 feet high. The redeeming feature is, of course, that the light area is so much greater at the top than at the bottom.

But in making this plan the object has been to admit of all the freedom to the individual builder which is consistent with justice to neighboring land owners and the general public good. Therefore, provision is made for covering a greater area than the first paragraph permits of, in places where it can be done in accordance with the principles just stated, and with this object in view, the second paragraph provides that notwithstanding the foregoing a certain portion of any plot may be built on to any height. To ascertain this area, add to the area of the plot one-half the area of the street or streets opposite the facade or facades and divide by four.

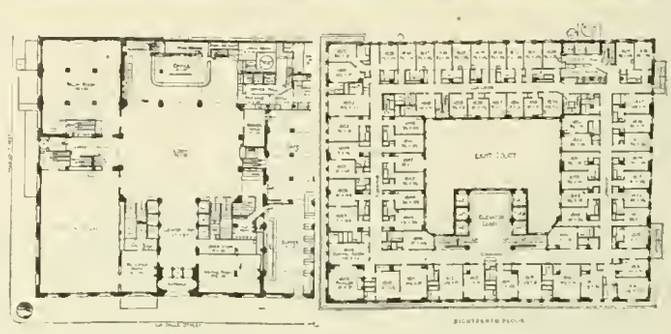
As an illustration of how this would work, let us take one or two examples. An inside lot of the ordinary size on a 60-foot street, for instance, would contain 2,500 square feet, and one-half the area of the street opposite the facade would be 750 feet: total, 3,250 feet one-quarter of which gives the area which can be built upon to any height above 185 feet; viz., 815 feet square, and the area left vacant would be 67.4% of the area of the plot.

Upon corners where, by reason of the more open situation there is less need for court area, it is only fair that the builder should have greater liberty than in the case of inside lots, and the plan provides for this automatically, thus:

Assume a corner plot 100x100 feet at the intersection of two streets, one 60 feet wide and one 100 feet wide. To find the area which can be built upon to a greater height than 185 feet, we take the area of the plot, 10,000 square feet, plus one-half the area of the wider street opposite the facade, 5,000 square feet, plus one-half the area of the 60-foot street, 3,000 square feet; making a total of 18,000 square feet, which divided by four gives 4,500 square feet, or 45% as the area that can be built upon to a greater height than 185 feet. Upon a triangular plot like those occupied by the Flatiron and Times buildings, almost the entire area could be covered to a greater height than 185 feet.

The third paragraph is framed to permit of still further liberty to the builder. It provides that an owner may by purchase or otherwise acquire the rights of adjoining land for the purpose of building above 185 feet on his own land over an area proportioned as provided in paragraph 2, to the combined land area of which he controls the above mentioned rights. It was thought that some owners might not care to build above the limit of 185 feet, and others might want to build to a greater height than 185 feet over a larger area than would be allowed under the preceding paragraph, and that therefore this privilege to build higher than 185 feet over a certain percentage of the land might properly be subject to purchase and sale between adjoining land owners, for it evidently makes no great difference as far as public interests are concerned what specific portion of a given block is left vacant if sufficient light and air are provided for buildings and streets.

By this arrangement an owner may withhold his consent and prevent an adjoining owner from building over a greater area than allowed by paragraph 2, in which case the adjoining building could do him no great harm, or, if he receives sufficient compensation, he may permit the adjoining owner to combine his rights with those of his own land and cover a greater area than he otherwise could with a very tall building. He would thus receive compensation for the damage done him, whereas now he is liable to have his light taken without compensation of any kind. Of course, an owner once having parted with these rights, his land would forever be restricted to a building not over 185 feet high.



The fourth clause is intended to provide light for the street. It provides that the height of buildings at the building line shall not exceed 100 feet above the curb, and that for a distance of 30 feet behind the building line no part of the building, except on corner plots, shall extend in height beyond a plane formed by the building line at a level of 100 feet above the curb and a line normal thereto inclined away from the street at an angle of 60 degrees from the horizontal.

Logically, the buildings on narrow streets ought to be lower than those on wider streets, but there are many difficulties in the way of such an arrangement, especially at corners formed by the intersection of streets of different widths, and it was thought best to take a uniform height of 100 feet as the cornice line for all streets irrespective of their width.

As streets at the corners are better lighted than elsewhere, the light coming from two directions, there is not the same reason for an offset at the hundred foot level as in the case of inside plots, and they are therefore excepted from this restriction.

WHY SOME FLATS ARE VACANT.—Bad taste in wall paper is said to be responsible for many vacancies in apartment houses. The plea frequently heard is that artistic designs are too costly for the average apartment. Such is not the case, for the production of wall paper each year is now so large that there is no reason why even for a small sum one need have anything inartistic. Hang good paper, and above all a paper with some character. If you can't handle the job hire some one who can and note the result.

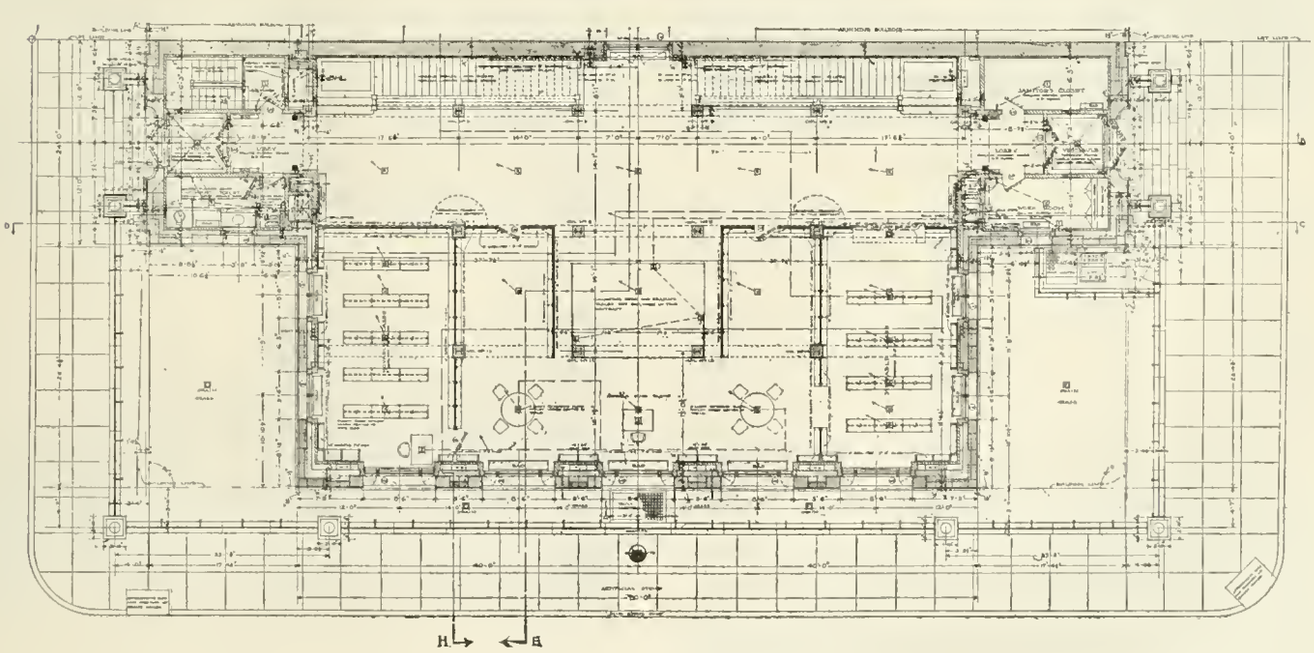
HOW THE NEW SEWARD PARK BRANCH LIBRARY WILL LOOK.

Work on the foundations for the new building for the New York Public Library, illustrated, to be known as the Seward Park Branch, No. 24, and to be erected on the plot of approximately 115x62 ft. on Jefferson st, between Division st and East Broadway, is now well under way. The Jefferson st front of the structure will be the most important and faces on Seward Park; but the two entrances are in wings on East Broadway and Division st. The work room, accession room, staff room, locker room, toilets, etc., are in the wings in the second and third stories. In this way the whole of the main building in the first, second and third stories is kept unobstructed for the purpose of the library.



The two entrances will be used respectively by adults and by children. The first and third stories are for the circulation and reading rooms of adults, the second story being devoted entirely to the children's department. On the roof of the building will be a large out-of-door reading room, arranged to be well shaded by awnings when required and provided with electric lights for use in the evening. A packing room of generous dimensions is provided in the basement, which also contains the boiler room, coal storage space, machine room, toilets, etc. Rooms for the janitor are in a bulkhead on the roof extending across the east side of the building.

The interior finish will be of quartered white oak with rift grain Georgia pine floors and painted plaster surfaces. The main stairs will be of iron with gray marble treads. The exterior of the building will be laid up in Indiana limestone and red brick with a granite basement. The library is one of the largest and most important of the branches yet to be built, serving as it does a very crowded district of the city. Automatic electric booklifts will be furnished by the Otis Elevator Company. Richard Deeves & Son, No. 309 Broadway, have the general contract. Messrs. Babb, Cook & Welch, No. 3 West 29th st, are the architects.

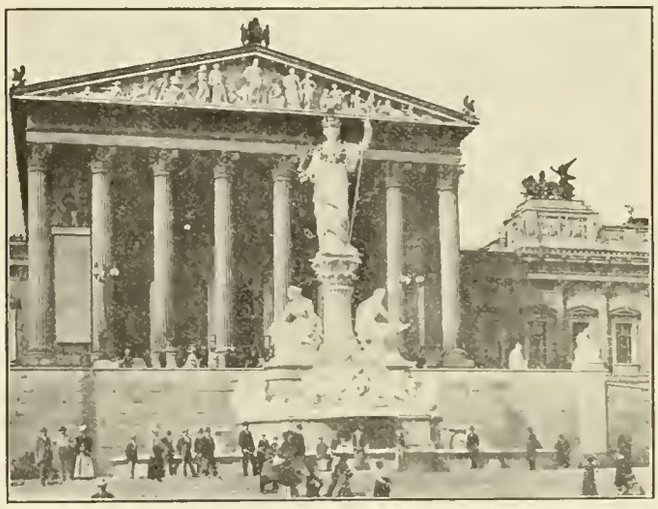
GENERAL FLOOR PLAN.

VIENNA: ITS CITY PLAN AND ITS APARTMENTS

AS AN AMERICAN ARCHITECT SAW THEM



By CHARLES H. ISRAELS

WALKING along the streets of Vienna the visitor finds himself zigzagging in and out along the sidewalks which at varying intervals are drawn back so as to widen the roadway and set the new buildings at a greater distance apart, and he wonders at the municipal regulations which allow such an inconvenient arrangement until he discovers that it is part of a far-seeing scheme which is being put into operation throughout the entire city under the direction of the Stadt-Bau-Amt, which corresponds in a measure to New York's late City Improvement Commission, with the important addition that it is a permanent municipal department, and that its recommendations are approved by the authorities and thereby become part and parcel of the city ordinances, as its members are appointed by the City Council to what is practically a permanent tenure of office.

At its head is Stadt-Bau-Director Berger, who presides over three bureaus, one of which is under the control of an architect, another of an engineer and the third of a lawyer, and each in turn has his staff of assistants. This commission has prepared a permanent plan of the entire city in both its old and its new portions, and in making this plan an effort has been made to standardize the two so as to make a homogeneous whole. Even a cursory examination of the plan of Vienna shows at a glance how well this work is being done.

Reconstructed.—A Modern City.

For the past thirty years this ancient commonwealth, dating back to the days of the Romans, has been undergoing a slow but sure reconstruction, and to-day it is almost completely a modern capital. This improvement was begun with the construction of the magnificent Ring, forming a system of wide boulevards encircling the old town on the site of the original fortifications, and the work has progressed so steadily since that time that the Viennese of to-day consider that they live in an absolutely modern city.

In carrying out this plan the streets of the old city have been widened, straightened and made to conform to the newer sections, while adequate circulation has been maintained by a carefully designed system of important radiating streets linking the old and the new town.

In order that nothing may escape the central authority, and that no encroachments of any kind may be allowed which will in any way interfere with the carrying out of this plan, all municipal regulations of every kind applicable to building operations are administered through the Stadt-Bau-Amt.

How It Is Done.

The widening of the streets of the old city is naturally the chief concern of this commission, and in putting its plans into operation it is assisted by the well-sustained policy of the city, which offers substantial inducements to the landowner to tear down his old building and rebuild on the new line.

Taxes bear heavily upon the Viennese landowner. They frequently amount to 35 per cent. and over upon the gross rental of the property, exclusive of the water rent; but let an owner build a new building, so as to conform to the new lines (and he cannot do otherwise if he rebuilds at all), and he is exempt from taxes for periods varying of from twelve to twenty years.

Having placated the owner of the land upon which the new structure is to be built by this substantial bait, his neighbors are then taken care of by the municipality so that they, too, will lend the proper amount of encouragement to his efforts. For a year prior to an owner declaring his intention to build, the sides of the houses adjoining may be disfigured with painted signs, such as are frequent in American cities, though at all other times these signs are prohibited.

When the landowner decides to build he applies to the Stadt-Bau-Amt for a survey of his lot, and in rebuilding he must conform to the new street lines. Should it be necessary, as is usually the case, to set back from the old line which he formerly occupied, the city purchases the property at a valuation fixed by the commission; and should the owner be required to bring his new building forward he must purchase the land at a similar valuation, and from these values as fixed by the Stadt-Bau-Amt there is no appeal. This process has been in operation for some twenty-two years, and slowly but surely it is transforming old Vienna, with its narrow and crooked thoroughfares, into new Vienna, with its broad and beautiful avenues, in which tree-planting and foliage is always considered as an essential part of the scheme on all important highways.

To a New Yorker familiar with the purely advisory report of his own City Improvement Commission this method contains a suggestion for a possible realization of our own plans of municipal improvement along the lines of the least resistance.

Men well qualified to speak are of the opinion that one-quarter of a century more will see the last of "Alt Wien," and with the replanning of the city the line of demarcation between the old and the new town is being practically wiped out and the circulation made quick and easy by the radiating plan.

Proves All the Theories.

As an illustration of the effect of city plan on congestion, Vienna proves all the theories on the subject, as this radiating system has not only eliminated the slums and congested districts, but has spread out the population so evenly that it is difficult to find either a distinctly residential or a distinctly business section.

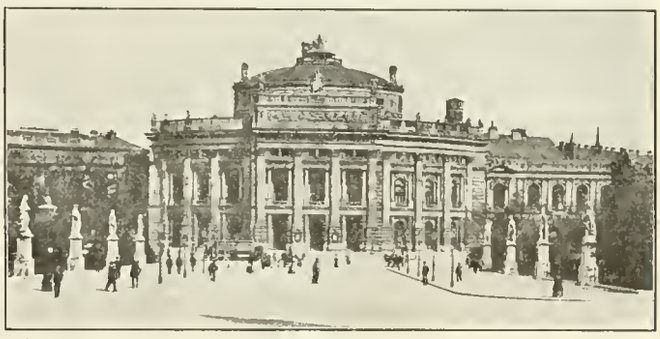
No capital in Europe contains so many important public buildings as are grouped within the area of old Vienna, but with the exception of this section all other portions of the city are of equal importance, and the social and business habits of the people have further contributed to this condition.

The Viennese takes his principal meal in the middle of the day, and it is usual for him to discontinue work entirely for at least two hours for this purpose. During the afternoon the greater part of the population, both men and women, seem to adjourn to the inevitable coffee house, while business is continued until an hour practically synonymous with the opening of the places of amusement. All of this naturally has its effect upon city plan and city architecture, and compels a close geographical relation between the home and the place of business or workshop.

ALBRECHT'S PLATZ.
(Danube Fountain on Ramp. Fischer Hof in center.)

A City of Apartments.



Vienna, like most other European capitals, is a city of apartments; but comparatively few apartments are devoted exclusively to dwelling purposes, and in a large number of houses the offices of business or professional men will be found on the two or three lower floors of the better-class houses, as well as the usual stores in those of the less pretentious type, while only the upper floors are devoted to dwelling purposes. Where the store does not exist this occupancy seems to have had little effect upon exterior design, as the buildings generally have a domestic rather than a commercial appearance, and, in fact, the plan of these lower or business floors is practically the same as that of the upper ones used for domestic purposes.

The ground floor, or entresol, has little variation from the well-known type of French apartment, and has its inevitable concierge, but in the apartments themselves an American finds very much that differs from similar construction at home. Large rooms and high ceilings seem to be a "sine qua non" to an extent that would make the New York speculator gasp at the waste of room; but these larger spaces are frequently obtained by the loss of circulation, which would not be tolerated in an American apartment. The main rooms in the apartments of the finer type are frequently 20x30 ft. or over, and fully 12 ft. in height; but on entering the apartment one is frequently compelled to pass through a number of the semi-public rooms in order to reach the bedrooms, the private hall in the American sense not being considered at all necessary.

As It Seems to Us.

None of the bedrooms are provided with closets, and a necessary part of every room's furniture equipment is a large wardrobe, and in addition thereto in the apartments of the better class a large room is frequently provided to be used exclusively for movable wardrobes holding the clothes of the various members of the family. Interior courts are generally of so large an area that excellent ventilation is obtained in most cases in inside rooms; but the sanitary conditions in the older houses are not by any means up to the standard of American construction, the toilet rooms being frequently very badly ventilated through a small interior shaft, and having decidedly inadequate water supply. The older houses have no bathing facilities at all, but in the houses of the newer type, where bathrooms are provided, these rooms are in proportion to the others, and one frequently finds a bathroom three or four times the dimensions of a similar room in a New York house, and the plumbing fixtures seem quite lost in the amount of space provided.

On account of the varying shapes of the lots, apartment plans are not at all standardized, as they are in our rectangular American cities, and this same condition naturally gives very much better opportunities for interior ventilation than we possess; but, nevertheless, it frequently happens that many of the interior rooms are by no means as well lighted as would be required under the Tenement House Act of New York City.

HOFBURGTHEATER.
Vienna. Semper & Hasenauer, Architects.

The elevator has not yet come into very general use in apartment houses, and winding stairs, though broad beyond that which one usually finds in American cities, lead up to the upper floors in connection with halls of similar proportions.

The municipal regulations prevent any building in Vienna going to excessive height, and an apartment house higher than five or six stories is rare. In fact, some recent municipal statistics of the city of Vienna show that there are but four 7-story buildings within the entire city, and none higher.

The Austrian architect is somewhat slowly taking up the Anglo-Saxon habit of using the sliding sash, and the casement window is still in the most universal use; but it has been found so impossible to prevent the sash from transmitting draughts into the house that a municipal regulation compels double sash to be inserted, and in addition thereto one usually finds a long movable pillow between the inner and outer sash to prevent leakage.

The comparative expense of lumber causes the amount of wood which is put in the finish of these apartments by the landlord to be reduced to the minimum. A wainscot is very rare, except as it may be provided by the tenant, and the base itself, even in a room of some pretensions, is rarely over six ft. high, while no picture mouldings are provided.

THE CITY'S NEW FERRY TERMINAL AND OFFICE BUILDING.

The action taken this week by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment authorizes the Commissioner of Docks to award the contract for the Staten Island Ferry terminal, foot of Whitehall st, Borough of Manhattan.

This contract provides for a structure with two slips which forms the westerly section of the Municipal Ferry terminal. The easterly section, consisting of three slips, has been under construction for some time and is to be used as the Manhattan terminal of the 39th Street Ferry, Brooklyn.

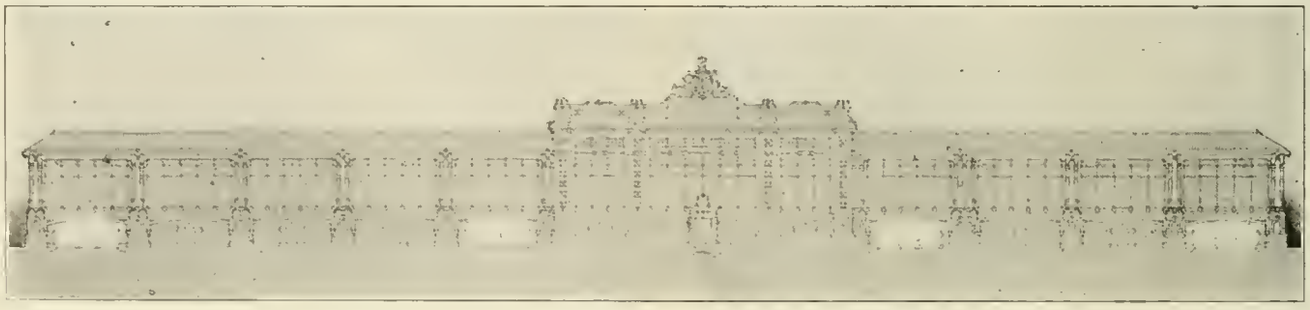
The third, or middle section, when acquired by the city, will consist of two slips and furnish terminal facilities for South and Fort Hamilton ferries.

RIVER VIEW MUNICIPAL FERRY TERMINAL.

Snare & Triest Co., Builders. Walker & Morris, Architects.

The three sections are shown in the elevator plan. Since the three sections are being built at different times each is complete in itself, but the three are so designed as to form a harmonious whole, so arranged as to be used either as one large terminal or as three separate ones, which future traffic conditions will determine.

The completed structure, therefore, consisting of seven slips, will replace the present terminals of the Staten Island, 39th Street, Fort Hamilton and South ferries, and will be more than 700 feet long. There are three waiting rooms and a driveway on the street level. On the second floor there is practically one immense concourse, subdivided by glass partitions into three waiting rooms, so arranged that they can be operated individually or in connection with each other. The Loggia, 15 feet wide, running along the entire north front on second floor level, will replace the unsightly bridges and passageways at present leading from the elevated road to the ferry houses. Ample and modern smoking rooms, retiring room and toilet room arrangements are provided, and the electrically illuminated signs and automatically controlled gates for the comfort and safety of the public are of the most approved types.



On the third floor over the slips there has been provided 45,000 square feet of office space, equal in area to nearly two floors of the proposed new Municipal Building. An equal number of square feet of roof space is intended to be given up to public use as a recreation pier. These two features have been worked out at a comparatively low cost to the city. At a rental of $2 a square foot for the office space, the city would derive an annual income of $90,000, making it a revenue-producing building. The third floor is reached by elevators and stairways accessible from both the first and second floors, while the recreation pier has separate stairways.

MATERIALS AND CONSTRUCTION.

The building is of fireproof construction, with steel framework and reinforced concrete floor slabs. Every effort has been made in the selection of materials to avoid the cracking of walls and ceilings, and to further insure this result all large surfaces are broken up into panels with metal covered slip joints. Unlike some of the newest terminals, the river front, the steel structural members are left exposed, rather than covered with metal. Between the exposed steel members are ornamental stucco and copper panels, while ornamental cast and wrought iron brackets and mouldings complete with tile and terra cotta the scheme of decoration.

For waterproofing the stucco, a waterproof material has been mixed with the sand and cement, and to color it pigments are mixed in, instead of applying the coloring matter to the exterior. The copper is not to be treated in any way. The concrete floor slabs are to be covered with marbleithic blocks in the waiting rooms. The roof forming the recreation pier will be tiled, while a copper roof with standing seams crowns the north and east elevations.

The cost of the completed superstructure will be $1,500,000. This does not show a greater cost per cubic foot than other modern terminals, which, however, have no revenue-producing features. Work was commenced about a year ago under Mr. J. A. Bensel, Commissioner of Docks, and is now being continued by his successor, Mr. Allen N. Spooner; Mr. Charles W. Staniford being chief engineer for the department. Messrs. Walker & Morris, 36 East 23d st, are the architects, and Charles Worthington their consulting engineer. The Snare & Triest Company has the general contract for the three westerly slips, and were the lowest bidders for the two easterly slips.

STRUCTURAL STEEL IN BRAZIL.—The possibilities of the trade in steel building materials in Brazil have appealed to a number of the largest American manufacturers of such materials, and there is a well-defined movement to get into the trade in Brazil and South America generally. The nature of inquiries made, however, indicates that there is no proper appreciation of the position of this trade in Brazil at the present time, nor is it likely that it will reach the expectations of many American exporters for some time. Rio de Janeiro has nearly a million people. In spite of the high price of real estate in the central portion nearly all the business houses are three stories, a few are of four, still less of five, and the only two above five stories are those of two newspapers—one of seven and the other of nine stories, the latter being the only building in the city built upon a steel frame. Building in Rio de Janeiro, as the representative city of Brazil, so far have consisted altogether of those constructed of stone and those constructed of brick and plastered over to represent stone. Owing to the climate none other than damp-resisting materials can be used. Wood has been out of the question, owing to ravages of white ants and other insects.

MOVING THE BREAD LINE.—On Monday, June 8, the Fleischmann Bakery will move to the northwest corner of Broadway and 11th st. The building occupied by them for thirty-two years will be razed as described some time since in the Record and Guide. Many people have wondered whether the famous "Bread line" would be discontinued when the new quarters were occupied. Mr. Otto F. Fleischmann is convinced of the efficacy of his plan and will continue it. Instead of extending along Broadway, however, it is stated that the line will in the future form along 11th st.

RECENT ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE BUILDER.

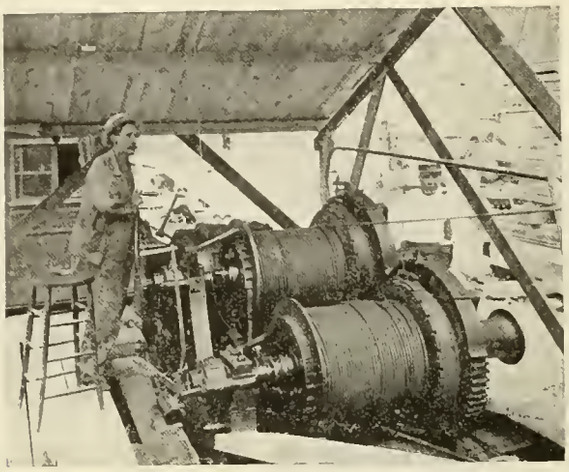
AN EXAMPLE OF RAPID CONSTRUCTION.

The illustrations on this page of the new Silversmiths' Building on the north side of Maiden lane, a few doors east of Broadway and running through to John st, tell a story of rapid building. Yet the photographs tell only a part of the achievement, as the photographer was unable to obtain on the plate the wings running through to John st on the rear.

THE SILVERSMITHS' BUILDING AS IT WAS IN COURSE OF ERECTION.
A. J. Robinson Co., Builder. Maiden Lane and John St. Clinton & Russell, Architects.

The pictures all show the Maiden Lane elevation. The one dated October 11, 1907, shows the first story floor beams in place. On November 16, 1907, the steel work is shown to the 12th story. By December 12, 1907, the 21-story tier of steel work was in place, and on December 26, 1907, the masonry was completed to the roof line. It will be noticed that the plot formed a letter "E," with the short middle member omitted, a small 3-sty building in John st being surrounded on three sides by the new work. Another feature which the photographer has not brought out is the concave front on Maiden lane, which peculiarity of the elevation in nowise facilitated the construction. The illustrations cover a period of eleven weeks, from October 11 to December 26, 1907, from the time the first floor beams were on until the building was "topped out." The progress made between December 12 and 26 in two weeks of winter weather was amazing. The walls of this building are brick and the floors and roof of hollow tile.

Except in the excavation, no overtime work was done on the job, barring some early evening and Saturday afternoon duties of a few laborers in receiving and placing materials.



The Record and Guide endeavored to obtain from the builders some noteworthy data which it would seem should accompany such a rate of progress, but from Mr. Andrew J. Robinson all down the line, the organization was unanimous on the point that the greatest single help in the construction of the building was the continuous and immediate assistance of the architects, Messrs. Clinton & Russell, in quickly deciding any points in doubt. At all times were used an abundance of the most modern appliances which make an up-to-date plant, such as patent scaffolding; adjustable canvas covering, so that the work might progress in any kind of weather; electric hoisting apparatus; the electric light for the short dark winter days, etc.

Mills, yards and factories where material for the job was being manufactured were, with the permission of the proprietors, under the daily inspection of the building concern, who saw that the company's work was receiving the best possible attention, and arranged so that deliveries would dovetail nicely at the site and the material be on hand when wanted. When the contract was made last July the owners asked for the building May 1, 1908; it was tenanted early in April, and the builders say they could have had the building ready for tenants much ahead of this were it not that the division of the space by partitions was left in all cases until actual leases were signed, after which the partitions were built and plastered. The electric elevators were installed by the Otis Co. The Maiden Lane Realty Co., 171 Broadway, is the owner of the building. Edward Holbrook, president of the Gorham Co., is president; Harold J. Gross, vice-president, and John S. Holbrook, treasurer. Directors are E. and J. S. Holbrook, B. P. Cheney, G. C. Comstock, S. P. Colt, H. J. Gross, J. E. Fletcher, E. I. Rogers and R. Grinnell.

ELECTRICITY IN MODERN BUILDING OPERATIONS.

IN New York City, where space is at a premium electric power has become invaluable on account of the reduced floor space required, the possibility of direct application of motor to machine, and its flexibility. Other items in its favor are the elimination of dirt, noise and waste, and absence of vibration.

In building construction this form of power is especially favorable because of the portability of electric-driven machines. Wires may be run quickly and easily, and are rarely injured by wear and tear of construction work. This cannot be said of the rigid lines of piping which are usually necessary where steam or air is used. Leaking joints and line condensation are entirely done away with.

HOIST DRUM.

Electric pumps have been a great aid in excavation work where on account of heavy storms or seepage, large quantities of water have collected. The inefficiency of the steam pump and pulsometer is well known. With electric pumps the current consumption is in direct relation to the work done, no more, no less. Skilled attendance is unnecessary, for a watchman can start or stop the pump at intervals during the night, and keep the water down to a minimum even in the wettest kind of an excavation.

The electric hoist has become indispensable in construction work for reasons of economy, absence of vibration and ease of location. It is possible to install an electric hoist at the top of a building, no matter what its height. This allows a cable to be used at about one-half the length necessary when hoists must be set on the ground floors near the steam supply or the coal pile.

PUMP.

Concrete mixers may be readily equipped with motors, and when so fitted become a compact and portable unit. Under these conditions the mixer may easily be moved and will materially reduce the cost of mixing by keeping the mixer close to the point where the concrete is to be placed.

Provision is made in architects' plans for lighting, ventilation, elevator service and water supply throughout a projected building, and it is usually decided nowadays that the electric way is the best because the safest, and in the long run the most economical. Electrical ventilation, not yet as familiar to the general public as other electric conveniences, is effected by means of exhaust fans which draw the vitiated air from crowded rooms, and ordinary electric fans so placed as to induce a constant current of fresh air and to circulate it.

HOIST FOR MATERIAL.

For the water supply there are numerous types of electric pumps, some of which are automatic and require practically no attention.

Elevators are now put in large buildings as soon as there is enough framework up to permit their installation, so that they can be used for transporting workmen and material from floor to floor within the structure.

Whenever it is imperative to rush the completion of a building, the work must be carried on at night as well as

CONCRETE MIXER.

during the day, and it is then that electric lighting is most appreciated, for arcs and incandescents may be installed with perfect safety in almost any place or position, no matter what stage construction has reached.

Electrical apparatus, whether applied to the building in course of construction, or installed in the finished structure to provide comforts and conveniences, invariably commends itself to favor by its ease and economy of operation, and above all, its safety.

THE FLOORS OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

THE FLOOR is the most abused part of all public buildings and in American architecture it has been also the most neglected. This is due to the fact that this country has been for a long time a land of large forests where timber was cheap and plentiful. The gradual rise in the price of wood and a popular demand for more substantial buildings have united in doing away with the use of wood on the floors of nearly all public buildings. Even in private residences the wooden floor is used less and less in vestibules, porches, bathrooms, kitchens and other parts of the house where the floors are subjected to rough usage.

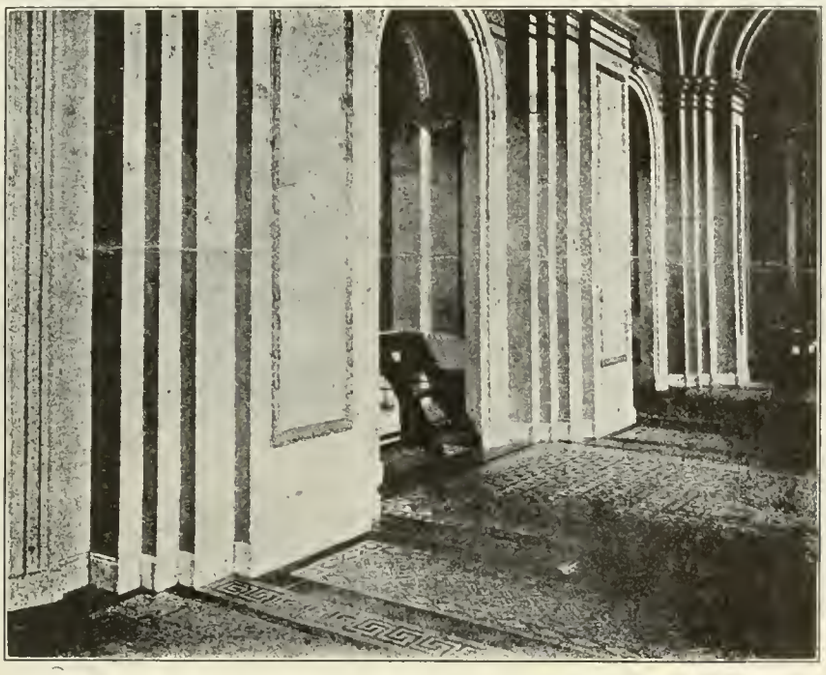

FIG. 1 . TILED FLOOR IN U. S. CAPITOL.

Nearly all our public buildings of to-day have floors made of inorganic materials. Marble, marble-mosaic, terrazzo, marble and slate, tile, and ceramic mosaic, are the most usual flooring materials. Of the other inorganic flooring materials, tile or ceramic mosaic, which is virtually tile in which the individual pieces are minute, is by far the most satisfactory flooring materials.

Marble is beautiful but too soft for use in floors that are subjected to such traffic. It is easily scratched by the nails of the shoe, which cause the deep indentations noticeable in marble steps and in the spaces just in front of ticket offices, newsstands and other places where the traffic on a marble floor is concentrated. The terrazzo floor, which is the cheapest kind of marble mosaic, has the further disadvantage of sometimes cracking. The sames holds true to a lesser extent of marble mosaic. The reason for this cracking is that the cement in which the marble mosaic or terrazzo is set has to be adulterated with lime, which so weakens the resistance of the cement that it is easily cracked by every expansion and contraction due to the ordinary changes in temperature.

The tile floor can, and should always be set in a pure cement mortar in which no lime is mixed. A properly laid tile or ceramic mosaic floor will outlast the building in which it is placed.

The public buildings in our National Capital at Washington afford excellent examples of the relative value of this flooring material. The floors of the Capitol, for instance, are laid with encaustic tiles which were brought over from England over fifty years ago. These floors are still in such an excellent state of preservation that were it not for the old-fashioned tile patterns one might suppose that they were laid but yesterday. Just southeast of the Capitol is the new building of the Library of Congress, completed only ten years ago at a cost of over six million dollars. The National Library, as it is often called, is admitted to be the most beautiful public building in Washington, and the most beautiful library building in the world. Its interior decoration is almost exclusively of marble, some of which was imported from Italy and other foreign countries. The floors are likewise of marble, marble mosaic, or terrazzo. Although the building is only ten years old, its elaborate marble mosaic and terrazzo floors are already marred by ug'y cracks and patches extending in all directions. Even some of the marble tile are cracked and more or less worn. Comparing these floors, which are only ten years old, with the tiled floors of the Capitol, which were laid over half a century ago, one sees at a glance the relative wearing qualities of the tile and the marble mosaic and terrazzo floor.

The Pension Office, which, as the building containing the largest floor area in Washington, ton, has been the scene of numerous Presidential inaugural balls, is covered with the clay tile, and, like the tiled floor of the Capitol, it is still intact.

The Treasury building, on the other hand, has marble floors, or floors made of marble and slate slabs. The floors of this building are in a very bad condition. Many of the marble slabs are cracked, worn and patched, and as marble is a far softer material than slate, the floors in which both materials are used present a surface composed of alternating concave and convex squares. Questioned by some newspaper reporter on the unsatisfactory condition of the marble floors in the public buildings in Washington, the supervising architect of the Treasury declared that not over one per cent. of the original marble floors of the Treasury Department remained in the building.

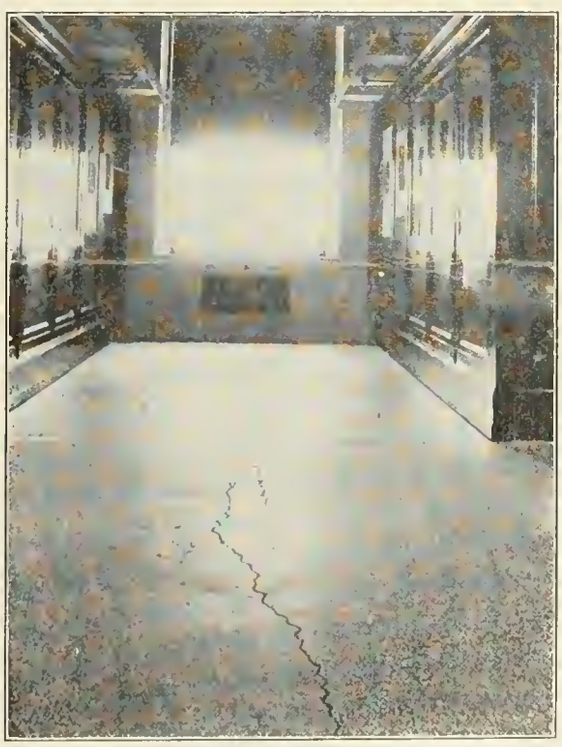

FIG. 3. CRACKS IN TERRAZZO FLOOR, ART ROOM, LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

The Patent Office has both tiled and marble floors. The tiled floors are in excellent condition, but the marble floors which are subjected to exactly the same use, are cracked, patched and worn. Marble is the most beautiful of all building materials, but it is too soft for floors that are subjected to much use. This fact has become so evident to those familiar with the public buildings in Washington, that it is doubtful if any which will be erected in the future will be supplied with marble, marble mosaic or terrazzo floor coverings.

FIG. 4. CRACKS IN MARBLE MOSAIC FLOOR, LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

Experience is mankind's best teacher and as far as flooring materials are concerned, one of her best lessons in building materials can be learned by the most casual observation of the floors of the public buildings in Washington.

THE TRIP UP THE SINGER TOWER.

The trip to the top of the new Singer tower offers as much interest to the layman as to the engineer.

Successful vertical transportation which has made the "Grand Canyon of Broadway" possible has reached its final development in the battery of high speed Otis Traction Elevators installed in this tower.

The visitor is at once struck on entering the elevator hall of the tower with the exceedingly elaborate signal system which indicates by small electric lamps the exact position of each of the eight cars. It is interesting to follow the upward course of one of the express elevators from the first to the fortieth floor by the flash of the small light as the car passes each floor.

The speed with which these lights come and go in marking the long upward flight makes one anticipate a disagreeably fast rush in the actual upward trip. On the trip itself these disagreeable anticipations are set at rest.

The movement of the car is so absolutely even and steady, the start and stop so absolutely devoid of jerk and wobble so often experienced in the older elevator installations that the second hand of one's watch is the sole indication that the upward flight is being made at the rate of six hundred feet per minute.

The maximum service could not be secured, however, unless it were possible for the starter not only to know where each car is at any moment but also to be able to instantly direct its movements. This is accomplished by a telephone installation, the transmitter of which the starter carries on his coat and he can instantly "plug in" on the line to any car, thus allowing instant communication with each of the elevator men while their cars are in motion.

This signal system and indicator system was installed by the Elevator Supply and Repair Co., under the designs and direction of the Otis Elevator Co., who, of course, were responsible for the success of the entire elevator installation.

The view from the balcony at the forty-first floor will well repay anyone the trouble of securing a permit. The Ramapo Mountains, Long Branch, Great South Bay, the Tappan Zee, are all easily seen. One cannot feel that he knows New York who has not seen the "map of the city at his feet."

After the return trip in the elevator one is reminded of Isaac Walton's sentence, "Undoubtedly God might have made a better berry than the strawberry, but undoubtedly God never did."

Better elevators may come in the future, but they are not here yet.

GROWTH OF AN INSURANCE BUSINESS.

Mr. Wm. T. Ritch, who has been a subscriber for the Record and Guide for twenty-two years, on May 1, took larger quarters in the Townsend Building. Mr. Ritch is one of the foremost men in liability insurance. He is one of the oldest members, in point of service, in the Building Trades Employers' Association. His constant connection and practical knowledge of the building industry has made him a specialist on liability insurance and contractors' bonds to all those allied with the building industry.

WILLIAM T. RITCH.

Mr. Ritch for many years was a large dealer in granite, and sole proprietor of the Greenwich Stone Quarries, as well as a contractor and expert on sea-wall and retaining-wall construction; but since the death of his father, some years ago, he has devoted all his time and energies to the development of liability insurance, and today, we understand, has the largest clientele of contractors and builders in this country.

Mr. Ritch has a way of his own in attending to his business, to the end that each risk is properly classified and receives his own personal attention. His offices, at 1123 Broadway, are handsome in general appearance and complete in detail. His organization of liability and fire experts is regarded as perfect.

A prominent engineer and contractor of this city, and a well-known member of the Building Trades Employers' Association, in writing to one of our largest contractors, stated: "All of us in the building line have had insurance men look after our liability, bonds, etc., but it was not until my friend Ritch took up this line of work that we really got any service or attention. In other words, if you have any insurance business that you want taken care of, in a square, conscientious, most economical and intelligent manner, Mr. Ritch is the man you are looking for." Similar words come from hundreds of patrons, who always feel the touch of Mr. Ritch's personality.

Through strict attention to business and conscientious work, Mr. Ritch has been appointed special agent of the largest liability and accident insurance company in the world, the Etna of Hartford. His connection with this company is such that his territory extends over the entire United States for contractors' risks. Mr. Ritch is also manager of the Madison Square General Agency of the National Surety Company for all forms of contractors' bonds.

PRINTS FOR RENTING PLANS.

When a new building is finished it frequently is of great assistance to the real estate firm, having charge of the renting, if they can get a limited number of plans of each floor at a moderate price. When thousands of copies are wanted, the requirements are quickly supplied by various firms, but when only twenty-five, fifty or one hundred prints are needed, and the copies should show in jet black ink on a pure white ground, the field for furnishing such prints is rather limited. By this "In-ko-graf" process it is possible to make, at reasonable figures, twenty-five, fifty or one hundred copies directly from the architect's drawings; which, for renting plans, are usually drawn on a scale of one-eighth inch to the foot.

This firm have recently added "In-ko-grafs" to their already extensive variety of sun and electric prints. By the various other blue, black and brown print processes any small quantity, without limit, can be produced from the tracings, but the "In-ko-graf" prints are particularly adapted where from twenty-five to one hundred copies, or more, are desired. Samples of the prints can be had for the asking, by addressing E. G. Soltmann, 125 East 42d st.

A LETTER FROM GEORGE RANGER.

Realty Records Co.:

Gentlemen—I have been a subscriber to your Real Estate Directory since the service was inaugurated, and take pleasure in stating to you that I have found it a great help in my business.

I HAVE MADE A NUMBER OF SALES WHICH I FEEL CONFIDENT WOULD NOT HAVE BEEN CONCLUDED HAD I NOT BEEN A SUBSCRIBER TO THE DIRECTORY.

Very truly yours,

GEORGE RANGER.

TALKS WITH THE OWNER OF THE BUILDING.

SECRET OF PLANNING A GOOD HOUSE.

CLEVER THINGS THAT HAVE MADE RANALD H. MACDONALD'S HOUSES SUCCESSFUL.

HOW many people build without any regard to the houses owned by their neighbors? Is is often the case that an architect draws plans without considering whether it harmonizes with those already constructed. Up to a few years ago the "city beautiful" was not taken into consideration. The principal thought was to get as much out of a given property as possible. With the cheaper class of houses this principle, unfortunately, holds good to-day, but the number of vacancies in houses of this character has opened the eyes of many builders. It has been found that this policy is an extremely shortsighted one.

Nothing will be lost if a building adds to the attractiveness of a street, even though the first cost is not the minimum. When the building of the block is completed, the value of all the houses is enhanced, and consequently the added profit is obtained when the holding is disposed of. Besides, tenants are more readily obtainable and the building, consequently, has not so many vacancies as one built on a less generous scale.

There are certain builders who are firm believers in the gaudy; who put plenty of gold leaf and stucco work where it will be seen, and imagine it will attract attention. This may be true of a certain class of tenants, when the house is new, but let the first glitter wear off, the occupants will quickly realize that their entrance hall is no longer attractive, and that they are doing without home comforts that their neighbors are enjoying. They soon find out that only a given amount of money will be spent on a house and that it is better to have a generous portion of it spent inside the apartment rather than in the hallways where the occasional visitor is the only one to see it.

ONE REASON FOR THE SUCCESS OF A PLAYHOUSE.

Ranald H. Macdonald, of 29 West 34th st, said the other day: "I attribute the success of the houses I have built to the fact that I have made them comfortable and always strive to have everything about them in good taste. Take for example, the Hudson Theater. That playhouse is quiet in color, which is restful to the eye of the spectator. This is especially gratifying after the glaring lights on the stage while the act is in progress. The apartment house that I built on Riverside Drive and 86th st has been a success from the start. The rooms are all large and commodious. I have striven to give the tenant more than he can procure elsewhere, and the result of my efforts have been appreciated and the vacancies are few and far between.

"The Hotel Walton, on Columbus av and 70th st, is another example. The exterior of the building is certainly plain, but I consider it in good taste. It is not so expensive as some in the city, but the result of giving people something worth while for their money has borne fruit. I believe there is a waiting list of about forty families desiring to rent suites there.

"There are few builders who look on the practical side of a proposition.

MAKE YOUR ROOMS FIT.

"I will explain a little trick that I put into use with good effect. I have little squares of paper cut out to scale, representing single and double beds, bureaus, tables, chairs and other articles of furniture generally in use.

"When I lay out a bed-chamber, for example, I am very sure that there is enough wall space to accommodate the larger pieces, such as I have just mentioned.

"Quite frequently I have found serious defects in plans. For example, in the house that I am about to build on Riverside Drive in one of the bedrooms the place allotted for the bureau was not large enough, and a portion of it would have come in front of a window. By my system, I found this out in time, so I could alter the plans and overcome the difficulty.

"The secret of a good house is to be practical in everything that you do. Please the tenants, and you may rest assured that the purchaser will be well satisfied."

SATISFYING TENANTS.

IN reply to a question, "What do tenants in office buildings want?" Mr. Clark S. Daley, who is associated with the United States Realty & Improvement Co., said:

"One of the first things that a prospective tenant looks to before renting an office is to see that there is plenty of light. This fact in itself assures sufficient air. It is my experience that people will put up with many inconveniences providing that they can have plenty of natural light. In many instances they will go a long way to get it. I personally consider these two things as important if not more so than having a building accessible.

"Take for example," continued Mr. Daley, "the Beaver Building. Everyone knows that it is successful. It has always been well rented. Why? Well, for one reason that the offices are well ventilated and are roomy. The building is not centrally located, generally speaking, but still it is well rented.

"Another striking example is the Whitehall Building. There is about 180,000 square feet in this structure. Something over 95 per cent. is occupied. Surely, while you can reach this property, it is not centrally located. Many of the tenants are in the coal business. They have seemed to choose this particular mercantile building for their centre. The average rental obtained in this structure is $1.75 per square foot.

"Give a man light so that he can see, and air so that he can breathe, and he will overlook many shortcomings."

The sliding doors hung on trolley hangers which one so frequently finds with us are practically non-existent, and large openings are filled with many folded-doors, wasting a large amount of room, while many other doors are built in the French fashion, so that the wall covering practically hides them.

Cold and Uncomfortable.

To the average American these apartments are rather cold and uncomfortable, as a steam plant is rarely installed, and most of the rooms are heated by a tall tile stove reaching almost to the ceiling of the room. Hot water supply is not considered essential, and a general system for supplying hot water is practically unknown, most of the bathrooms having fuel heaters, in which a special fire has to be built before obtaining the supply. No self-respecting Viennese family attends to its laundry work in its home, so that washtubs are never found, and the kitchen supply of hot water is only obtained through being heated in vessels on the range or by duplicating the bathroom apparatus.

The electrical equipment, although found in all the houses of the modern type, is far inferior to that usually found in America and usually consists of simple outlets in the walls or ceilings, with few switches or base plugs.

It is the habit of the landlord to provide as little interior finish as possible, and the tenant rents his apartment undecorated and with few, if any, of the fixtures which contribute to the convenience of the average American flat dweller. When the tenant leaves he takes his plumbing fixtures, lighting fixtures and frequently the finishing hardware with him, and all decorations of every kind such as wall covering must be put on at the tenant's expense. This naturally leads to a permanency of occupancy unknown in New York, where the tenant practically makes no investment upon moving into his apartment, and in Vienna leases of apartments of the better class generally run for at least five years.

Notwithstanding the meagre finish provided by the landlord, there are many apartments of the better class decorated with a lavishness quite equal to that found in American cities, but upon inquiry one finds that the tenant has drawn upon his own pocketbook for the decorations, and even for a considerable part of what seems to be the permanent trim, and in connection with this trim it is not unusual to find sofas, sideboards and other pieces of furniture which are usually of a movable character with us, built in with the decorative scheme.

Rents in Vienna average forty to fifty per cent below New York prices, but when a tenant moves into a new apartment of the better class the outlay required to prepare his rooms for occupancy is apt to be so large that he does not feel it necessary to have new decorations every few years, as is the case with the average New Yorker. He is not continually on the move looking for the latest improvements, and when he does change his abode his moving van is apt to look like a wrecker's truck, and he has left nothing but the bare walls behind.

—In the case of Krulewitch against Tenement House Commissioner Edmond J. Butler, tried the past week, Justice Greenbaum refused to grant a mandamus compelling the Commissioner to approve plans for two apartment houses on 145th st. The feature of objection in the plans was an archway over a street court. The tenement law provides that courts must be open from the ground to the sky.

THE IDEAL HOUSE

ITS CONSTRUCTION, EQUIPMENT AND ARCHITECTURAL FORM

WHAT is it that makes a house ideal? In the first place it should be so constructed that it may offer the maximum of resistance to wear and tear and to the elements.

Secondly, the house should be so planned and equipped as to insure good health and comfort.

Thirdly, it should be agreeable to the eye, to the aesthetic sense; it should be of nice proportions and should look suited to its purpose.

Of these three considerations the first is perhaps the most important, because without it the value of the other two is either impaired or entirely destroyed.

The most important part in the structure, or the part that forces itself in our attention first, is the walls. Of what materials and how are they built? Well, we may use combustible material or incombustible material, according to our taste and means. There is wood, which may be treated chemically or stained to prevent its rotting, or to make it fire-resisting. It may then be covered with plaster or cement, the wood being exposed here and there in geometrical patterns. This is known as English half-timbered work. If we choose, we may build the walls of brick, or stone, or of cement and broken stone called "concrete."

Of course some stones are better suited for foundations and base work, while others are to be preferred in the upper parts of the wall for other reasons. Granite, for example, is very useful as a capstone because of its high crushing strength, while it should not be used on the face in preference to other good building stones, because it does not resist fire well on account of its high percentage in water of crystallization. Marble and limestone are used to better advantage in the upper part of the wall, because the surrounding soil would cause objectionable discolorations, while brick and terra cotta are sometimes preferred for the whole wall for their tightness.

It isn't always necessary to employ an expensive face brick or stone to obtain a pleasing effect; a cheap and coarse brick or a field stone will often answer the purpose as well or better.

VENEERED WALLS.

As for the manner of laying up the walls, they may be of the same material all the way through, as in Greek buildings, or they may be of some rough body, as concrete or common brick, covered with some more decorative and expensive brick, stone, or cement, like the Roman buildings. The latter method is now used chiefly because it is cheaper. How are these two parts of the wall to be joined to form a structural unit? In either of two ways: the two materials may either be allowed to overlap in places, "bonded," as it is called, or the union may be effected by means of iron steps called "anchors." But sometimes it is undesirable to have a connection between the body and the veneer of the wall, for instance, in a case where a wall is likely to shrink or to settle considerably. In this case the veneer is apt to be injured. So much for exterior walls.

Now for interior walls and partitions. There are a hundred and one varieties of patented devices that may be used. Hollow tile, terra cotta blocking is much preferred on account of ease of construction as well as for adaptability to receive nails, thus doing away with the use of grounds. Partitions may be roughly separated into four groups: stud and plaster partitions, those in which terra blocks are used, those composed of cement and metal lath and lastly those made of plaster blocks or other compositions. The various patented plaster block partitions set in between angle irons tees or channels come in very handy when the saving of space in a room is of value, as they may be made as thin as two inches. We may, of course, if we absolutely desire to shut off one part of the house from another, build walls similar to the outside or frame walls. But this latter arrangement involves the disadvantage of more or less fixing the plans of the lower stories if the house be more than one story high, for the interior walls must be supported in some way. What about a girder? This immediately brings us to the use of steel as a structural material for the walls.

Problems in construction formerly considered absolutely impossible, e. g., our tall office buildings, have been successfully solved by using steel as the structural material. Towering steel cages have been erected in an incredibly short time, and as rapidly dressed with the enclosing brick and stone, which may either rest on the cage at intervals, as a curtain wall, or it may carry its own weight, as a supporting wall.

Let us now see what we are offered in the way of floors: they may be entirely of wood, or brick and steel, or of concrete and steel, the steel being in the nature of supporting members, such as girders and beams placed at regular intervals and resting either on steel members or directly on the walls. There is another system of floor construction consisting of concrete and steel, in which the steel is disposed as a network through the entire conglomerate. The use of concrete as a building material dates back to the early Roman times. The Romans, however, did not realize the advantages of reinforcing the concrete with some material possessing greater tensile strength. Or, was it that their architecture, depending chiefly on the arch for its stability, did not make it necessary for them to depend very much on the tensile strength of masonry? Many people are still skeptical as to the value of reinforced concrete construction, but it must be said in justice to its promoters, that some excellent results have been achieved by its use. The system has also been applied to columns and walls with much success, in fact the matter has been taken up to such an extent that the Department of Buildings has recently had to make new laws governing the allowable stresses of the two materials used in this new way. You would naturally ask: What are the advantages of the system?

It is somewhat cheaper than any other form of construction, it is economical of space; a very strong floor can be built of reinforced concrete with a thickness of only about four inches, where twelve inches would not cover the thickness for another construction. So it is evident if a house is of many stories, it would be possible by using reinforced concrete construction to get in an extra story without adding anything to the height of the building. The writer had occasion to see the truth of this statement tested in an apartment house in which the height was by law limited to ninety feet. By the use of reinforced concrete it was possible to obtain a nine story building, whereas eight stories would have been the limit attainable with another type of construction. It is only fair to say, however, that the safety of reinforced concrete construction depends largely on the competency and integrity of the contractor.

Now, having built the walls inside and out, and the floors, let us put on the roof. Here again there is a wide choice of materials and of the ways of putting them together. We may use wooden beams and boards covered with shingles, with tin or copper, or with tar paper and gravel; or we may prefer a more lasting construction of steel members and terra cotta blocks or book tiles; or we may want to use the roof as a promenade, in which case there are many kinds of face brick that are invaluable. Plastic cement and felt in alternate layers also makes a good durable roof. Then there are clay tiles, metal tiles, slate tiles and others. We may fasten the shingles with the ordinary wrought-iron nail, we may prefer a galvanized iron nail because of its non-rusting quality, or we may be willing to pay for the very best copper nail. We may fasten our tiles by nailing them together, or they may be filled in with cement, or soldered.

Now let us for a moment go from the roof to the cellar of our house and let us examine the foundations generally hidden from view, but always of the utmost importance; we may make them of the same material as the walls if we choose, i. e., of brick, of stone or of concrete and steel if our house is very heavy. We may find it most economical of space to use steel grillage foundations, or safest if we employ cantilever steel foundations, or inverted brick arches. Nor are strength and economy of material and expense the only factors that determine the value of the foundations. Good foundations are so designed that the various and isolated parts are equally loaded or nearly so, also that the eccentric stresses shall be properly resisted, for if these very important points of construction be neglected, the house is likely to settle unevenly, show unsightly cracks or even tumble down. Such defects are not infrequent and to them have been traced many catastrophes.

WILL YOU PUT IN AN ELEVATOR?

Having now built the framework and roof of the house, let us design the means of communication between the several tiers; here again we have a choice. If our house consists of many floors we may find elevators very convenient and necessary in case of fire. If we prefer to walk we can get along with staircases alone. The elevator question of to-day offers many solutions; there is the now antiquated slow steam elevator, several kinds of hydraulic systems. One kind forces the water up by steam power, while another achieves its end by means of an electric pump, and a third variety, the Plunger or Direct Lift. This elevator requires boring a hole under the centre of the shaft as deep as the height to which it is proposed to run the elevator.

And lastly, there is the Electric elevator, a most highly developed type of elevator engineering. Hydraulic elevators are often impractical because the pipes take up too much room. The Plunger, however, escapes this criticism and is largely used in consequence. But electric motive power is so cheap and so easy to obtain that we may prefer it for these reasons. Perhaps we have already used electric elevators to hoist our materials to the upper floors. If we want to dispense with the services of the elevator attendant a car with push button control and automatic stop will answer.

Then there is the question of staircases. Perhaps a moving stairs would be desirable. If we have a fixed staircase of what materials shall we build it? Shall we use wooden strings and treads and risers, or we may think cast or wrought iron strings with marble or slate treads and risers would be better. Or shall we have a concrete stairs reinforced with steel rods for the strings? Safety treads would be very useful, especially in the dark places on the stairs. We may have them of metal let into the treads, or of rubber fastened between metal strips or the treads themselves may be corrugated.

Let us suppose we have completed the necessary structure of the house; the result is perhaps not very beautiful, nor should one care to live in it in this condition. We must heat or cool it, we must light it, we must ventilate it, and we must have plumbing in it.

THE HEATING OF THE HOUSE.

Shall we heat it by furnace? No; a furnace isn't very likely to heat all the rooms equally. Besides, it raises a dust, despite dust flues, whenever the fire is tended. Perhaps steam or hot water would suit us better, but radiators sometimes make such awful noises and leak all over the floor, and you can never get just the right temperature; you either roast with excessive heat, open a window wide and catch a cold, or else you freeze because it takes so long to get up steam, besides radiators and steam pipes are such unsightly objects in a room. But there is the vacuum system which has now been so perfected and cheapened as to make it practicable. It has long been known to heating engineers that water boils at about 98° F., if the atmospheric pressure be removed, i. e., in vacuum. The difficulty has been to produce the vacuum cheaply. Many heating firms are now prepared to install the system at a very reasonable price. But perhaps we shall have to go back to the furnace, the steam or the hot water heater, for these have likewise reached a high stage of perfection. It is possible to maintain a uniform temperature by a system of compressed air regulators or thermostats. It sometimes becomes necessary in very cold weather to introduce artificially into the air the moisture which has been extracted, by heat, from it. This is accomplished by humidostats which act automatically to moisten the air when it reaches a certain degree of dryness.

But, perhaps, on the whole, you may prefer, for hygienic reasons, a system of heating which, instead of supplying heated air to the room heats by indirect radiation the air from out of doors.

KITCHEN, LAUNDRY AND BATH.

For cooking, for the laundry and the bath there is again a great choice of devices and conveniences. Of course we can cook by means of the old coal stove; but gas ranges are so much more convenient, you light them and in a minute the oven is red-hot and you may cook with more convenience, as there are no ashes to be cleaned out every other day. Electric heaters and stoves are very convenient, though they cost more to operate; they are economical of space and easy to manage; you simply push the button, they do the rest. For the bath, the kitchen or the laundry where hot water is often wanted quickly, we have our choice of the various instantaneous and automatic hot-water heaters which may be connected to gas and water supply in any particular part of the house; or the entire house may be supplied from a central apparatus connected directly to the house, gas, and water supply. The advantages of these heaters are many:

In the first place, they are so convenient. You may have hot water in any part of the house at a minute's notice. The instant a hot water faucet is opened, the automatic valve operates, opening the gas supply, and hot water is delivered at once. By shutting off the hot-water faucet you automatically shut off the gas supply to the heater, the fuel expense stops, and you pay only for the hot water you use. These heaters would be welcomed by servants in the laundry during the hot summer.

POINTERS ABOUT LIGHTING.

So much for heating, now for lighting. Sunlight is, of course, let into the house through ordinary glass panes, but there are some parts of the house to which the sun's rays do not penetrate sufficiently to enable one to work comfortably. In such places we ought to have prisms to transmit the light; their use is really an economy; the prisms involve no expense save their cleaning. The possibilities of lighting dark places by the use of prism glass are little realized by the general public; it is the architect and the builder who must impart the fact.

In the matter of artificial light we all realize the necessity of doing something. Here again we may use oil, gas, gasoline, acetylene or electricity. Oil is cheap but not very hygienic, it vitiates the air, and gas is more luminous, especially when incandescent burners are used. If our house be in the country we can manufacture our own gasolene or acetylene gas for lighting. Gasoline is obtainable everywhere in the open market and is economical; with a consumption of about three cubic feet of the gas an hour it is possible to get a fifty candle burner light, while city gas with an hourly consumption of four cubic feet will produce only a sixteen candle power light. Acetylene gas costs about as much as city gas at 80 cents per thousand, or about three times as much as gasolene, while electric light comes as high as from five to ten times the price of gasolene. But electric light is such a convenience, it is cool in summer, does not pollute the air, it will illuminate dark corners where other lights would be dangerous on account of fire.

Let us now consider a plumbing and drainage system. If we are in the city limits of New York the law compels us to use the back-air or vent system. This system is a good one for the plumber, more material is required, almost double the amount of piping as when anti-syphonic traps are used instead of vent pipes. Besides the single pipe system is more hygienic than the back-air system, for the only barrier between the discharge pipe and the air of the room is a small quantity of water in the "S" shaped trap near the outlet. This water often evaporates rapidly or it syphons out by some action of the vent pipe. Instead of the little tank over each fixture we may have an automatic flushing valve which allows a fixed amount of water (which may be varied to suit different conditions) to flow directly from the roof or attic tank through the bowl, thus doing away with the often foul woodwork and the noise of the water down the flush pipe, and makes an almost noiseless closet. In the bathroom we may also have shower baths, and sitz tubs. They may be of enameled metal or of porcelain.

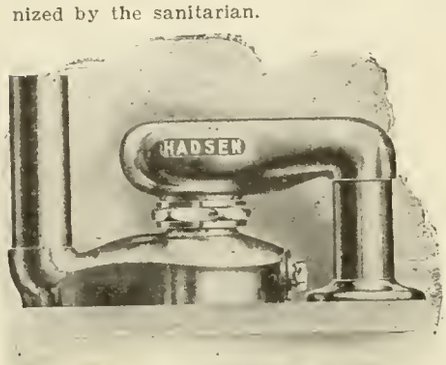
The floor may be of cement, of terrazza, of mosaic or of glass tiles. The walls and ceiling may be treated in the same material. Here may be pointed out the desirability of having all fixtures with their fittings so exposed that they may be constantly examined and cleaned. Some of these devices are self-cleaning and ventilating; there is a patented trap, for instance, that has an attachment like a miniature rotary fan driven by a direct-connected turbine water wheel, the whole in one small nickel-plated casting attached to the bowl. The water for the wheel is obtained from the water supply of the closet. The water, after having passed the wheel is returned to the bowl by the same pipe by which the fan exhausts the air from the bowl. The foul air may be driven off to any distance outside of the house.

Ventilation also is very important to the health of the occupants of the house. Shall window ventilators, louvres or artificial means be used? If the rooms are large the latter will perhaps be more satisfactory. We can make the heating system co-operate to ventilate the house. This may be accomplished by a sort of hot-room arrangement maintaining a uniform temperature at all times and introducing the heated air into the room in such a way as to cause a pressure which will force the foul air out through ducts leading to the outside atmosphere. This will give a good system of ventilation as well as a model heating system.

In the laundry a clothes dryer would be a convenient fixture. The clothes could be washed in a machine and be ironed by machinery if desired. The advantage of these devices is great if one happens not to have a large back yard, and there is a lot of clothes to be washed and laundered in a short time.

The house being now as safe and as comfortable as we know how to make it, let us see what can be done toward making it more pleasing to the eye. If we were going to live in it I suppose we should take more interest in interior embellishments than in exterior beauty.

If we are artistically inclined, which we all imagine we are, well chosen simple but effective composition and details will please us; ample passages, well lighted staircases and large rooms are essential. Of course in the decorative treatment our tastes may vary; one person may like simple and homely things, while another may prefer a more ornate and lavish treatment. We may differ on the question of style, but that is only natural, and does not affect the quality of the result so long as we keep to what is reasonable and consistent. If, for instance, we think our house should have an ornate cornice, it would be bad taste and unreasonable to employ tin because it is cheaper and more easily moulded, and could be made to resemble stone. We should cut our coat according to the cloth; if we can't afford to pay for an elaborately carved cornice in stone we should choose some cheaper material and treat it frankly and adopt some other design. The commonest offense against architectural honesty is to treat some cheap and inferior material to resemble something more precious, but we occasionally find some one reversing the order by treating stone as though it were wood.



The same theory of reason against sham might be extended to the treatment of the outside of the building in relation to its inside, but with the many restrictions placed upon the architect by the owner, and sometimes by the building laws, it becomes almost impossible for the architect to express honestly artistically on the exterior of the house what exists in its structure. He is compelled to resort to compromise and shams; deep soffits are created when the real walls are only a foot or sixteen inches deep, and incredibly thin lintels carry enormous loads over impossible spans. It is very difficult to say just how far the architect should go in these deceptions; it must remain largely a personal matter. Under existing conditions we shall have to content ourselves if we get a house reasonably well planned, fairly good looking and expressive of its purpose. But there is no excuse for its not being well built, healthy or conveniently equipped with the many patented devices for which this age, and particularly this country, is so noted.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE SPECIFICATION ROOM-STANDARD AND NOVEL BUILDING MATERIALS.

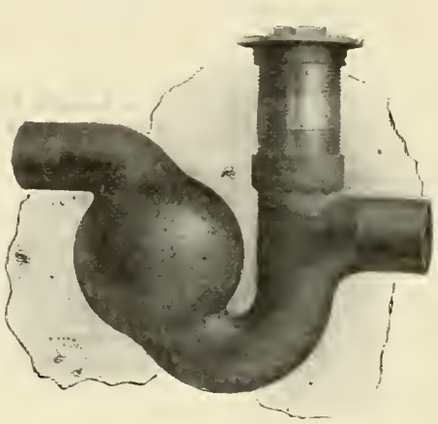
TWO GOOD FORMS OF BATH AND BASIN TRAPS.

The Hadsen bath and basin traps put on the market by the Haines, Jones & Cadbury Company, Philadelphia, have been designed by two practical plumbers, men who are familiar with the actual problems and conditions which confront the mechanic in his every-day work.

They include many new and desirable features which will be immediately recognized by the sanitarian.

The Hadsen Bath Trap.
1½-Inch, Nickel Plated.

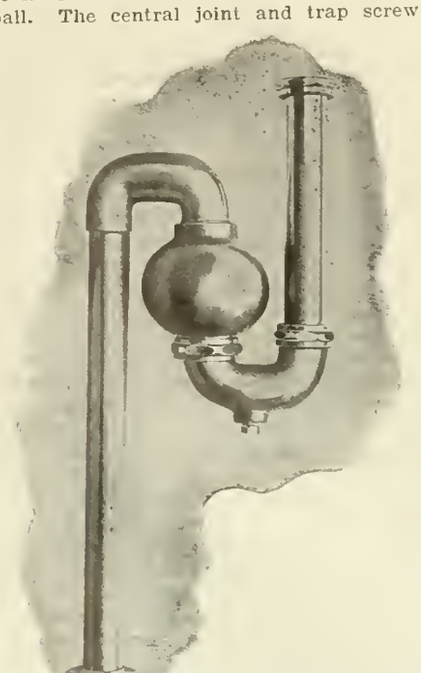
The ease and quickness with which they can be put in place make them economical to install. They are manufactured with great care as to material and workmanship.



The inlet pipe is furnished either 1⅜ inch or 1½ inch outside diameter to suit varying sizes of bath wastes. 1½ inch always furnished unless otherwise specified.

SOME OF ITS ADVANTAGES.

It is placed above the floor. It connects direct to the bath waste. This frequently saves a long, foul and unsanitary waste pipe, as well as two wiped joints. It is not liable to freeze. Its high level prevents the return flow of sewage from other fixtures connected to the same waste pipe. Can be taken apart for inspection. No weakening of the floor by cutting joists. No floor flange to adjust to floor levels. No interior partitions or ball. The central joint and trap screw are covered by the water seal, preventing the leakage of sewer gas. The seal being large rather than deep insures rapid flow through the trap and quick drainage of the bath tub. The swivel center joints allow latitude in roughing-in. The trap is set at the same time as the tube, not with the rough material. It is especially convenient when used with cement floors or "fireproof construction."



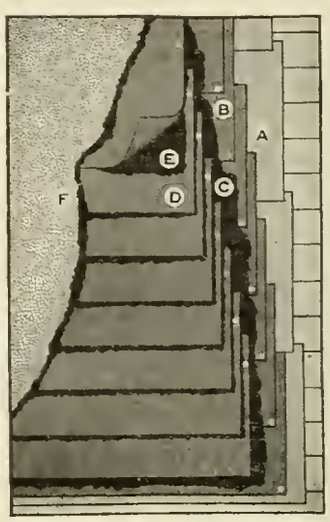
The "Hajoca" traps for lavatories, sinks and laundry tubs are also noteworthy in many features.

This trap is absolutely non-siphoning. It has been approved by the health departments of several cities after being subjected to the most severe tests. The body or "globe" of the trap is of sufficient size to hold a large amount of water, and a safe water seal will always remain in the trap, even under the most unfavorable conditions. In addition to the clean-out screw, the trap may be easily taken apart at the joint below the globe, thus giving access to every part for cleaning. The trap has ample adjustment, making it easy to set up, and rendering the accurate location of waste pipes unnecessary. These features, together with its handsome appearance, make the "Hajoca" an ideal trap for every requirement.

"HAJOCA" BATH TRAP.

A distinctive feature of this trap is that the clean-out is on the house side of the seal so that no sewer gas can escape into the bathroom, even if the trap-screw is not screwed up tight. The "Hajoca" is made of cast brass in 1½ inch size, with large globe, like that on the "Hajoca" basin trap, and is non-siphoning. It is easily adjusted to any floor level by varying the length of the nipple.

"HAJOCA" BASIN OR SINK TRAP.
Sizes 1¼ in., 1½ in.



Roofing Guarantees.

An important recent development of the roofing trade has been the guarantee feature. These guarantees have both valuable and misleading features. At its best a roofing guarantee is and must necessarily be only an agreement to repair for a specified period any leaks that may develop. What a buyer wants is a roofing that really protects. A class of roofs that answers this discription is, namely, roofs of coal-tar pitch, felt and slag or gravel, laid along the lines of the Barrett specification. Such roofs have been giving good service for over fifty years. It is claimed that a roof laid according to the Barrett specification, although guaranteed for only ten years, will last twenty or thirty years without repairs.

THE BARRETT SPECIFICATION (Over Boards)
(To follow description of Roof Sheathing.)

Over the foregoing shall be laid a five (5) ply Coal-Tar Pitch Felt, and Slag or Gravel Roof to be constructed as follows:

The Rosin-Sized Sheathing Paper or Unsaturated Felt to be used shall weigh not less than five (5) pounds per one hundred square feet.

The Tarred Felt shall be Barrett Specification Felt weighing not less than fourteen (14) pounds per one hundred square feet, single thickness.

The Pitch shall be Barrett Specification Coal Tar Pitch distilled direct from American Coal Tar, and there shall be used not less than one hundred and twenty (120) pounds (gross weight) per one hundred square feet of completed roof.

The nailing shall be done with three-penny barbed-wire roofing nails driven through tin disc.

The Slag or Gravel shall be of such a grade that no particles shall exceed five-eighths (⅝) of an inch or be less than one-fourth (¼) of an inch in size. It shall be dry and free from dust or dirt. In cold weather it must be heated immediately before using. Not less than three hundred (300) pounds of Slag or four hundred (400) pounds of Gravel shall be used per one hundred square feet.

The materials shall be used as follows:

First lay one thickness of Rosin-Sized Sheathing Paper or Unsaturated Felt (A) lapping each sheet one inch over the preceding one, and nailing only so often as may be necessary to hold in place until covered with the Tarred Felt (B), and the nailing may be omitted entirely if practicable.

Over the Rosin-Sized Sheathing or Unsaturated Felt lay two (2) full thicknesses of tarred felt (B), lapping each sheet seventeen (17) inches over the preceding one, and nailing along the exposed edges of the sheets only so often as may be necessary to hold the sheets in place until the remaining Felt can be applied.

Over the entire surface of the Felt thus laid spread a uniform coating of Pitch (C), mopped on. Then lay three (3) full thicknesses of Tarred Felt (D), lapping each sheet twenty-two (22) inches over the preceding one, and nailing, as laid, every three (3) feet, about eight (8) inches from the upper edge.

NOTE.—The above specification is designed for roofs having a pitch not exceeding three (3) inches to the foot.

Acetylene Rules Modified.

NATIONAL BOARD OF FIRE UNDERWRITERS PERMITS INSIDE INSTALLATION OF PERMITTED GENERATORS. ACETYLENE NOW REGARDED A "COMMON ILLUMINANT."

THE rules formulated by the National Board of Fire Underwriters for the acetylene industry have hitherto required outside installation of acetylene generators, and while, as a matter of fact, in by far the largest part of the United States this rule has not been insisted upon, in certain limited sections it has been rigidly enforced.

The existence of a rule prohibiting the installation of an acetylene generator in an insured building was a constant menace and handicap to the industry, and its enforcement in some sections and not in others placed insurance companies in the inconsistent position of insuring property in one State under conditions which it would not accept in another. An investigation by the National Board, as to the exact condition of the industry, disclosed the fact that, in those sections where inside installation had been permitted, acetylene was proving itself to be a safer illuminant than those which it replaced.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters, at its executive committee meeting recently held in New York City, after considering the various favorable reports submitted to it by its various committees, amended the rules covering the installation and use of acetylene generators, by striking out such words as prohibited inside installation under all conditions and substituted the following: "Generators, especially in closely built-up districts, should preferably be placed outside of insured buildings in generator houses constructed and located in compliance with Rule 9."

It will be seen at once that, while the National Board recommends outside installation as being ideal, in place of the absolute prohibition, the rules now mean that in all outlying districts generators may be placed inside, but in closely built-up districts it recommended outside installation as its preference.

Even where outside installation is preferred the rule regarding construction of generator houses has been modified, and where such houses formerly had to be fireproof, constructed of brick and located as far as practicable from other buildings, such houses may now be located adjoining an insured building, and fireproof construction is not required.

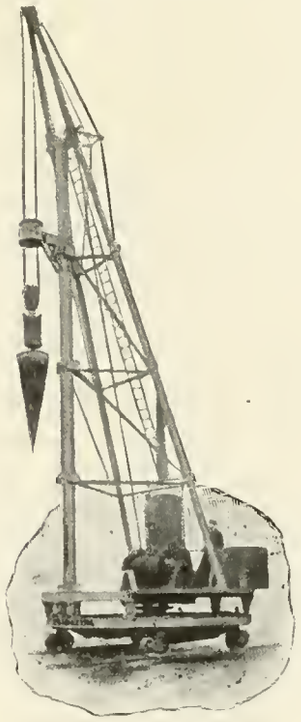
It will be seen that the above modifications are radical and are a most favorable indication of the fact that inventive genius and a close adherence to the rules of the National Board of Fire Underwriters have received a deserved recognition.

The acetylene industry has been subject to the rules of the National Board from its inception and has loyally endeavored to meet all insurance requirements, not only in letter but in spirit. The result has been a vast expansion of the industry and a growing safety of the illuminant until the above modifications were deemed warranted by the National Board.

The investigations which were set on foot for the purpose of ascertaining facts brought forth the conclusion that, in view of the fact that the number of acetylene generators installed inside of buildings had very largely increased in the past few years, while, at the same time, the fire records seemed to show that the number of fires ascribed to such installations had, if anything, decreased, the rules of the National Board covering the construction and installation of acetylene apparatus had apparently safeguarded the hazard to a very great extent.

The fact was demonstrated that acetylene illumination generally replaces methods which entail an equal if not a greater hazard. Consideration was given to the fact that outside installation of acetylene generators was frequently impracticable on account of climatic conditions.

The facts disclosed by the investigation, made a modification of the rules inevitable, and it was agreed that the time had arrived when the rule as to outside installation might be properly modified so that it would recommend outside location as being the ideal location, yet permitting under proper restrictions the location of the generator inside of an insured building.



The rules of the National Board are not mandatory, and in some sections of the country the rule regarding outside installation was not followed.

Compressol System of Foundations.

The records of the last fifty years show important progress in all the arts of construction and especially in the process of building foundations. The use of steel for piles, open and pneumatic caissons, and later the concrete pile, all give excellent foundations, as permanent as the structure they carry.

The Compressol System consists in mechanically perforating the ground while compressing it vertically and laterally, then filling the hole obtained with concrete. This concrete is thoroughly tamped, thus obtaining a strong pillar, of dimensions proportioned to the load that has to be supported, and to the soil through which it penetrates.

The design of a foundation in which the "Compressol System" is to be used is very simple. As each pillar can carry from sixty to ninety tons, according to the nature and depth of the strata upon which it is to rest, the location of this pillar is easily determined. The pillars will have to be carried up to the foundation walls and capped with reinforced concrete beams, girders or slabs on which the structural part of the building rests.

DRIVING APPARATUS.

The pillars are constructed mechanically and in a simple way with the following apparatus:

1. A machine similar to a pile-driver which lifts the rammer to the required heights.

2. An automatic fastener, to which the rammer is suspended and by which it is hoisted to the required height, where it automatically releases its grip and, falling freely, perforates the soil. The fastener is then lowered and again grasps the rammer to repeat the operation until a hole is driven down to good bearing strata.

3. Three different rammers as follows: (a) A perforating rammer of conical form weighing two tons and having a diameter of 2 ft. 10 ins. at the upper base. It falls freely from a height of about 30 ft. with the point directly towards the soil. (b) A tamping rammer of olive shape weighing two tons and having a diameter of 2 ft. 10 ins. at the upper base. It falls from the same height as the perforating rammer, with the point towards the soil. (c) A testing rammer in the form of a truncated cone, weighing one and one-half tons, and having a large base, 2 ft. 8 ins. in diameter. This rammer, contrary to the other two, is suspended by a point.

A COMPLETED PILLAR.

This last named rammer acts as a wedge in falling and compresses the soil laterally. It thus forms a very strong sheeting to the hole and prevents the earth from crumbling down. Should the soil be water-logged, the lateral compression will, in most cases, keep the water out. This can be assisted by the use of a suitable waterproof material. It is only necessary to put a certain amount of clay in the hole after each fall of the rammer, and this will be compressed laterally against the sides of the hole, thus forming a sheeting, which will temporarily prevent the water from welling in.

TAMPING AND FILLING.

The hole, having been perforated to the solid strata, the filling is quickly done. First, boulders are deposited and rammed in by means of the tamping rammer. Then concrete is poured in and also heavily tamped in the same way. Sometimes one layer of concrete will require only one blow of the rammer; sometimes three or four. This depends entirely on the compressibility of the adjacent soil and whether the filling material spreads out laterally or not. It can be seen that automatically a uniform strength of the pillar and a uniform compression of the adjoining soil is obtained, insuring great safety for the foundation. If the pillar goes through a soft strata, the filling material will penetrate it and form an encroachment on the lower and stronger strata, the amount of lateral friction between the pillar and the soil is greatly increased, and this adds to the strength of the construction.

The foundations of the French Government Printing House at Paris were laid after this manner.

BRICK.—Why does not speculative building resume? For two years, ever since the memorable crash in brick foretold the panic, the reason has been—no money. But money is easy again.

Take the word of one of the largest firms of operators that "money is easy," but that there is now another reason for non-building.

"It is simply because there are too many vacancies," said the head of this firm. "There has been an over-production. Large numbers of houses are half vacant, or nearly so. Families are moving into smaller apartments or out of the city, to curtail expenses. There are many out of work. We must fill the houses we have first."

Said another: "Money is easy, but there is no market. Houses of 50-ft. frontage and 5 stories high can be built for five or six thousand dollars less than two years ago. This works out disadvantageously to the builder who has not been able to clean up. To state a case, I loaned $69,000 on a 50-ft. house that I can reproduce today for $65,000. You see where the builder comes out."

Then suppose he has not settled in full with his sub-contractors? But that is another story. It has unpleasant features, and some say it is partly a reason why more operations are not started.

The inactivity as manufacturing factors of a number of brick works contributes something to the success of the plan of the Manufacturers' Association to curtail the output, keep down the shipments and store the product until the market improves, which is only a question of time. Advices from up the river state that there is the general idea among manufacturers that if capital is not alarmed by the attitude of the conventions of the two large parties toward social and financial questions, and that if the nominees for President are progressive men and not out-and-out radicals without the saving element of some conservatism in their make-up, that all lines of trade will improve at once. The notion of some is to make brick and hold it so as to be ready to supply the demand when the inevitable turn in the business tide comes.

The controversy over rates on brick is again to be passed upon by the interstate commission. Complaint has been filed by the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, which represents 65 establishments in various parts of the United States, who do 90 per cent. of the brick business of the country, against the Baltimore & Ohio and many other carriers.

The association complains that freight charges on its products have been increased from 10 to 30 per cent., and alleges that the increase is unreasonable, arbitrary and unlawful.

CEMENT.—The houses engaged in the metropolitan trade seem to have made up their minds to expect a month of mediocrity and to endure it with as good a quality of complacency as they can summon. Prices are set at a mark at which they can be maintained, and less than which it would not increase the requirement to offer cement.

Mr. Moyer, of the Vulcanite Company, holds with the general opinion that investors as a body are waiting for the political nominations.

It is estimated in the trade that about two-thirds of the mill, or kiln, capacity in the Eastern sections of the country is being operated at the present time. Ordinarily shipments at this season of the year exceed the current rate of production, but the present mill situation is an exception.

On January 1st of this year there was under construction 87 new kilns in plants that will become factors this year. The number of cement kilns operated in 1907 was 876, a gain of 83 over the preceding year. The average output per kiln in 1907 was 55,691 bbls.

As all the new kilns are 100 ft. or more in length, and as many old kilns are being lengthened, it seems entirely safe to estimate that the average possible output per kiln per year is now considerably over 60,000 bbls. Assuming for convenience that this average is now about 62,000 bbls. per kiln, it will be possible to make Portland cement during the latter part of 1908 at the rate of 5,000,000 bbls. per month, or 60,000,000 bbls. per year. In view of existing financial conditions, however, it would appear probable that the cement production of 1908 will not exceed that of 1907.

On examining the cement statistics for a series of years, it will be seen that the output of Portland cement has so far shown an increase each year, rising from 42,000 bbls. in 1880 to 335,500 bbls. in 1890, to 8,482,020 bbls. in 1900, and to 48,785,390 bbls. in 1907. The natural cement production, on the other hand, reached its maximum in 1899, with an output of 9,868,179 bbls. Since that year it has shown an almost continuous and quite rapid decrease annually, until now it has become a relatively unimportant factor in the cement situation.

After repeated postponements the Isthmian Canal Commission opened proposals for furnishing 4,500,000 barrels of Portland cement for construtions work on the Isthmus, the deliveries to begin about December 1 at United States ports, or at Isthmian ports in ships of American or foreign register. Twenty-five proposals in all were made, including the big American corporations and a number of European cement manufacturing concerns. All bidders who proposed to deliver the entire amount at Isthmian ports offered to do so in foreign bottoms. Four American firms submitted proposals to supply the entire amount, and a fifth, the Commonwealth Cement Company, of Virginia, offered its property to the Government on condition that it be paid a royalty of 25 cents a barrel, the plant to revert to the company when the supply necessary had been delivered. On this basis it was claimed the cement would cost the Government not more than 88 cents a barrel at the mill, or $1.28 delivered at Colon.

Bids of firms offering to supply the entire amount included the following:

Lehigh Portland Cement Company and the Alpha Portland Cement Company, of Allentown, Pa., joint bid, delivered at Colon, $8,212,500; delivered United States ports, $6,412,500.

F. J. Duggan, 1133 Broadway, New York, delivered at Colon, $7,830,000.

Santa Cruz Portland Cement Company, of San Francisco, delivered on dock at Portland, Oregon, $6,243,750.

Atlas Portland Cement Company, New York City, delivered on dock United States, $5,355,000.

All the foreign bids were for quantities less than the full amount required. The bids will be sent to the Isthmus of Panama for inspection and report before any awards are made.

IRON, STEEL, ETC.—Structural mills are running on less than half time. It is considered probable that the prices of structural shapes, including angles, channels and tees, will be reduced, in sympathy with the cut the U. S. Steel Corporation has made in steel bars for delivery up to Oct. 1.

This cut, which was made through the Carnegie Steel Company, makes steel bars 1.40c. Pittsburgh, and small structural shapes, including angles, channels and tees under three-inch, 1.50c., both prices being base with half extras on the steel bar card.

Prices of narrow plates have been shaded $2 to $3 per ton for two or three months and it is now claimed that other sizes are being shaded also.

The American Bridge Company booked a total tonnage for May of about 20,000 tons, or about one-third of the total tonnage taken the previous month.

The contract for the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company building, requiring 1,500 tons of steel, will probably be placed in a few days, as well as the 4,000 tons for the extension to the Astor Hotel.

Tenders for 10,000 tons of steel required in the construction of the Educational building at Albany will be received up to June 20, the time for receiving bids having been extended.

Bids for the extension of the County courthouse at Brooklyn were about 30 per cent. greater than the appropriation. It is also understood that bids for school houses in New York City are running 25 per cent. above the estimates.

Tin plate manufacturers report a heavy call for nearly all grades. Mills are running to capacity on rush orders, due to the approach of the canning season. Galvanized plates are also in good request, but black plates are still a little slow.

The United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Company has secured the contract for 20,000 tons cast iron pipe and special castings for the city of Syracuse.

Considerable irregularity prevails in the sheet copper market, and although 18c. is nominally asked for less than full cases, shrewd buyers can obtain concessions.

There has been an increased demand for all classes of material in the steam and plumbing supply lines, mostly all of which was for prompt shipment from jobbers' stocks. Prices in all lines—except soil pipe and fittings—have undergone slight advances.

LIME.—As the season advances the amount of lime going into building works shows some improvement, but the maximum is still much below what it was in previous years. Prices are nominally unchanged. It is now estimated by a prominent lime dealer that 75 per cent. of the plasterers and bricklayers in Brooklyn are idle.

For the last two or three years several domestic natural-cement plants have been manufacturing and marketing a true hydraulic lime, similar in every technical respect to the well-known French hydraulic lime of Teil.

In 1907 the production of hydraulic lime amounted to 49,769 barrels, valued at $23,133, as compared with a production in 1906 of 40,800 barrels, valued at $19,300.

LUMBER.—Quotations rule in sympathy with the slack demand. On some items of hardwood prices show little change, but stocks have been accumulating, and intimations are heard that a general readjustment is imminent.

Among carpenters and joiners it is said that business is more moderate in Manhattan that even in January last, but Richmond and Queens are in fair shape, and Brooklyn is improving.

The head of a large outside lumber firm says that the fact about the condition of the lumber business is that it is not so good as it was sixty or ninety days ago, and that the only salvation of maintaining present prices is the curtailment of production:

"The mill operator, who each week reads in the trade papers that business is improving, figures that it is much better for him to continue to manufacture hardwood lumber. This is resulting in over-production, and there is more stock today being offered than there are purchasers for. We had a letter in yesterday's mail from one of our Chicago friends, a man who is interested in the manufacture of lumber in the South, saying that last week his traveling man returned from a trip to Wisconsin, and did not bring back a single order. He goes on to say that during this trip his man visited Racine, Milwaukee, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, and Oshkosh, and during his trip he met and talked with four salesmen, two from St. Louis, one from Chicago and one from the South, and these five salesmen had sold in one week's time one car of lumber. Taking into consideration that every log cut makes the trees standing in the woods just that much more valuable, it seems to us an insane policy of the hardwood manufacturers to keep on slaughtering their timber, and selling the output for 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. less than it is worth."

The annual convention of the National Hardwood Lumber Association will meet at Milwaukee, Wis., June 11 and 12. The subject of national inspection will be discussed, and the expectation is that the 1905 rates will be re-established.

The semi-annual meeting of the Yellow Pine Manufacturers' Association, George K. Smith, secretary, headquarters St. Louis, Mo., will be held at the Chicago Beach Hotel, on the Lake Front of Chicago, Ill., on July 21 and 22. Railroad and hotel rates will be announced later. A large attendance and interesting meeting are expected.

The quotations given in this list are the wholesale prices to the retail trade on well manufactured and graded stock, according to the inspection rules at present obtaining. It is not practicable to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable, because terms of sale and other factors influence prices.

STONE.—No exceptions can be entered for the stone trades against the prevailing delay in the resumption of business. Many contracts are being figured, but not enough work results.

There is much interest in the coming awards for the stone for the Union Theological Seminary buildings and the Hotel Astor enlargement. A. J. Robinson Co. has taken the general contract for the Union Theological Seminary buildings, but has not yet given out the stone contract. The walls of all the buildings will be limestone and granite.

The Harrison Supply Company has patented a marble polishing wheel which is an improvement over the old wheel. It contains seven shoes instead of five. The wheels are made with reversible lugs, which will enable a polisher to fit the wheel to any polishing machine in a very few moments. Carborundum is used exclusively in making the shoes for these wheels, the purpose being to cut rather than to grind the surface and thus prepare for final glossing at a rate of 75 feet or more per hour.

What may be considered to be quite satisfactory results have followed the appeal of the granite manufacturers to the Interstate Commerce Commission for relief from an unfair restriction placed by the railroads regarding minimum shipments of granite, inasmuch as the commission will recommend a reduction of the minimum rating from 40,000 to 36,000 pounds. More than that, Commissioner Prouty will recommend that redress be given the manufacturers for the amounts they have paid over and above the 36,000 minimum since the time when the 40,000 minimum was ordered by the railroads, something like a year ago. The contention of the aggrieved parties was to the effect that some of the cars sent to them for receiving shipments were not large enough to take the 40,000 pounds; yet they (the shippers) were charged at that minimum in any event, which was a manifest injustice.

Fort Slocum, N. Y.—Sealed proposals will be received June 10 for construction, plumbing, steam heating and electric wiring of one administration building and one drill hall and gymnasium. Address Constructing Q. M.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Building at Arverne, Long Island.

ARVERNE, L. I.—Messrs. Shampan & Shampan, 772 Broadway, Brooklyn, state that they are now preparing plans for a country residence to be situated at the northeast corner of Amstel boulevard and Clarence av, Arverne, L. I., for Mr. Max Germanski, builder, care of architects. The structure will be designed in Colonial style of architecture, having a hardwood interior. Steam heat, gas and electric combination lighting. Building will stand on a plot 40x100 ft., two stories, basement and attic in height, consisting of fifteen rooms. The Leonard Moody Real Estate Co., of 189 Montague st, Brooklyn, sold this plot for the Somerville Realty Co., and when completed, it will be occupied by a wealthy real estate man of Brooklyn. The same architects are also preparing plans for the same builder for another country residence to be located on the east side of Clarence av, 140 ft. north of Amstel boulevard, Arverne. This building to be designed in the old Dutch style of architecture, the interior to be finished of hardwood trim, to be one of the most modern residences equipped with gas and electric combination lighting, furnace heat, on a plot 40x100 ft., two stories, basement and attic, with a laundry and clothes drying apparatus in the basement. Work will be started at once.

Big Contract for A. J. Robinson Co.

MANHATTAN.—The Andrew J. Robinson Company, No. 123 East 23d st, received on Wednesday of this week the general contract to erect the entire group of buildings for the Union Theological Seminary, comprising a 5-sty administration building, a 6-sty library building and a 7-sty dormitory structure; the chapel, as originally planned, has been left out and will not be erected now. The location is at 120th and 122d sts, Broadway, through to Claremont av. The number of cubic feet included in the entire group is 2,188,500. The wall construction will be of limestone and granite and the cost will be in the neighborhood of $890,000. The Robinson Co. state that no subcontracts will be issued for about two weeks yet. The architects are Messrs. Allen & Collens, of Boston, Mass., and Louis E. Jallade, No. 1170 Broadway, Manhattan. See issue April 25, 1908.

Ten Cement Dwellings for Westbury, L. I.

WESTBURY, L. I.—Contracts were awarded this week for additional improvements, including grading of streets and laying of sidewalks and curbs by the Westbury Terrace Co., Inc., in their 100-acre development at Westbury, L. I. The work will be done by the McLaughlin-Hannon Construction Co., Inc., 517 Temple Bar Building, Brooklyn. Twenty lots have been sold to individual purchasers during the week for investment and home building purposes, and among the owners of property are many prominent business men. Plans have been prepared by the company for the erection of ten cement dwellings, which will be constructed by the McLaughlin-Hannon Construction Co., to cost from $4,500 to $5,550 each.

New Building for John and William Streets.

JOHN ST.—Plans are about to be prepared for the improvement of the property at the northwest corner of John and William sts, a plot about 89.11x123.3 ft. There are to be six stories or more, all for office purposes. The Golden Hill Building Co., No. 76 William st, of which Henry S. Thompson is president, will erect the building. The site is to be cleared immediately, and the new structure is to be ready for occupancy by May 1, 1909. No contracts have yet been placed for the work. It will be recalled that the Ocean Accident and Guarantee Co., of London, recently announced the proposed erection of a 16-sty insurance building on this site.

Fort Washington av, Washington Heights. Bannister & Schell, 69 Wall st, are the architects.

Mr. W. A. Eaton, of the Stevens-Eaton Co., wholesale lumber merchants, No. 1 Madison av, has sold his stock interests in the corporation to his associates and set up a separate business. He will handle a full line of soft woods and shingles.

At the annual parade of the New York work horses, on Memorial Day, the three entries of Collins, Lavery & Co., dealers in lumber and hardwoods, No. 39 Cortlandt st, succeeded in capturing three ribbons, two medals and two money prizes.

The M. B. Foster Electric Co. has removed to larger quarters at 109 West 26th st, due to the increase in its business. The Foster Co. recently installed on the roof of the Singer Building 25 18-inch searchlights for the purpose of lighting the tower at night.

The annual meeting of the Building Material Men's Club of Newark, N. J., composed of the leading lumber and building material firms in that city and section, will be held at Newark, N. J., on June 9, preceded by a dinner. At this meeting the annual election will be held.

Mr. William J. Wilgus, formerly vice-president of the New York Central & Hudson River R. R., has become president of The Amsterdam Corporation, 165 Broadway, New York City, which has recently been organized for consulting work on special railway problems.

The Fuller Engineering Co., of Allentown, Pa., has taken the contract for designing and constructing the Seaboard Portland Cement Company's new 7,000-bbl. plant, which is to be erected on the property of the latter company near Alsen, N. Y. Between 200 and 300 men are already at work.

The reinforced concrete work on the new Blanchard factory building now in course of construction in Long Island City, is being performed by the Standard Concrete-Steel Company, of 31st and 32d sts and East River. The Fuller Company is general contractor. For description see Record and Guide issue May 30.

The semi-annual meeting of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, as we have previously announced, will be held in Niagara Falls, N. Y., on Friday and Saturday, July 24 and 25. Secretary W. M. Mackay announces that arrangements have been made to hold the meeting at the Cataract-International Hotel, and that a rate of $3 per day and upward on the American plan has been secured.

The Canton Steel Ceiling Co., of 525 West 23d st, has issued a handsome catalogue of their goods showing new designs of metal ceilings in Louis XIV., Greek, Colonial, Gothic, Rococo and Romanasque styles. These goods are of a high-grade character, produce a beautiful effect and suitable for all classes of work. Architects, builders and others in the market for such material will do well to communicate with the company.

The specification book of the Clinton fireproofing system devised by the Clinton Wire Cloth Co., Clinton, Mass., gives details for the construction of reinforced concrete floors with Clinton welded wire. The floor systems described are all approved by the Bureau of Buildings, New York City, the allowable loadings and the factor of safety being specified in each case. The fireproofing department of the company has its office at 1 Madison av, New York, under the management of Mr. Albert Oliver.

The National Fire Proofing Co., Broadway and 23d st, Manhattan, and Chicago, has recently closed contracts for all the terra cotta hollow tile fireproofing for the new 14-sty office and store building to be erected on the site of the Fifth Av Hotel, 5th av and 23d st. The order includes 540,000 ft. of partitions, 650,000 ft. of floor arches and 100,000 ft. of covering for columns. Another large contract is that for about 8,000 tons of hollow tile fireproofing for the Cuyahoga County Court House, Cleveland, Ohio.

Professor Walker has been appointed professor of metallurgy and administrative head of the Department of Metallurgy at Columbia University. His duties will begin on July 1, and he will take personal direction of the instruction in non-ferrous and electro-metallurgy and metallurgical design. He is now and has been for the past year the rector of the historic St. Ann's Church of Morrisania on St. Ann's av and 140th st in the Bronx. Miss Wells was educated at the New York Collegiate Institute and Barnard College and has taken great interest in church work in the Bronx.

The second largest masonry arch in the world has recently been completed on a new railway from Klagenfurth to Trieste, in Austria, crossing the Isonzo River at Salcano. The Salcano arch is the main span of a 721.8 ft. bridge consisting of nine small arches, averaging about 40 ft. in span and one large arch of 278.9 ft. and 78 ft. rise. The main arch is of cut stone founded on reinforced-concrete footings backing into solid rock. It is 6.6 ft. thick at the crown and 11.5 ft. at the spring. The 17-ft. roadway, for a single-track railway, is carried to the arch ring by a spandrel arch construction. As we have frequently noted before the largest masonry arch in the world at Plauen, Germany, has a span of 295 ft.

At Atlantic City, N. J., from June 23d to 27th, the eleventh annual meeting of the American Society for Testing Materials will be held. The first meeting will be held in the Hotel Traymore on June 23. F. Tucker; Friday, 10 a. m., on Preservative Coatings and Lubricants; Friday, 3 p. m., on Testing Machines and Apparatus; Saturday, Forest Service Tests to Determine the Influence of Different Methods and Rates of Loading on the Strength and Stiffness of Timber.

Up the Tower.

The tower of the Metropolitan Life Building is so far along in construction that on Wednesday a party of four accompanied the Mayor as far as the thirty-fourth floor, to which the elevators are now running. They were personally conducted by J. B. Clermont, superintendent of the Hedden Construction Co. The fine view was enjoyed and the Mayor posed for several "snaps."

On Friday, President John R. Hegeman, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was up above showing President Silas B. Dutcher, of the Hamilton Trust Co., etc., the wonders of the panorama, and incidently how near his borough is situated to Madison Square Park.

Major Hegeman, his son, has a wonderful pair of field glasses, through which could be seen minute details of buildings on the Hoboken ridge, Statue of Liberty and many other distant points.

Production of Sand-Lime Brick in 1907.

Complete statistics concerning the production of sand-lime brick have been received by the United States Geological Survey, and an advance statement on this industry is now published in order that producers may receive this information at the earliest possible date.

In 1907 there were 94 plants engaged in the manufacture of sand-lime brick, the total value of the product being $1,225,769. For convenience in comparison, similar figures for the years 1903 to 1907 inclusive are given below.

VALUE OF SAND-LIME BRICK IN THE UNTED STATES, 1903-1907.

Year.	Number of plants.	Value of product.
1903	16	$155,040
1905	84	972,064
1907	94	1,225,769

The little table above covers the entire history of the sand-lime brick industry in this country. It will be seen that the years 1904 and 1905 were marked by a very rapid expansion in the industry, but that 1906 and 1907 show very slight increases in either number of plants or in total value of the product.

Concrete Institute Organized in Great Britain.

Arthur E. Collins, of Norwich, England, secretary of the Concrete Institute of Great Britain, which was recently organized, sends the Record and Guide particulars of its constitution and membership. The Institute has been formed under the presidency of the Right Hon. the Earl of Plymouth (lately First Commissioner of Works), with Sir Wm. Mather, LL.D., Sir. Wm. Preece, K.C.B., and Sir Henry Tanner, I.S.O., as vice-presidents; Mr. Edwin O. Sachs, F.R.S. Ed. as chairman of the executive; Mr. E. P. Wells as Hon. Treasurer, and Mr. Collins as Hon. Secretary.

A list of the Institute's First Council, if representative of the interests concerned, certifies that the society will have the support of the leading men in the field. Sir Henry Tanner is the Principal Architect of H. M. Office of Works. His position in this society will be the chairmanship of the Reinforced Concrete Committee. The chairman of the Executive Committee is Mr. Edwin O. Sachs, who is also chairman of the British Fire Prevention Committee. C. H. Colson is superintendent of civil engineering in the Admiralty. W. T. Hatch is chief engineer of the Metropolitan Asylum Board. W. H. Hunter is chief engineer of the Manchester Ship Canal. Mr. A. Ross is chief engineer of the Great Northern Ry. Secretary Collins is a past president of the Assoc. of Municipal Engineers.

Concrete in its various forms, both plain and reinforced, is playing a very important part in the civil engineering works and building operations of Great Britain, and the Institute is the outcome of a demand among the professional and industrial interests concerned to have some centre for discussion, investigation and research work. The office of the Concrete Institute is at No. 1 Waterloo st, Pall Mall, London.

Outing for Plumbers.

The itinerary of the Boston Club of the New York Master Plumbers' Association has just been announced and as outlined should prove a very interesting and enjoyable trip. The route includes the Thousand Islands, St. Lawrence River, Quebec, Montreal, Lakes George and Champlain and Saratoga. The tour will be under the personal direction of J. P. McCann, who has successfully handled the details of such trips on many previous occasions. The party will start from New York on Sunday, July 12, arriving in Boston next morning, where they will remain until after the convention. Leaving Boston July 17 for Thousand Islands, a trip up the St. Lawrence to Montreal will be made by daylight, running all the rapids, with a constant succession of pleasing views. Sunday, July 19, will be spent at Quebec, returning to Montreal that night. Leaving Montreal on the 20th for Plattsburg, and on the 21st a daylight trip will be made through Lake Champlain and Lake George. That night will be spent at Saratoga, leaving there at 2 p. m., July 22, for New York. The cost of membership in the club is $75.

Patent Monopolies in Cement Industry.

Washington, June 1.—The report of E. C. Eckel, of the Department of the Interior, on the cement industry, after giving the facts as to production, raw material, etc., which have already been published, has this to say in regard to concentration of interests in the cement industry:

"The Portland cement industry affords a peculiarly interesting example of an important and growing branch of manufacture whose future organization and control is still a matter of uncertainty. Ten or even five years ago the business of making Portland cement in the United States was confined to a number of comparatively small mills, each of which was practically independent. Today there is a noticeable degree of concentration of interest in the industry, and three processes are at work to increase steadily this concentration. Owing to the peculiar character of the industry, the final result is still a matter of much doubt. In an earlier report of this series it was pointed out that it is impossible for any one organization to gain control of the supply of raw materials, so that in this industry the most effective basis for monopoly is not available. The ownership of comprehensive basic patents would afford a peculiarly serviceable type of control, inasmuch as patent monopolies are thoroughly legal in form.

"Setting aside for the moment the possibility of monopoly, it can be said that the three factors which make for concentration of control are: (1) The normal growth of profitable plants; (2) consolidation by stock control; (3) the growth of the patent-holding company.

"Several strong groups of plants connected by stock control rather than by direct ownership are now in existence. Of these the most important is the Iola or Nicholson group, which controls seven plants, mostly in the Kansas district. A second important group is that controlled by Mr. W. J. Dingee and his associates, including plants in California, Washington and Pennsylvania. The Cowhan series of plants located in Michigan, Iowa, Kansas and Texas also require notice in this connection, and a number of smaller examples of 'community of interest' are known to exist.

"Numerous patents have been taken out in connection with various phases of the cement industry, but it is only within the last two years that the patent question has become of the first importance to the cement industry. This recent development is due to the organization and growth of a great patent-holding corporation.

"Late in 1906 the North American Portland Cement Company was organized, with a capital stock of $10,000,000, this stock being held by the Atlas, Alpha, American, Lawrence, Lehigh and Vulcanite cement companies. The North American Company took over from the Atlas Portland Cement Company the United States rights to the Hurry and the Seaman patents, which cover certain methods for the burning of pulverized coal in cement kilns. At a later date it acquired the Edison long kiln and the Carpenter patents. The companies now licensed under this system include the six companies which control the North American and also the Whitehall, Northampton, Hexter, Edison, Nazareth, Pennsylvania, Penn-Allen, Catskill, Buckhorn, Phoenix, Bath and Glens Falls Portland cement companies. In January, 1907, these licensed companies organized as the Association of Licensed Cement Manufacturers."

Waterproofing Guarantees.

A roofing guarantee is of value, because the conditions are entirely different. In roofing, the cause of and responsibility for leaks can be easily settled. Seldom, however, is there any recovery had under a waterproofing guarantee.

Edward W. DeKnight, manager of the Hydrex Felt and Engineering Co., of New York, in an address before the Western Society of Engineers at Chicago, said that bonding companies are averse to supporting waterproofing guarantees because of the high risk. It will be found, on close analysis, that bonded guarantees do not, in fact, guarantee. Such, for example, is a bonded guarantee reading, that the structure or surface to which the waterproofing is applied, must remain "sound and stable."

The very purpose of waterproofing is to waterproof the structure or surface in the event of their not remaining "sound and stable." Such a guarantee, of course, means nothing, except that the bonding or other company assumes no risk, but shifts it to the owner of the structure, who himself then guarantees that his structure or wall will not crack or injure the waterproofing.

A case in point is a decision on a waterproofing guarantee by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit, 144, Federal Report 942. In a contract for the foundation of a building the specifications, after describing the waterproofing materials to be used, stated: "The whole to be made perfectly watertight and guaranteed." On the completion of the foundation it leaked and payment was withheld from the contractor. The contractor contended that he had strictly followed the specifications but was not accountable for the result of the plans. The court upheld the claim of the contractor.

Modern Lighting Systems.

Gasoline lighting has had a large development in the last few years, owing to invention in that line. A gasoline light is not only economical but beautiful. The claim is made that it costs less than any other light. In this system the gasoline is conveyed from the tank to the lamps by means of a hollow wire or brass tubing, about ⅛ in. in diameter.

One of these systems can be installed with one or any number of lamps, yet each lamp is practically an independent plant, each generates its own gas, and it matters not whether you are burning all of the lamps on the system or only one, no gasoline is wasted. Various styles of lamps are made by the Acorn Brass Co., of Chicago: "Sunbeam," "Radiant Home," "Doran" and "Radio," all on hollow-wire systems.

BEFORE entering into a contract for foundations involving expensive shoring, sheet piling, pumping, excavation and masonry, let us show you how we can eliminate these factors.

TESTS OF CONCRETE COLUMNS.

The University of Illinois Engineering Experiment Station has recently issued Bulletin No. 20, Tests of Concrete and Reinforced Concrete Columns, series of 1907, by Professor Arthur N. Talbot. This bulletin records experiments upon concrete and reinforced concrete columns, which have already become quite notable and which will have a marked influence in fixing the standing of certain types of construction.

A feature of reinforced concrete in which engineers and architects are much interested is the column having the concrete hooped or bound with steel bands or spirals. Tests on this form of column reported from France and Germany indicate great strength, but the results have not been considered conclusive and many questions have been raised concerning its applicability to general construction.

Engineers have wanted to know more of the action of this new combination of material. The tests here reported will, therefore, be welcomed by the engineering profession. One of the engineering journals in commenting on the importance of the results of these tests states that they bear on nearly every phase of importance of reinforced concrete columns:

The tests go to show that in hooped columns the steel hooping does not come into action to any great extent before a load equivalent to the ultimate strength of plain concrete, or a little below, is reached, and that up to this point the action of the column is very like one of plain concrete. Beyond this load the column shortens rapidly and the deformation becomes very marked. The extreme amount of shortening is a great disadvantage. The amount of strength added by the hooping before ultimate failure is reached, is two to three times as much as the effect of an equal amount of longitudinal reinforcement.

A discussion of the French and German experiments is made, and observations on Poisson's ratio and data on the phenomena accompanying tests of plain concrete columns are given. The work of Professor Talbot in reinforced concrete is well known, and this investigation is a further evidence of the importance of the work of the Engineering Experiment Station. The bulletin contains 60 pages.

Copies of this bulletin may be obtained gratis upon application to the Director, Engineering Experiment Station, Urbana, Ill.

ADVICE TO THE LENDER.—When you have occasion to lend money on bond and mortgage look well to the moral risk. The security may be ample, but the habits of the borrower may make him slow pay and the loan undesirable. An abstract of title should be furnished at the expense of the borrower, completed to the date of the loan. Remember to insist that your lien be guaranteed against the rights of tenants or other parties in possession of the premises not shown on the records. Possession is notice of all the rights of possessor, and an unrecorded deed in the hands of an individual in possession might void a mortgage.

PROJECTED BUILDINGS

The first name is that of the ow'r; ar't stands for architect, m'n for mason, c'r for carpenter, and b'r for builder.

When character of roof is not mentioned, it is to be understood that the roof is to be of tin.

THE WEEK.

THE first part of the week was exceedingly inactive, in fact for a couple of days it looked as though business had come to a standstill. However, by Wednesday there were several important sales consummated, sales which showed investment buying. There have been in the last few weeks several plots sold to builders for improvement, and the number of plans recently filed would make it appear as though building operations on a larger scale would be commenced shortly.

Among the principal sales reported was that of the 6-sty loft and store building, Nos. 141 to 145 West 17th st, on a plot 65.10x92. This property was purchased by William L. Rosenfeld for investment. It is leased for a long term of years. The 6-sty flat 53 East 18th st, 43.9x92, was traded for the five 2-sty dwellings 519 to 527 West 129th st, which occupy a plot 82x99.11. It is said that this transaction involved about $140,000. The sale of the two 4-sty houses 14 and 16 East 33d st has special significance inasmuch that the sale was for all cash. This property has been held at $300,000. There is a rumor that the plot will be improved, though no verification of this could be obtained.

Mrs. George Nash, president of the Washington Heights Day Nursery, purchased 350 West 145th st, a 3-sty dwelling, 16.3x 106.1. The object of Mrs. Nash buying this property is so that her home will be near the nursery and it will facilitate her in attending to her duties there. The two 6-sty apartment houses 248 to 254 West 149th st on a plot 80x99.11, were purchased by Adolph Bachrach, who gave in part payment the southeast corner of Audubon av and 173d st, 100x95, vacant. The southwest corner of Park av and 83d st and the adjoining property, making a p'ot 90x102, changed hands. This property was purchased by a company, who intends to improve the holding, from several owners, through the efforts of E. de Forest Simmons.

The money market is becoming easier week by week. While some difficulty is experienced in certain quarters, yet a loan with a reasonable amount of margin, on desirable property, can be readily placed. A large number of loans are being placed at 5½ per cent., while similar loans at this time last year were made at one-half per cent. lower rate. There is more cheerful feeling prevalent among brokers. The general sentiment is that the market will straighten itself out after election.

A loan of $215,000 for five years at five per cent. was given by Beatrice Roche to Stephen McPartland on the property 673 to 677 8th av, which is the southwest corner of 43d st, 75.5x 100. Meyer A. Bernheimer gave to the Baron de Hirsch Fund a mortgage of $175,000 for 5 years at 5 per cent. on the property 103 to 109 Lenox av, northwest corner 145th st, 100x 100.11. Another mortgage of some interest was in blanket form and covered the properties 84 South st, about 100 feet east of Fletcher st, 77.9x74.5x18.1x74.7; also the plot in the rear of Nos. 83, 84 and 85 South st, being in breadth at the southeast end 54.5 feet and at the northwest end 55.7 feet and in length on each side about 90 feet; also No. 85 South st, about 45 feet west of Burling slip, 17.9x74.7x18.1x74.9. The amount of this mortgage is $130,000, the due date and rate appearing only in the bond. Frank W. Browning, of Norwich, Conn., is the borrower and the Manhattan Life Insurance Co. the lender. The Park Place Realty Co. borrowed from Adolph Lewisohn $160,000 on the property known as Nos. 41 to 45 West Broadway, northeast corner of Park Place, 75.2x75. This is a purchase money mortgage. The due date and rate appear in the bond.

THE AUCTION MARKET

WHILE there were several parcels of importance offered at auction, still comparing it with the past few weeks, it was a very tame affair. In the main the offerings were the results of foreclosure suits Bidding was slow, the majority of cases were purchased by the plaintiffs. In several instances properties were withdrawn temporarily, but will be put up at some future date, when it is believed that conditions will have improved.

The situation is but little better than it was some months ago. There is but little real demand for property, where a new loan has to be negotiated. This does not apply to the sales of vacant property where only a small amount of cash is necessary, but more especially to larger holdings where a considerable amount of money must be invested and a large loan procured. Several prominent real estate men cannot see any real relief until after the election.

The Antionettes, an 8-sty apartment house at 43 to 53 East 58th st, 54 East 59th st and 480 and 482 Park av, were offered at the stand of Joseph P. Day on Tuesday. The sum due was about $642,000. The property was knocked down to the City Real Estate Co., representing a party in interest, for $650,000. The 3 and 4-sty brick tenements and stores 217 and 219 East 35th st were sold at the same stand on the same day. The former was bought by John Gallagher for $14,200 and the latter was disposed of to E. L. Davis for $18,500. The size of the entire plot is 54.2x98.9. The vacant plot on Gramercy Park East also changed hands. This building is located on the east side of the avenue, about 39.5 feet south of 21st st and is 83.5x82.11x irreg. The amount due was $34,581.56; taxes and other charges, about $1,513.47. There were two prior mortgages aggregating $75,000. Charles Buck, an adjoining owner, was the purchaser, paying $114,375 for it.

A vacant plot, 125x100.11, on the northeast corner of Robbins av and 140th st was sold to Alexander Kuehne, Jr., for $18,000. The amount due was $14,227.62, and the taxes and other charges were $2,734.46. The sale of the 6-sty apartment house 524 Riverside drive was adjourned to June 10, as was the 4-sty dwelling 569 West 161st st.

BUYS NEWPORT FARM.—A real estate company, of which Aurel Batonyi is manager, has purchased the Bryer farm in Middletown, comprising about 100 acres with a fine house on it. This holding adjoins the property of the Vanderbilts, W. R. Hunter, H. A. C. Taylor and Reginald Norman. There have been two real estate companies incorporated by Mr. Batonyi and they have acquired considerable property, paying all cash for it. Mr. Batonyi states that he has disposed of a number of plots and is well satisfied with his venture.

IMPROVEMENTS COMMENCED.

MADISON AND TIMES SQUARE DEVELOPMENTS BEING WATCHED WITH INTEREST BY MANHATTAN PROPERTY OWNERS.

THERE are two large building operations under way which ought to have a decided effect on the districts in which they are located. The first one is the razing of the old Fifth Avenue Hotel and building on its site a modern office structure, and the other is the altering of the Hotel Barrington, on the block front between 43d and 44th sts, on the west side of Broadway. These two properties are held by interests long identified with Manhattan realty, the former being owned by the Fifth Avenue Building Co., of which H. L. Eno is president, and the latter by William Waldorf Astor.

FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL.

In the past the building of a large structure in a given locality has had a marked effect on the surrounding property, especially so if it happened to be on a square. Property in the immediate vicinity has enhanced in value, and as a rule an active market has resulted. This was true of the Madison square section after the advent of 23d st as a retail dry goods district. The character of the property in 22d and 24th sts changed, large mercantile buildings replacing old houses, and the overflow of business naturally went into those streets.

HOTEL BARRINGTON.

On Times square history again repeated itself. Prior to the building of the Hotel Astor and several other important undertakings, this part of town was exceedingly inactive. So soon as rumors of pending deals began to be circulated, the professional speculators appeared on the scene, and in a short time prices advanced rapidly, in some cases as much as 300 per cent. It will be decidedly interesting to note what the effect of these new operations will have on the neighboring realty. It is safe to predict that the improvement on Madison square will make this part of town an important business district, while the character of Times square as a hotel and restaurant centre is a fixture for many years.

JOHN ANDREWS ELY.

John Andrews Ely, a retired real estate dealer, died at his residence, 21 East 55th st, on Saturday, May 30, of bronchitis. Mr. Ely was associated in the office of Horace S. Ely, his cousin, for thirty years. He was 72 years old, and was actively engaged up to four years ago in the real estate business, when he retired owing to ill health. He grew steadily weaker, and all hope of his recovery was given up some time since. Mr. Ely graduated from the Academy of New York, as the College of the City of New York was formerly called, in the class of 1858. Besides the house in which he died, Mr. Ely also owned some suburban property. He is survived by two sons and one daughter.

—Did you ever think how much the Real Estate Directory has done for Manhattan brokers, and how they are envied by brokers of other sections?

LAW DEPARTMENT

QUESTION OF COMMISSION.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Being one of your old subscribers and readers, I would like to get your opinion on a question of commission to real estate broker.

A tenant of mine in New York held a lease with three years still to run from May 1, this year. He wanted to quit business and get rid of his lease. He had the property in hands of several brokers to dispose of his lease. A broker found a good party willing to assume the lease, but wanted ten years lease, The broker came to me and asked me if I would give an extended lease, to make a full term of ten years. After meeting the party we came to an agreement, and they preferred a direct lease from me, so I gave them a lease for ten years to the property, subject, however, to the existing lease, with three years yet to run; and they agreed to assume all the conditions of the existing lease, and they are to take possession of the property from the present lessee on June 1. Now, the broker sends me a bill for full commission for the ten years. I contend he should collect his commission for three years from the lessee who engaged him to find a party to take over or assume his lease, and I pay him for seven years. I have paid him the seven years' commission. Should I pay him for the ten years? Or is it his duty to collect for three years from the old lessee? An early reply will be appreciated. My New York address is 5 East 53d st. Yours truly,

C. A. BELDEN.

Answer.—From your statement of the facts we can see no merit in the claim of the broker at all, even the making of a seven years' further term, not having been a matter sought by you to be effected, and only agreed to by you at their instance—you apparently not in any way having employed the broker to bring it about.

The broker seems to be lucky to have gotten a commission on the seven years of the term, if he had no other basis of employment to claim on than what you state.

"REGISTRATION OF LAND TITLES."

THE initial step towards furnishing property owners of this State with the latest modern improvements in the securing of title and facility of transfer of them has been taken; and if not a step taken in the dark, or too precipitously, or, even if so, too irretrievably for amendment before user, the public can congratulate itself on at last being up-to-date, with Australia, Oklahoma and others of the so-called "progressive" States.

The new law does not go into effect till Feb. 1, 1909. Its status, as a general law after it takes effect as such, and before adoption by any property owner, its probable constitutionality, its prospective advantages as well as changes of present law, and its probable defects, and the popularity such laws have had in the respective States where already adopted will be the subject of editorial articles in the Record and Guide from time to time, and probably, as we trust, of many communications from our interested readers.

For the moment our attention in the present and a succeeding article will be given to the subject of these so-called "Torrens Laws" in general, and the popularity had, and the questions to which they have given rise in some of the States which have already adopted them.

For this reason primarily we cannot make a better start than by adopting for this purpose, and reprinting excerpts from the little leaflet compiled by Henry Pegram, Esq., of the New York State Commission to Investigate the Torrens System of Registering Land Titles. In part it is as follows:

"Broadly speaking, there are at present at least four great classes of so-called Torrens systems, viz: (a) The Australian Torrens System. (b) The Canadian Torrens System. (c) The English Torrens System. (d) The American Torrens System.

"By the 'Australian' Torrens system, is meant the group of systems now in use in the six States of the Commonwealth of Australia as well as in other parts of Australasia. The States of the Commonwealth of Australia are: New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania and Western Australia. The other parts of Australasia in which Torrens systems are now in use are: the self-governing colony of New Zealand, the Crown Colony of Fiji, and the Territory of British New Guinea, which latter is a dependency of Queensland. Hogg's Australian Torrens System, 1.

"By the 'Canadian' Torrens system is meant the group of systems now in use in the Territories and six of the nine provinces of the Dominion of Canada and, possibly in the self-governing Colony of Newfoundland. The Provinces of the Dominion of Canada are: Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan; all of which have Torrens systems, excepting Quebec, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. There seems to be also a federal Torrens system in use in the Territories of the Dominion which are: Labrador, Yukon, Keewatin, Mackenzie, Ungava, and Franklin.

"By the 'English' Torrens system is meant the system now in actual use in the City and County of London, where it is compulsory on sale.

"By the 'American' Torrens system is meant the group of systems now in use in the States of California, Colorado, Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Oregon and the territorial possession of Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

"The State of Ohio formerly had a Torrens system act, but the same was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of that State and has since been repealed. There are, therefore, to-day, twenty-six different so-called Torrens systems known to be in actual existence; exclusive of those existing in various British dependencies in Asia and Africa, as well as in the scattered, British, insular possession.

"The salient features of the several so-called Torrens systems, in brief, are as follows:

"(1) Public registration of titles, either voluntary or compulsory. (2) Judical approval of title, prior to registry. (3) Classification of registered titles into absolute, qualified or possessory titles. (a) An absolute title is indefeasible. (b) A qualified title is indefeasible except as to the specific defects registered against it. (c) A possessory title is absolute only as to the prima facia right to possession. No anterior right is interfered with. In some cases it may ripen into an absolute title by lapse of time. (4) Indemnity to persons who may be damaged by title registration. (5) Economy and speed in subsequent transfers and encumbrances.

"Similarly, long before the original Torrens system was devised, complete systems of title registration had been developed in the German speaking countries of Europe, viz.: Germany, Austria-Hungary and certain parts of Switzerland.

The definition, in question, is as follows, viz.:

"By 'Torrens' systems generally are meant those systems of registration of transactions with interests in land whose declared object is, under governmental authorities, to establish and certify to the ownership of an absolute and indefeasible title to realty and to simplify its transfer. An important feature of the system is an indemnity fund to compensate any one who may be injured by the operation of the act.

It thus appears that the system is no new thing but an actual working method of land title registration, already adopted and in operation in many countries for some time past."

It would seemingly, therefore, "go without saying" that the State has put before its people a good thing in the main idea, and that it only remains to see with what care the present law has been adapted from the many systems already in operation, to meet the needs of the counties and great cities of this State.

UPLIFT IN QUEENS REALTY.

The signing of the Frawley bill has brought joy into the hearts of the brokers in the Borough of Queens. It is expected that the city will now acquire the Belmont tunnel, notwithstanding the low condition of the city's finances. What terms will be made by the city for the tunnel's operation is as yet undetermined, though President Fuller, of the Queens County Railroad Co., has stated his willingness to connect all the lines controlled by his company and run through cars from all parts of Queens Borough to Park av, Manhattan, for a five-cent fare.

It is stated that the tunnel can be ready for operation in a month's time after the purchase. The work on the tubes is all completed except the stations and the ticket booths. The realty brokers in the section affected by the improvement, state that they have already felt its good effect. They are all looking for an unprecedented demand for real property.

E. J. Rickert, president of the Rickert-Finlay Realty Co., said: "In spite of the strained condition of the city's finances, the authorities are now considering a plan by which the tunnel may be put into immediate operation. It is known that the New York and Queens County Railroad has agreed to connect its lines with the tunnel and to run its cars from Manhattan to all parts of the borough. In fact we are already feeling the result of the Governor's action in the increased demand for our property at Broadway-Flushing, which is on the direct line of this trolley line."

SMITH ESTATE TAX.

The value of the estate left by the late James Henry Smith is $23,656,535.46. These figures are taken from the report of William P. Gregg, transfer tax appraiser of Port Jervis, N. Y. Mr. Smith claimed Tuxedo, Orange County, as his residence. Of this amount $2,416,087.50 was invested in realty and the rest is personal property. The debts and expenses of administration are $1,690,577.98, leaving $21,965,957.48 to be distributed among the heirs. The State will receive $923,495.55. Among the realty holdings owned by the estate in Manhattan is 871 5th av on the northeast corner of 68th st, 55x200, with a palatial residence, four stories in height, with a 1-sty extension; 133 West 55th st and 240 West 29th st. There are also valuable holdings in Tuxedo, N. Y.

"FIRE INSURANCE FROM THE OWNER'S STANDPOINT."

CLAUSES IN STANDARD POLICY EXPLAINED.

Every property owner is interested in fire insurance not only in respect to his own property but also in respect to insurance of his neighbors and others in his line of business, as fire insurance in its broad sense is a tax, levied on all property owners in order that the burden of fire loss may be distributed over the entire community rather than fall on the individual. The function of the fire insurance companies is to collect and distribute this tax in such manner that each owner shall pay his fair share, and in case of loss shall receive his fair proportion of indemnity and no more. If the loss payments in a given vicinity or class of business increase either by reason of greater fire hazard or because of excessive or fraudulent claims, the rate of tax must also be increased to meet this added burden, as fire insurance cannot distinguish between individuals, it must deal with classes and averages only.

The Legislature of New York State and of many other States has wisely adopted a standard form of fire insurance policy which all companies must use. The exact wording of this policy and in some States even the size of type to be used is prescribed by law, and no company can issue other than this standard form. The meaning of the various terms of this standard form has been repeatedly passed upon by the courts so that the property owner purchasing fire insurance in this State now buys a uniform and well-defined contract susceptible of exact interpretation. This standard form was adopted by the Legislature after careful investigation into the history and requirements of the fire insurance business, the intention being to frame a concise document containing only such provisions as are necessary to safeguard the interests of each party and to prevent fraudulent and dishonest claims. If property owners would take the time and trouble to read this standard form carefully so that they might enter into the contract with a clear understanding of their rights and duties, for they are duties, necessarily assumed by each side, there would be small chance for disagreement in case of loss.

INDEMNITY FOR ACTUAL LOSS.

A policy of fire insurance is strictly a contract of INDEMNITY FOR ACTUAL LOSS; it is not an agreement to pay a FIXED SUM in case of destruction of the property by fire. Many insurers in taking out a $10,000 fire policy on their dwelling think they have bought an agreement from the company to pay them $10,000 in case the building is burned, the same as a $10,000 life insurance policy would pay a fixed sum, $10,000, upon the death of the assured. This is not correct. A $10,000 fire policy under the standard form agrees to pay the owner the ACTUAL CASH VALUE of the building or other property at the time of loss to an amount NOT EXCEEDING $10,000; the amount mentioned in the policy is not the MEASURE of the company's payment, but only the LIMIT beyond which the company's liability cannot be extended.

A policy agreeing to pay a fixed sum in case of fire loss, regardless of the value of the property, is known as a "valued" policy and is now prohibited by law because of the possible inducement to incendiarism. The insurance companies with hundreds of thousands of risks on their books cannot investigate the value of your property in advance of loss; they leave it to you to judge of its value and decide how much insurance you wish to carry; you may pay $100,000 insurance on a house worth $5,000 if you wish, but in case of fire you can only collect the actual cash value of the house on the day the loss occurred. Every policy holder should be very careful that his policy correctly states his interest in the property insured, that is, whether his interest is owner, mortgagee, executor, trustee, lessee or otherwise, for a policy issued to him as owner will not protect him, as say mortgagee or tenant, and vice versa. The company must also be promptly notified of any change in the policy holder's interest in the property occurring after the policy is issued.

READ POLICY CAREFULLY.

Under the standard form of policy certain articles are not insured unless the company specifically agrees to cover them such as jewels, awnings, pictures, tools, etc. It would be well for every one to note the articles mentioned in lines 39 to 44 on the policy, and if insurance is desired thereon be sure it is so stated in the written form attached to the policy. Most companies are willing to insure these articles, but desire to have the matter brought specifically to their attention so that further information can be obtained if deemed necessary. It is also necessary to obtain a special permit if the building remains unoccupied for over 10 days, if mechanics are engaged making alterations or repairs for over 15 days, or if specially hazardous materials are kept on the premises, such as benzine, gunpowder, gasoline and other inflammable products. On account of the gasoline it is necessary to have a permit to keep automobiles in a building—this is frequently overlooked by owners of country places who keep automobiles in the barn. In fact, it is always best and safest to promptly notify your insurance company of any changes or condition which may increase the fire risk. If the company is willing to accept such change or increase of risk, no harm is done—if they are unwilling, it is far better you have the discussion before rather than after a loss has occurred.

ADDITIONAL CLAUSES.

In addition to the regular provisions of the "standard form" certain extra clauses have been approved by the Insurance Department of the State, to be attached to policies as occasion may require—among the more prominent of these are the mortgage clause, electric light clause, reduced rate average or coinsurance clause, dynamo clause and lightning clause. The mortgage clause is used where the property is mortgaged and provides that the loss, if any, shall be payable to the mortgagee up to the amount of his mortgage instead of to the owner. It further provides that no act or neglect of the owner shall invalidate this insurance in so far as the mortgagee's interest is concerned, provided there is no neglect on the mortgagee's part and provided he agrees to pay the premium if the owner does not.

The electric light clause begins by prohibiting the use of electricity for light, heat or power, and then gives permission to use it provided the equipment has been approved by the New York Board of Underwriters. The standard form does not prohibit use of electricity, so in order to require the owner to keep his equipment in accordance with the rules of the underwriters, the clause first prohibits its use and then gives a qualified permit subject to approval by the Board of Underwriters. This is a most important matter, as many fires occur through defects in electrical wiring. No change in the equipment can be made without securing approval of the New York Board of Underwriters and every contract for electrical work should require the contractor to obtain such approval before he is paid.

CO-INSURANCE CLAUSE.

The reduced rate average or coinsurance clause is used where the companies grant a lower rate in consideration of the owner agreeing to carry at least a certain amount of insurance, say 80 per cent. or 100 per cent. of the value of the property. If the owner will carry a full amount of insurance the companies can afford to sell it on a wholesale basis and at a cheaper price than if only a small amount is carried. If the reduced rate average or coinsurance clause is attached to a policy and the owner fails to carry at least the amount of insurance agreed on, the policy is not void but the owner must share in any loss in proportion to the extent he was deficient in insurance; that is, if he agreed to carry insurance to 80 per cent. of the value and only insured for 70 per cent. he can only collect seven-eighths of any loss and must share it himself to the extent of one-eighth. Often the companies will only issue policies at the reduced rate with this clause attached, as they deem it more important to have the owner carry a sufficient amount of insurance than to have him pay a higher rate.

The dynamo clause simply provides that the company shall not be liable for loss to electrical apparatus itself, due to electrical current, such as the burning out of fuses or wires through excessive current.

The lightning clause makes the company liable for lightning damage, whether fire ensues or not and can usually be attached without extra charge.

The average owner is less cautious in his insurance matters than in any other equally important branch of his commercial dealings. A low rate is important and desirable, but first of all be sure you are dealing with responsible companies and that your policy is accurately drawn to protect every interest you have in the property and to admit of your conducting your business in the usual manner without fear of violating any of its terms.

In a subsequent article the rights, duties of the owner and the insurance company in case of loss will be considered.

NO CHANGE IN TERMINAL PLANS.

There have been persistent rumors going the rounds to the effect that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company contemplated enlarging their holdings around its new terminal at 7th av and 33d st. Of course these rumors can be readily understood, for as soon as an important parcel is reported sold, some one immediately has the bright idea that the railroad is the only possible purchaser.

Third Vice-President Samuel Rea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in reply to an inquiry the other day, stated that his company had acquired all the real estate that was necessary for their purposes and that it was not in the market to buy any additional property. He further stated that the plans for the station and the adjacent property were made, and were going to be followed out as per schedule.

According to the plans the station stands back about forty feet from 7th av, between 31st and 33d sts, as originally outlined. There has been no change in this plan, nor is there going to be. One of the reports was that a plaza was going to be built on 7th av, between these streets, but this is denied by Mr. Rea.

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

Canal Street Activity.

CANAL ST.—Joseph H. Davis sold to Kalman Haas the 8-sty building with stores 338 and 340 Canal st, adjoining the southeast cor of Church st, 51.10x52.5x49.11x41.7. E. L. King & Co. represent the seller and L. J. Phillips & Co. the buyer.

GREENWICH ST.—George Dudley Waring sold for John J. Reynolds 822 Greenwich st, a 3-sty stable, 21x98.6.

Important Leasehold Disposed Of.

JOHN ST.—Charles F. Noyes Co. sold the leasehold consisting of a group of four buildings, 59 to 65 John st and 111 to 121 William st, to the Golden Hill Building Co., Henry S. Thompson, president. Almet Reed Latson, attorney, represented the sellers and Robert T. McGusty the buyers. The ground belongs to the Reformed Dutch Church of America and is an eighty-four-year leasehold. A new mercantile building is going to be constructed on the site as soon as the present buildings are demolished. Work will be immediately commenced, and it is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by May 1, 1909. It is estimated that the ground rental and cost of the building will aggregate $2,500,000. This is one of the most important deals consummated in this section in some years. The Golden Hill Building Co. is dominated by insurance interests, among which is the Globe and Rutgers, Spring Garden, Stuyvesant and Pacific Insurance Companies. The agents state that all the foregoing companies will occupy offices in the building, and that there is also considerable outside demand for space in the structure. A lease of the property was recently recorded by the church to William Gow and others for a term of years at $18,000 per annum. The same brokers accumulated a few years ago a plot of 11,700 square feet on the northeast cor of John and William sts for the South Manhattan Realty Co.

MULBERRY ST.—G. Tuoti & Co. sold for a client the 5-sty tenement 3 Mulberry st, 30x25.

Large Deal in New Jersey Acreage.

Title has just passed to a large tract of acreage comprising 124 acres or thereabouts, from Arthur J. Kanter to the Knickerbocker Realty Co., incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with an authorized capital of $500,000. The tract which has been taken over by this company is one of the most desirable in the line of development in this section of Northern New Jersey, a part of the same being in the City of Englewood and the balance in the Borough of Teaneck. The tract has a large frontage on Teaneck road, formerly called the Schraalenburg road, and is directly in the path of Englewood's development to the west. Northern New Jersey's acreage tracts suitable for development and within 5 miles of the Hudson River are becoming exceedingly scarce, operators from New York who have been handling Long Island, Staten Island and Westchester properties having secured nearly all of the best and most available locations during the past six months. It is understood that the Directors of the Knickerbocker Realty Co. will, in the near future, undertake the development of this property along restricted lines.

A SATISFYING INVESTMENT.

It may safely be reasoned that if an estimate of the value of an investment is made solely from the standpoint of safety, then nothing more naturally falls under such an estimate than real estate mortgages. Securities of other kinds, no doubt, have their attractions, but a mortgage on real property is infinitely more satisfactory because of the ease and certainty it offers to its possessor in obtaining a knowledge of all that concerns it.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Since the opening of the season Wood, Harmon & Co. report the sale of 81 lots and 3 houses, or a total of about $50,000 worth of property, at South New York.

The 3-sty brick stable, 106 East 40th st, 25x98.8, located 130 feet east of Park av, was transferred by J. W. Haven to James D. Hague. This building is built to a depth of 78 feet. The consideration was $68,750.

The United States Trust Co. loaned to the 38th st and Madison av Co. $300,000 for three years at five per cent. on the property located on the northwest corner of that avenue and street. The size of the plot is 74.4x100.

It was announced by C. M. Ingersoll, of the Department of Bridges, who is in charge of the Blackwell's Island Bridge, that the new structure would be open for traffic in December and that by January the bridge would be fully in commission.

The firm of Lee & Rusk, of 93d st and Columbus av, announce the retirement of Mr. Rusk. Mr. Louis H. Dykeman, formerly connected with Slawson & Hobbs, has taken his place, and the business will be resumed under the firm name of Lee & Dykeman.

Justice Guy appointed Barnett Levy receiver of rents of the property on the north side of 110th st, 175 feet east of 8th av, 125x70.11, pending a suit brought by Benjamin J. Weil against Harry and Bessie Lehr to foreclose a mortgage of $85,000, made March 1, 1907.

At the annual Directors' meeting of the Lewis H. May Co. Leonard A. May was elected Secretary. The following officers, viz.: Charles F. Noyes, President; A. H. Fraser, Vice-President and Lewis H. May, Treasurer and General Manager, were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Auctioneer Thomas F. Burchill sold 300 lots at Somerville, N. J., on Decoration Day. All told there were 400 advertised for sale, but the balance were withdrawn. This is considered a very good showing considering the inclemency of the weather. About 30 building lots will be offered to-day at Roselle Park, N. J., by Mr. Burchill.

By the will of Mary Ann Astor Woodcock, her niece, Mary Isabelle Woodcock, gets all her real estate, except 357 Broome st, which goes to her brother, William P. Woodcock. The properties bequeathed include the country mansion at Bedford, New York, 368 Bowery, 247 Grand st, 856 to 862 6th av, and some lots in East 26th st.

There was much disappointment among suburban brokers that the weather on Decoration Day was so inclement. They were looking forward to an active day, but in most cases it was a failure. Prospective purchasers were unwilling to face the elements. As a matter of fact country property does not show at its best in a driving rain storm.

PROPERTY OWNERS' SECTION.

PUBLIC WORKS.

RIVERSIDE DRIVE.—Change in line between West 155th st and Dyckman st; laying out an extension of Riverside Drive to the Hudson Memorial Bridge; and laying out a public park adjoining the Drive through its entire length. Board of Estimate will consider on June 19.

BEAR SWAMP RD.—The tentative street system within the area bounded by New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, Bear Swamp rd, Bronx Park East, Bronx and Pelham Parkway, Hering av, Van Nest av and Eastchester rd, as approved by the Board of Estimate on May 29, 1903, and as modified on March 3, 1905, is to be changed to conform with the tentative street system, shown on a map prepared by the President of the Borough of the Bronx, and dated April 29, 1908. Proposed change will be considered on June 19.

217TH ST.—Opening and extending from White Plains rd to Oakley st. Area of assessment fixed by Board of Estimate as follows: Bounded on the north by a line always midway between East 217th and East 218th st, and by the prolongation of said line; on the southeast by a line distant 100 ft. southeasterly from and parallel with the southeasterly line of Oakley st, said distance being measured at right angles to the line of Oakley st; on the south by a line always midway between East 216th st and East 217th st, and by the prolongations of the said line; and on the west by a line always distant 100 ft. westerly from and parallel with the westerly line of White Plains rd, the said distance being measured at right angles to the line of White Plains rd.

SPUYTEN DUYVIL RD.—Board of Estimate denies the petitions of Clarence C. Ferris, bearing date of February 28, 1908, and of J. J. McKelvey, bearing date of March 5, 1908, for a reduction of the assessment for the acquisition of title to Spuyten Duyvil rd, between Spuyten Duyvil Parkway, near Spuyten Duyvil Depot and West 230th st.

THE SINGLE LOT.

HOW TO IMPROVE IT TO ADVANTAGE.

With the passage of the Tenement House Act the single lot ceased being a factor as an investment proposition in New York, but few people seem to realize that in many localities it can still be made a paying investment. Under present conditions and with full and complete compliance with all municipal and State laws and ordinances, such properties in selected localities can still be made to pay a larger percentage upon the investment than any other residence proposition.

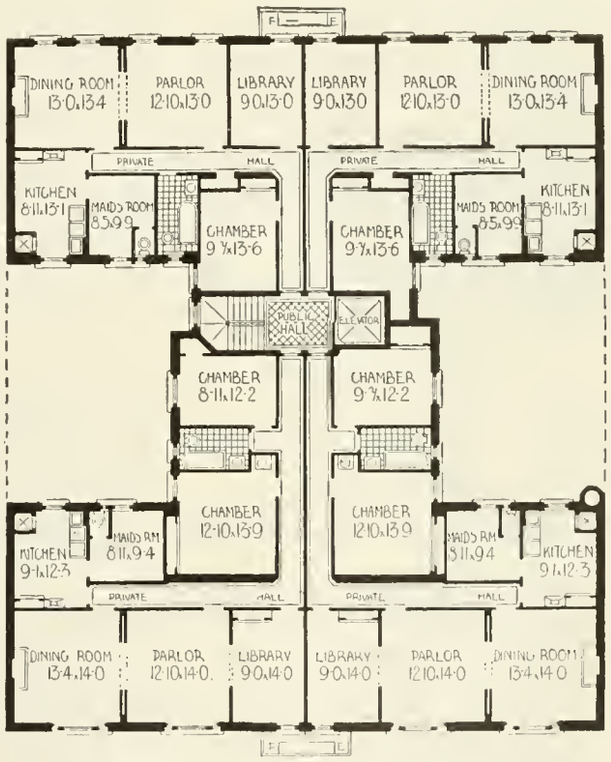
The so-called bachelor or non-housekeeping apartment is the most popular method of living now in vogue in New York. The average prices in such houses range from $30 a month up per room, and one rarely finds a suite of two rooms and bath renting below this figure. This price is higher than the average man can afford, but offers him the same accommodations at one-third to one-half less, and you have a proposition in which there is practically no competition, and you immediately appeal to a much larger clientele anxious to live in this manner but unable to pay the rent at the present rate of prices.

This result can be obtained on a single lot which can be improved with a 4 or 5-sty house, according to circumstances, containing fifteen bachelor apartments of two rooms and bath, in addition to two living apartments. In making the improvement few, if any, legal restrictions are met with. None of the fireproof regulations applying to hotels and none of the restricting conditions applying to tenements need be complied with. Ninety per cent. of the lot may be built upon and interior courts may be of any size. The building is neither a hotel or tenement, and the utmost freedom is, therefore, obtained in the planning.

Such improvements in neighborhoods where lots can be purchased at $25,000 to $30,000, not exactly upon the main lines of travel, but within close distance of same, or in such a neighborhood as that of Columbia University, should give a most substantial return upon the investment, particularly as they can be operated without an elevator, thereby securing the minimum cost of maintenance.

There is but one improvement of this character in the city, the Berwick, at No. 65 West 54th st, built by Israels and Harder, the architects, of 31 West 31st st, who suggested this method of improvement. This house is on a lot 33 ft. 4 ins. wide, but the same principle can be made to apply in 25-ft. lots, or to those of less width. The Hampton, at 22 East 31st st, and the Howard, at 7 East 32d st, designed by the same architects on 25-ft., are types of what such improvements would be, with the exception that these houses are seven stories high and conform to the Tenement House Law as it existed before the passage of the present act, causing compliance with numerous fireproofing and light and ventilation restrictions, which would not be required for the improvement under consideration.

The identical principles could also be applied to a narrower lot. This operation could be in the shape of an alteration to any old private dwelling of fair construction, and in such alterations practically all the beams and walls could be used, although with the construction of a new front one would have practically a new building.



A 4 or 5-sty dwelling of the English basement type offers the best possibilities, but any dwelling of good construction will do. Such alterations would cost practically the same as remodeling any old high-stoop dwelling into a modern American basement, that is from $17,000 to $20,000, and a new building should cost from $30,000 to $35,000, and although the alteration should be the more lucrative proposition, the investment should pay about 20 per cent. gross in either case.

A FLOOR PLAN OF MERIT.

The lot owner who contemplates improving his holding with an apartment house should be particular with respect to the arrangement of the interior. The hit or miss plan so much in evidence throughout some of the newer sections of the city is responsible for many empty apartments which could have been avoided if due pains had been taken in the beginning to intelligently meet requirements in the direction indicated.

One of the quickest and most reliable ways of going about the matter is to make careful inquiry of the real estate agents in the locality in which you intend to build, as to the needs of the average apartment dweller in their section. You can almost invariably abide by the result. In some neighborhoods 4 and 5-room apartments are in demand, and in others nothing short of 6 or 7 rooms will suffice.

Experience has proven that it is unwise to build a high-class elevator apartment in a mixed district. It may pay for a time, but the experiment will ultimately prove a disappointment and is likely to result in much loss through a gradual shrinkage in rental income.

DUDLEY COURT—TYPICAL FLOOR PLAN.
565-9 W. 139th St. Schwartz & Gross, Architects.

The size and layout of rooms is also a matter of much importance in planning a building of this character. See to it that the rooms are properly proportioned and provision is made whereby the important rooms may be quickly and effectively thrown into one of large dimensions when required. On a regulation plot, say 75x100, there is no excuse for a poorly planned building. Not only is such a structure a disgrace to its owner but a deterrent to adjoining property.

The accompanying cut shows a typical floor plan in Dudley Court, 565-569 W. 139th st. The suites in that apartment consist of 5, 6 and 7 large rooms, separate maids' rooms and toilets. The trim is hardwood throughout and all modern conveniences are furnished. While the arrangement of rooms in Dudley Court cannot be called a departure, it is so simple and pleasing that no difficulty is experienced in obtaining tenants at rentals averaging $10 per room.

Many People Want to Study Real Estate

They want to know what it means to buy and sell property, all about contracts, deeds mortgage, etc.

There is a book which tells all about this, "Guide to Buyers and Sellers of Real Estate," by Geo. W. Van Siclen

It Costs One Dollar

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

Key to abbreviations:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to their having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1907.

WATER SUPERVISION CO.

3 PARK ROW, NEW YORK

Tel., 2017 Cortlandt Send for our book "WATER TAX?"

NEW YORK, October 11, 1907.

GENTLEMEN: We derived great satisfaction from your system of regular and prompt supervision of the water meters in our buildings. Your monthly report is an important feature, and its accuracy and promptness has saved us vast water wastes. We think it a necessity in the proper management of buildings, where the water is an item.

Very truly yours, SPEAR & CO.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

May 29, June 1, 2, 3 and 4.
